ACCRINGTON.

Accrington C.B.S. open show of Norwich only, at Crown Hotel, Oct. 22-23, under full patronage of the N.P.C. and O.N.P.C., may be voted a success from every point of view. The show committee, Messrs. Hirst, Crawshaw, Carns, Rooney, Stutard, Harwood, were happy in being able to secure the services of an old fancier in Mr. John Smith, who, in a neat and witty speech, formally opened the show. Mr. Stutard on behalf of the society responded. Accrington committee has created a record by getting the catalogues with awards in the hands of exhibitors as far ahead as Manchester on the day of judging. The 129 entries comprised the cream of the cracks in championship classes, while some splendid birds were also exhibited by the amateurs. All the birds were sent off by seven o'clock on Saturday night. Mr. J. Tregrove judged, and gave general satisfaction.

CHELTENHAM.

The Cheltenham C.B.S. held their annual show Nov. 3 and 4, in the Highbury Schools, a splendid place for a bird show, being well lighted from the top and entirely free from all draught. Entries totalled over 800, and quality all round was most excellent, as is usually the case at this popular and well managed fixture. Crests and Crestbreds again made a grand display, and well maintained the prestige this show has held for these popular varieties for so many years. Norwich, Yorks., and Borders were strong numerically, and many really high class exhibits were staged. British and Hybrids were also first class in numbers and quality. Foreign birds were a grand and interesting collection, and were staged to afford the many visitors much interest and pleasure. Sales were good, over £20 worth changing hands. Two Crests were claimed at £25 each. We noticed well-known fanciers from all parts, and all seemed to be pleased with the show and the management. Of the latter it seems almost superfluous to write, as the society has held such a high reputation for so many years, and this year was certainly not an exception. Mr. A. S. Treasure was again the same energetic and courteous hon. sec. as of yore. Mr. W. Pounsett, as hon. assist. secretary and show manager, worked long and hard to make the venture what it undoubtedly was, a great success. The other officials were: President, Mr. W. W. Theobald; vice-pres., Mrs. Ringer, Mrs. Theobald, Mrs. Rogerson, Messrs. E. Rogerson, Callimore, Colonel Routh, and T. J. King; committee, Messrs. Child, Miles, Hamlin, Stevens, Williams, Brown, Elston, Steel, Lewis, Hinds, C. Stubbs, G. Stubbs, Cox, James, and Mitchell, with Mr. J. Madigan as chairman. We should mention that the profits from the show go to the Red Cross Fund. Messrs. J. Robinson and J. H. Payne judged, and were provided with a hard day's work.

HARTLEPOOLS.

The Hartlepool C.B.S. held their eleventh annual show in St. George's Hall, Nov. 6. We were sorry to see that the entries did not turn up as was expected, between 400 and 500 birds faced the judges. We missed our friend Mr. Pyman, who has joined His Majesty's Service. The late Sec. Mr. Woodhead called in, and had a look round, and we saw a few other old friends during the afternoon. In the Yorkshire section some really good birds were benched. Mr. Dykes's buff winning special for best Yorks. Norwich was a fine lot. Mr. Watson's buff ticked winning special for best Norwich. In Borders some of the birds were real gems, and were put down in the pink of condition. Mr. Hay won the Club medal, also the 5s. special for best Border with his yellow cock. Mules and Hybrids turned out poor in number, only 14 entries in the two classes, but some good birds were benched. Mr. Maddison won special for best mule or British, also special for best bird in show with his clear Goldie-Canary mule, and we must give Mr. Maddison praise for the way he staged his birds, both birds and cages were as clean as a new pin, an object lesson in the proper way to stage exhibition birds. British came out the best section in the show, and some really good birds were to be seen. Mr. J. W. Thornton, the sec., had the birds well staged, and he was ably assisted by a hard working staff of fanciers. The judges were: Mr. W. Munro, Yorks. and Mules; Mr. Battye, Nor. and Bord.; Mr. Nicholson, Brit. and Foreign.

LEICESTER.

Sixteenth annual show of Leicester Ham-in-Hand, Nov. 6, 8, White Swan Hotel, Market Place, an ideal room for an exhibition, being well lighted, free from draughts, and of good size. Entries were not quite so numerous as usual, but the 12 classes contained some charming specimens, Messrs. Houghton and Stubbs Bros. showing excellent teams in the pink of condition; the 3 Yorkshire classes were grandly filled, and made a very pleasing display, competition being very keen, the Burton winning, again standing clear away. The entry in the British was hardly so good as we have seen at Burton, but several cracks put in appearance, and were again well to the front. The arrangements were again capital, the exhibits being splendidly staged, so that every one could be seen at a glance. A special word of praise is due to the splendid band of stewards. No society could have a better lot, each one taking great interest in his duties, and sticking to it throughout the day, and no stone was left unturned. Judging was made rather later than intended on account of the railway company not delivering after 7 p.m. on Friday, which made it well into the afternoon before the last slips were handed in, but catalogues were on sale with awards in a very few minutes after the slips were handed in. The Society have still the services of Mr. Freestone as sec., and he is an ideal man at the post. Specials were won as follows:—Best Bird, Houghton; Unfig. Buff, Members' Cup, Allen; Sandford's Medal, Stubbs Bros.; Hyde's Special, Gilbert. Mr. J. Trengove judged Canaries, and Mr. H. J. Chick, British, etc.

Club Reports.

PONTYPOOL C.B.S.

Meeting, headquarters, Nov. 6. Mr. J. Loveday, chair. Owing to Mr. J. R. Houghton judging at Belfast on the day we intended holding our Members' Show, it was decided to postpone the show for a fortnight. Decided, to have a washing exhibition at next meeting. But after the meeting closed some of the members said they would like to have it earlier, as Cardiff and Blaenavon Shows were between that time, so Mr. H. Johnson kindly consented to give an exhibition on Saturday next, Nov. 13. Mr. C. Ganeson kindly gave 11/ for two specials for our show, half to go to the best Nor. Mr. W. Cooper was made a member.—H. H. Vaughan, Hon. Sec.

QUEEN'S PARK (Glasgow) C.B.S.

Meeting Maria Stuart Hall, Oct. 27, president, Mr. R. Reggie, in the chair, and a large turn-out of members. The chairman asked Mr. R. B. Cairns to give his washing exhibition so that the birds could be drying during the time taken up by general business. Mr. Cairns started his demonstration in a very masterful manner, and the ease and graceful way he handled the birds made the process seem quite simple and easy, and laid open the secret of the lecturer's successes on the show bench. Mr. Cairns used Ramsden's bird beautifier, also a vapour dryer by Andrew Wilson, Glasgow, and he maintained that he got excellent results from both. After having washed a pair of birds the lecturer asked for a volunteer to wash a bird, and one of our youngest members plucked up the courage and responded. He began in a very nervous manner, but a few encouraging remarks by the older fancier soon put the pupil at ease, and he finished up strong. Questions were asked and answered to the satisfaction of the members, and this finished a very interesting and instructive lecture. New members admitted: Mr. Wm. McKnight and Mr. J. Wilson. Schedules and entry forms for annual show were handed out and other show business gone over. This brought a pleasant evening to a close.—A. K. Hunter, Sec.

FIFE C.B.L.

Meeting Denbath, Gothenburg, Oct. 30, Mr. Campbell chair. Agreed that we hold no League show this year. Patronage was granted to Coalton of Wemyss. After meeting was over a judging competition took place on half uneven Border hens, 8 birds facing the judge, Mr. Baxter, Lochelly. Mr. Campbell won competition, placing the birds the same as the judge, as follows: 1, Paterson; 2, Spence; 3, Renton. A vote of thanks to the Chairman and the judge ended the meeting. Next meeting, Lochelly, Dec. 11, at 5.—J. SNEEDON, Sec.

NORTH-WEST GLASGOW C.B.S.

Meeting, Oct. 26, 44, Napierhall St., Mr. Gibb presiding over a very good attendance. Schedules for third annual show were given out, and have been posted to those not present. The meeting was principally called in connection with the annual show, and a large amount of business was got through. Mr. Loan also entertained the members to a washing exhibition, and in view of the approaching show season this was much appreciated. Mr. Loan washed four birds, and explained his methods very minutely. Votes of thanks to Mr. Loan and the chair brought a pleasant meeting to a close.—P. Houston, Sec.

PORTH AND RHONDDA VALLEY.

General meeting, Porth Hotel, Nov. 3; chair, Mr. Legg. A very business-like meeting, with a lot of work done in good time. Members were in favour of Sec. having a free hand re printing. Stewards selected for show: D. Gilbert, W. Jones, A. Addis, B. Payne, D. Escott, and T. James, with W. Baker and R. Hillman at the gate. Messrs. Legg and Challenger volunteered to canvas adverts, and specials. Proposed that members wishing to advertise in catalogue shall do so at half rate. I shall be pleased to accept any specials for our show.—J. H. Bevan, Sec.

SOUTHAMPTON C.B.S.

Meeting, Nov. 2, Mr. W. G. Fellows, chair. Final arrangements made and stewards elected for annual show, Dec. 1. Through stress of circumstances, the show will be confined to members. 38 classes were provided, to which were allotted (by the kindness of several members) 33 special prizes. Six challenge cups will be competed for, so a good entry may be expected. Mr. H. Norman will judge. Decided to admit wounded soldiers free to show. All members present took a supply of tickets for sale, and the hon. sec. will be glad to hear from any other members who would assist in this way.—G. J. Slade, Assist. Sec.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Meeting, Nov. 4, Mr. Jones, chair. We are sorry to record the loss of Mr. H. Sanderson. He was returning home on his motor cycle, after bringing birds to the Combined Show, when, owing to the fog, he collided with a motor bus, and was instantly killed. A boy accompanying also died from injuries. Mr. Sanderson was only elected a member in June, and showed every prospect of becoming an enthusiastic fancier. A vote of sympathy was passed with the widow and relatives in their bereavement. The society won the Rose Bowl for most points at the C.S., Mr. Falding being the holder, his birds (British) securing four firsts. Final arrangements for annual show and other business took up the rest of the evening. Mr. C. C. Haddfield was elected a member. Next meeting, final table show and election of officers.—E. Sisson, Assist. Sec.

IRVINE C.B.S.

Annual general meeting, Masonic Hall, Mr. W. S. Clark was again appointed pres.; Mr. M. McKean, vice-pres.; Messrs. J. Alexander and J. Paterson, joint secs.; and treas. A lengthy discussion took place over the balance sheet. It was agreed to hold show, open to members resident within a five miles radius, and, as last year, to hand the proceeds over to the Red Cross Association. Mr. Patterson, Chirnside, has agreed to judge, and as some of our members have been winning further afield we hope to have keen competition. The show is under the patronage of the B.F.C.C. The Club has agreed to present five medals, one each for Clear Borders, Varieg. or Tkd. Bord., Green or Cinn. Bord., Nor. and Brit. There are a number of specials also down for competition. There are 22 classes for Borders, 8 Nor., and 8 British.—J. Alexander.—(Kindly forward your address.—Ed.)

SWANSEA C.B.S.

Meeting, Mansel Hall, Nov. 6; Mr. J. H. Ford presided. Decided to run our show in conjunction with the local Red Cross Society, and give all profits to that society. Special help is to be given. The members gave a dozen beautiful birds and cages, including a Crystal Palace aviary stocked with birds. Mr. Maggs gave a pair of Green Budgerigars. All to be sold to highest bidder. Sale commences at 4. Specials were given by Mr. Geo. Llewellyn for best open Nor., best 4th Nor., best local Nor., best Bord. (Nov.) by Mr. W. Eley. Stewards selected for show: Messrs. Llewellyn, Williams, Richards and Mabbet. I appeal to members who have been unable to attend the last few meetings to make a special effort to attend on Saturday next, when business connected with the show will be finished. Any member running short of tickets, a P. C. will oblige, as we wish to make it a huge success.—Alf. Hutchings, Sec.

AYR C.B.C.

Meeting, Oct. 26, Wallace Town Hall, High Street, Ayr, Mr. J. Murray, chair. The Chairman intimated that all accounts had been paid up to date, and that the club was now on a clear footing. The secretary, Mr. R. Aitken, having joined the Territorial Forces, Mr. Hugh M. Ferguson was duly appointed sec. and treas. Office-bearers elected were: J. Forbes, hon. pres.; J. Murray, pres.; P. McQuiston, vice-pres.; Messrs. McQuiston, Gribben, Kelly, Wason, Erskine, McLoughlan, Murray, and Tait, stewards; the whole club to be on the committee. Decided to hold the Annual Open Show, Dec. 25, under the auspices of the Carrick House Red Cross Hospital. The judges nominated were Messrs. T. Dalton and J. F. Dewar, Scotch Fanciers; Maxwell, Nor.; J. F. Dewar, Border and Yorks.; and Mr. Steel, Brit. and For. In regard to "specials," which were confined, it was agreed that exhibiting members may compete for specials by paying 1/-. Prizes will be 10/., 5/., 2/6; fee, 1/6. The canvassers appointed to call upon patrons of the club were Messrs. McLachlan and Erskine; Mr. McCoy volunteering to call upon local merchants. Next meeting was arranged for Friday, Nov. 5.

Meeting, Nov. 5, Mr. J. Murray, chair. Replies were read from the judges nominated. Mr. T. Dalton will judge Scotch Fanciers; Mr. J. Steel (Dalkeith), British and Foreign. Sec. was instructed to ask Mr. A. Chalmers to judge Norwich; Mr. A. Ferguson to assist in Scotch Fanciers; and Mr. J. W. Bruce to judge Borders and Yorks. There will be 6 classes Scotch Fanciers; 10 Nor. (4 unfig.); 3 Mules or Hyb.; and 14 Brit. and For. New members elected: Mr. D. Thom, Mr. H. Davidson. Next meeting, Nov. 15.—H. M. Ferguson, Sec.

READING C.B.S.

Meeting, Palmer Hall, Wed., Nov. 3, before a large attendance. Final show arrangements were made, members showing great willingness for tasks allotted. Mr. Brooker was elected steward, and Mr. Wilson show manager. Birds will be met at station by all trains on Tuesday, and first thing Wednesday morning; everything has been arranged in perfect order.—O. C. Smith, Sec.

GLASGOW & W. COUNTIES CLUB.

Meeting Nov. 6, at 122, Ingram Street. Mr. P. Pettigrew presided over a good attendance. Decided to have a washing competition at next meeting for prizes presented by Messrs. Pettigrew, Cassels, and Adam. A goodly number of specials were handed in for annual show. As there is a good deal of business for next meeting, Dec. 4, it is to be hoped that members will turn up at 7 prompt.—J. H. Adam, Hon. Sec.

EDINBURGH NORWICH & M.B.S.

Meeting, 142, High Street, Nov. 4. Arrangements were completed for annual show, Nov. 20. Two cups were presented to the club, one for Borders, by Mr. J. Hutchison, and one for Norwich, by Mr. Wm. Dods. We have secured the Free Gardeners' Hall, in Picardy Place, for annual Show, Nov. 20, doors open at 1, when we expect a good gate in this central position. Reference was made to the loss one of our oldest members, Mr. Wm. Thomson, had sustained by the death of his wife. Mrs. Thomson was a regular visitor to our show, and her absence will be keenly felt. Members not present at meeting are reminded that entries close first post Nov. 15.—Jas. Stormont.

B.F.C.C. (Open Show Committee).

Adjourned meeting, 142, High Street, Nov. 2, Mr. G. W. Brown, chair. Disappointment was felt when the President intimated that it was now impossible to get Picardy Place Hall. Other suitable halls were in view, and it was remitted to the Pres. and Sec. to fix up one of these. Some discussion took place over prize cards, and it was agreed to give model cards free. Mr. S. Buglass, Vice-President of the Scottish National C.B.S., was unanimously appointed show manager. Judges: Messrs. H. Bennett, Kelso; J. Nicholson, Hallowhistle; and D. Hamilton, Hamilton. Sec. submitted prize list in draft form, which was approved. Now, fellow fanciers, send in your lists of specials, and let us get on with our printing. A few of the G.F.C.C. delegates have been working, and one has collected no less than ten specials. We have also got the promise of a trophy, and if you work now the entries will come afterwards. I am pleased to state we have booked the Cathedral Hall, Albany Street, for our show. This hall is spacious, well lighted, and in every way suitable, close to the tram cars, and within easy reach of the railway station.—J. Lumsden, Sec.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

ANXIOUS AND BOY.—Replied to by post.

SCALY LEGS AND PANTING (F. Thompson).—Your bird has doubtless seen the best of its days, and is evidently in a bad bronchial condition, but to what extent it is affected your query gives no clue. You must first of all see that it is kept in a comfortable place, not necessarily over-heated, but quite free from direct cold draughts and rapid extremes of temperature. Also see that it is not allowed to hang very near a window, nor near or over burning lights in the evenings. Bathe the legs for a few minutes in a fairly warm solution of common soda—a piece the size of a small pea dissolved in a saucerful of warm water. Then dry carefully, and sparingly anoint with olive oil or vaseline. To relieve the bronchial condition give every second day for a fortnight, in addition to the usual seed diet, half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed; and on the alternate days add to the drinking water five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, tincture of lobelia, and sweet spirit of nitre for the same length of time.

SEED SAMPLES (C. C. S.).—The samples you send are not simply canary seed, but seed mixtures which should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); "Bottle's" "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Westcott's "Stack Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, and Cages," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Parakeet," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 151, Fleet Street, London, E.C. are generally used for feeding Canaries. As a staple diet, a simple mixture of three parts canary seed to one part summer rape is much preferable to these elaborate mixtures, which are nearly always very wasteful, the birds picking out what they like best and scattering the rest on the floor of the cage. The bulk of each sample you send consists of canary seed of very fair all-round quality. No. 1 contains far too much linseed to be used as staple, and would do with treble the quantity of rape. No. 2 contains too much of both linseed and hemp, the latter in such quantity as would probably cause the birds to be exceedingly wasteful with it. No. 3 is the best all-round mixture to form a staple diet if one wishes to use a mixture, in spite of its shortcomings. The simple mixture named above as a general staple, and your No. 3 mixture twice a week as a change would make a far more satisfactory dietary.

WHEEZE BADLY (E. T. S. A.).—Do not hang the cages high up near the ceiling, near or over burning lights in the evenings, nor in a dusty or irritating atmosphere, and treat as follows for a month, and if not well in that time please write again and refer to this reply, or repeat full particulars. Give a staple diet of a mixture of a three parts canary to one part summer rape seed. In addition, give separately every third day half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. On the intervening days give first a morsel of banana or some kind of green seasonable salad, and next half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts riger, millet, teazle, black rape and linseed. In the drinking water add ten drops of lemon juice and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, every second day for a fortnight. During the second fortnight, instead of the above aperient, give every second day five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, tincture of lobelia, and sweet spirit of nitre.

IRRITABLE FEET (C. E.).—It is not very unusual for the feet and legs to be somewhat tender during and just after the moulting season. If the claws are at all overgrown, cut them back again to the normal length. Considering the bird's age it is quite possible for them to be overgrown again, notwithstanding the fact that they were trimmed a few months ago. Also bathe the legs and feet once daily for a week in a warm solution of boracic acid—a small teaspoonful of the acid in a saucerful of warm water. After bathing, dry gently, and anoint sparingly with boracic ointment, but do not leave any surplus grease about them to collect dirt and grit.

Add to the drinking water every second day for a week ten drops of lemon juice and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea.

BREEDING PREPARATIONS (L. Scott).—(1) Although it may not be absolutely essential to separate the cock Canary from the hens in the aviary before the breeding season commences, it is certainly most advisable to do so. If allowed to remain together permanently the probability is that they will commence nesting long before the weather is in the least degree reliable in spring, and thereby run a very great risk of wasting the best part of the season in the production of one or two clutches of infertile eggs. In addition to this, you will not get the best vocal efforts out of your cocks unless they are caged alone singly. If you decide to leave them together through the winter you should separate the cocks about the middle of January, and keep them apart until the end of March or the first week in April. (2) It must be regarded as an absolute necessity to separate the budgerigars during the breeding season, and to be quite on the safe side it would be better to separate them entirely. Your inability to see why birds in confinement should be separated, because, as you say, birds in their natural state are not separated, is, shall I say, rather shallow. Birds in confinement are subject to more or less unnatural, or abnormal, conditions, and consequently are very apt to act in an abnormal manner as dictated by circumstances prevailing at the moment. And you must also take into account the fact that many species of birds in their natural state separate themselves at the close of each breeding season, and remain apart until spring again calls into play the procreative instinct. (3) As regards the birds scratching themselves, the irritation may be more apparent than real. It may be nothing more than the natural preening which is common after the moult until the plumage is quite freed from the old quilts. Allow them to bathe freely in clean pure water, and add 20 drops of fluid magnesia to the drinking water every second day for a week, and I do not think you need worry at all about their scratching and preening.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

PAINTING CAGES (Novice in British).—The painting of cages is quite a matter of choice, although exhibitors generally keep to certain recognised tones, but even then the exhibitor should be guided a good deal by the plumage of his birds. There are two colours that might suit either or both of your birds, Greenfinch and Greenfinch-Canary: a fairly pale blue-grey, and rather dark green. If you have the time and opportunity I would advise you to paint a couple of false backs to your cages and try the birds in them. The light colour appears to make a bird look large, but at the same time tends to give a harshness to the plumage. The green, on the other hand, lacks contrast, but, in a good light, the bird generally looks well. It may seem troublesome to make these experiments, but if you get just the right tone to suit your birds, you will not regret having done it.

A MIXED AVIARY (C. P.).—One cannot always say just what the behaviour of certain species would be under certain conditions, but my own experience is that you cannot keep two Skylarks or Woodlarks in the same enclosure. Softbills, as a rule, are most pugnacious, especially towards their own species, and the Larks are no exception. If, however, the Skylark and Woodlarks agree, I would advise you to let them remain as they are. (3) The Robin is a tremendous eater, and will not interfere with the other birds providing he can get the lion's share of the food. He is generally safe if the others give way to him, otherwise it is war to the end. As your aviary is of good size you could try him for a time, but I would not trust him during the breeding season.

TREATMENT OF OLD BULLFINCH (Miss M. A. Sikes).—I have carefully read your letter, and I do not see that you can make much alteration in the treatment of your Bullfinch. In the first place I would suggest that you lower his perches, so that it is not such an effort for him to get on and off them. The fact of this being a difficult operation to him would prevent his descending for food so frequently as he should, and this would account for his not being in very good condition, and consequently somewhat weak. As regards his food I would advise you to give him a spoonful of soaked seeds about twice or even three times a week, otherwise continue to feed him as you have been doing.

BRITISH BIRD & HYBRID QUERIST

should consult Houlton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2, "Linnel," No. 3 "Skylark," No. 4, "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Birdrooms, and Cages," No. 12 "How to Mould British Birds." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 151, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

BREEDING FROM TWO HENS (Goldfinch-Canary).—You could very safely allow your three birds to fly altogether during the winter months, unless at the turn of the year you notice the hen Bullfinch spiteful towards the other hen, then if you do you must separate them at once. I presume your cage is a three-compartment one, and that you propose putting a hen in each end and the Goldfinch cock in the centre. Now if the hen Bullfinch takes to the Goldfinch strongly, you should not keep them out of sight of each other for any length of time, and when the hen Canary is ready, just run him in for an hour or even less, night and morning; you can manage this so that he spends the major portion of his time with the Bullfinch. If you are interested in Hybrids I would advise you to get one of our books on the subject, it would assist you considerably.

WHAT SEED? (H. B. Connor).—The sample of seed sent is the Burdock. All the Finches eat it, but do not appear to be particularly fond of it. It does well in a mixture of other wild seeds. Birds at liberty appear to feed on it rather late in the season when they have possibly somewhat exhausted other supplies.

WHAT BIRD? (P. Bell).—The wild bird that answers the nearest to your description is the Stonechat. This bird has a white patch at the side of the neck which you may have mistaken for a ring round it; he also has another white patch on the wings and a ruddy breast. The Stonechat is an insectivorous bird, living here all the year round, fre-quenting commons and furze-clad downs, and, like many of our other birds, migrating from place to place in search of food during the winter months.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

WHAT PARROT? (Fish).—(1) It is difficult to give a definite pronouncement, as the details you supply would fit the Yellow-fronted Amazon (Chrysotis ochrocephala), Panama Amazon (C. panamensis), or a young Blue-fronted Amazon (C. aestiva). I think it is the latter species, as many young birds show no blue on the front, and many adults have a distinct yellow forehead. On the other hand, the white patch on upper mandible rather points to the Yellow-fronted, but the blue in the tail suggests either the King Amazon or Blue-fronted. Apart from the distinctions referred to, your description would fit all four species. (2) As indicated, I believe it to be a young Blue-front. (3) Individuals vary, but most Blue-fronts make good talkers and mimics. (4) As it is a young bird, give it a little boiled maize daily, boil till soft, drain off all water, then add and allow to soak in about 5-10 drops of cod liver oil emulsion. As it is used to help you must let it have sufficient to satisfy hunger, but you should keep mixed seed in the cage as well. You must also supply ripe fruit and shelled nuts. It can also have stale crusts, pieces of biscuit, plain cake, etc. Cattlebone must be kept in the cage and a pinch of grit added to the daily supply of seed.

SIBERIAN GREENFINCH (Brackholes).—The Siberian (Chinese) Greenfinch ranges over Eastern Siberia, China and Japan; its scientific designation is Ligurinus sinicus.

DO NOT AGREE (E. A. B. N.).—(1) When you put your query I gave you a list of birds which usually agree together, but I have stated again and again should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, and Cages," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Andaravals," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Foxbills." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 151, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

FOREIGN BIRD QUERISTS

In this column that owing to individualism, etc., no hard and fast rule can be laid down. I have also stated many times that in a cage the small Ornamental Finches are given to over-preening and frequently pluck each other's heads bare; the only thing to do then is to isolate the bald one till his feathers have grown again. Again, when an obstreperous individual turns up, give him solitary confinement for a time and do not put him in a mixed collection till all the others are quite at home in their cage—if you were to put such a bird in the cage first he would make the lives of newcomers a misery, and probably slaughter them. All birds "spar" a little, even in play, and I think some of what you describe is not serious quarrelling, especially the demeanour as described of the Java Sparrows. I know, and have at the present, many C.P. cages containing a dozen mixed birds each, and they have agreed together; occasionally a bald bird has had to be removed for its feathers to be renewed, but otherwise there was no difficulty. Get, if you can, by watching our adverts, half a dozen odd Waxbills, and put them all together into one of your cages, then when they have been there about a week and are settled down, turn in the others; if the Cordon Bleu still bullies, you must either keep him separate or sell or exchange him. Try in one of your cages, cocks: Green and Grey Singing Finches, Alario Finch, and Madagascan Weaver. In another put a pair of Zebra Finches. The seeds referred to will make a welcome change for the birds, which, however, will be likely only to pick out those to their liking.

POST MORTEMES.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 2s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

S. W.—Norwich hen died of pneumonia. Both lungs were badly affected. Exposure and change of environment is the cause.

A. M. F. (Novice).—Mucro-enteritis, probably originating in cold contracted during the month.

Nenadd Aber.—Fatty degenerative disease of the liver. The bird was very anemic and dropsical as the result of its long illness.

I am giving up my unique collection of birds.

Most of them are true pairs. Many have reared young. Most of them have nested. In some cases I cannot absolutely guarantee the sexes. All are in faultless condition, unless otherwise stated, and thoroughly acclimatised. Many are aviary bred. Birds cannot be sent on approval, and in all cases preference will be given to those who send money or deposit. Offers will be considered if reasonable, but I cannot undertake a lengthy correspondence.

CANARY GRACES.

The Yorkshire Canary is a slender, beautifully-moulded bird, with grace in its every movement.

The lightly-variegated specimen is the fine yellow which won first prize at Plymouth Show for Mr. H. Craven, of Plymouth. The clear is a grand youngster which secured first prize, although competing against old birds, for Mr. W. Gilbert (London, E.C.), at the Show of the London and Provincial O.S.

F. CARL, Publisher, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

ADVERTISEMENT CHARGES.

ALWAYS USE "CAGE BIRDS" DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each 21, or fraction of 21, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

FOR JOINER-MADE CAGES, CHEAP, Any size, any number of compartments, loose wire fronts, 3-ply backs, best materials only used; none better made; illustrated catalogue, of everything required free.

Use Our Notepaper.

action will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale is effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper building, fitting, and management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/11.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book.

THE SECRETS OF HYBRID BREEDING REVEALED AND EXPLAINED.—By many notable Mule and Hybrid Breeders. Among the contributors are such well-known breeders as Messrs. R. Colton, W. H. Vale, C. Houlton, C. J. Ward, J. Beswick, G. Lander, T. H. Kinell, T. Smith, etc. This Handbook, which contains 212 pages, 7 inches by 5, is brimful of the most practical information on the highly interesting subject of Hybrid Breeding. Price 1/-, post free 1/2.

PARROTS FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT, 7d.—By C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateils is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives full details on how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/11.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

CAGE-BIRD HYBRIDS.—Complete bound in cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. This great work is written by Charles Houlton, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading exhibitor and a leading expert and judge: (Associate Editor, J. E. Weston and C. A. House). Magnificently illustrated by that great bird artist, H. Norman. There are no less than sixteen coloured and sixteen art plates in this work. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual Hybrid.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos, with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and words of description as desired, 250 5/-, 500 7/6, carriage paid.

KIRKINTILLOCH.

Annual show, Nov. 6, Temperance Hall, a very suitable hall in every way. Birds were neatly staged on four sides, leaving abundance of room for visitors, who turned out in good numbers. Entries numbered close on 200, no improvement upon last year. Twelve open classes were provided, but did not fill so well as this progressive body of fanciers deserved. Norwich, as was to be expected here, were a grand lot. Borders contained a fine lot of wee geese, quality being the leading feature. Confined classes were well supported, and British were a big improvement upon last year; several grand birds were put down by local fanciers. Young Mules brought out four entries, and the winner is supposed to be a cross between a Yellowhammer and a Canary, but, after careful inspection, we make it to be simply a variegated Canary; we could find no trace of the Yellowhammer. The management was all that one could wish for, all doing their best towards success, and none did better than that old and popular fancier, Jamie Dick, who looked well after the secretarial duties, and had all arrangements well in hand; he was well backed up by such well-known fanciers as Messrs. McEay, Chalmers, Martin, Pirret, Thom, Quinn, Aitken, Ferns, and Fairney. We would suggest a catalogue being issued next year; visitors find it greatly wanted. In the absence of a catalogue the names of the winners in our report are given with reservation. The Black Cup for best bird went to Mr. Martin, also Pains Cup in Norwich; Border Points Cup went to Mr. Aitken; British Cup, Mr. Ferns. Judges were: Norwich and Crests, Mr. P. Houston (Glasgow); the remainder, Mr. Snellie (Kilmarlock).

RESOLVEN.

Norwich and Borders were the only sections well catered for at this show, in the Church Hall, Nov. 4. The limited classification brought only a moderate entry, but quality was good, some very high-class birds being shown, especially in Borders, Yorks., and British, and these deserved keener competition. The arrangements were well carried out by the following committee, who did their best in looking after the interests of exhibitors and exhibitors. Messrs. Wm. Thomas (chairman), A. West, R. Richards, D. Thomas, W. Ashman, J. Williams, A. Tyler, E. Thomas, W. Thomas, and E. Lewis. That well known and enthusiastic fancier, Mr. S. J. Kerswell, was secretary, and right well did he perform his duties. Mr. C. A. House judged, and had far too much to do, as in addition to the cage birds he had 859 in other sections of the show. He had a hard day, and we should say a record.

NOR., YELL., CK. (4): 1, 3, withheld; 2, sp., E. Lewis, very typical, capital col., nice silky feather; 4, Slee, hardly so chubby, nice col. and feather; w.e. Lewis, a buff. HEN (5): 1, withheld; 2, Lewis, lovely qual., col., and type, very fit; 3, Slee, larger and stouter, nice col., but not so much qual.; 4, D. Jenkins; vhc. G. Davies; he, no name. BUFF (6): 1, withheld; 2, sp., and sp. best Nor., G. Davies, very smart eye and wing mld., lovely feather and style, grand col. and shape; 3, J. Davies, shapely cl., good col. and carr., not so fit; 4, E. Lewis; vhc. no name; he, Lidyard. HEN (3): 1, 2, withheld; 3, E. Lewis, very neat in shape and feather, good style; 4, D. Jenkins, larger and more col., but not so silky. YORKS. (11): 1, Watkins, eye and wing mld. buff, smart and racy, beautifully feathered; 2, vhc. LARKHALL.

10th Annual Show of the Larkhall C.B.S., Y.M.C.A. Rooms, Oct. 30. The halls are in close proximity to the station, and although the space was of limited nature, the management made the most of it, and had the staging arranged to the best advantage. Mr. McGregor makes a good Sec., and is ably backed up in the work by a cheerful, hard-working band of fanciers in officials and committee. There was no bluster or confusion, and everything passed off like clockwork. The judges were: Norwich, T. Morrison; Borders, W. S. Wilson; remr., R. V. Raine, and their awards gave general satisfaction. Entries came up well, considering the National Crisis, and the gate was such as to make the show a success. We heard that a Red Cross Show was almost certain to be held in the district about the first week in the new year. We wish them success in such a charitable undertaking, and hope to hear of a good round sum being handed over. There were some valuable trophies on competition; the winners were: Nor. Cup, Cuthbertson; Border Cup, R. Sandilands; Rose Bowl, Best Brit., J. Smith; Points Cup, Campbell; runner-up, Thomson.

NOR., CL., ETC., YELL. CK.: 1, cup, 2, Cuthbertson, leader grand size, rich silky feather, neat carr. and style, in the pink; 2, best young Nor., fine size and qual., eye tick, good subs., well filled, but rather fat and brawny in head; 3, Kennedy, well up for size, paler in col.; 4, McGregor, slightly lacy in col., otherwise well up on 3rd; 5, McEay; 6, Rundell. HEN: 1, 4, Campbell, leader good size, nice type and qual., neat, cobby, and well proportioned; 4th, nice col. and good feather; 2, Cuthbertson, fine size and qual., but loose in carr.; 3, Kennedy, well up in size, nice feather and style, well up on 2nd; 5, McEay. BUFF CK.: 1, 4, Cuthbertson, leader nice size and good qual., rather long in feather, could do with more girth; 4th, nice one all over, not the size of those in front; 2, 6, McGregor, leader similar in build and general character, but not quite the qual. of winner; 3, McEay, nice all round, not much behind 2nd; 5, Hardie. HEN: 1, McGregor, nice type and qual., rather pale in col., neat and cobby built, stylish, perfect carr.; 2, 4, Campbell, leader rather large, fine qual. feather, not quite so thick or clean cut away, still good one; 4th, sweet cl., fine qual. and type, neatly got up, little behind any; 3, Cuthbertson, neat, good qual. var., short, shapely, and well built, just requires a little more size; 5, McEay; 6, Rundell. UNFED YELL. CK.: 1, Allan, mld. on wing and neck, rare col., silky feather, not finished moulting; 2, McEay, fine size and subs., head tek., neat and well-braced, level col. and qual., runs well up on top marker; 3, Campbell, well up in size and qual., nice col., rather unsteady; 4, Rundell, grizz. head, neat enough, but wants size and steadiness. HEN: 1, McGregor, good size and feather, sweet head and front, loose in wings and tail, we thought a bit soft; 2, Rundell, larger, but more open in feather, fine top end, nice qual., but too long behind. UNFED. BUFF CK.: 1, Thomson, not a monster, but neat and well got up, fine build and carr., well laid down; 2, Kennedy, eye mark, fine qual., A1 cond., nice shape and type, runs close up for top place; 3, Allan, well up for size and cond., nicely-carried wings and tail; 4, Cuthbertson, nice one for size and shape, little too much brow. HEN: 1, Cuthbertson, grand size, plenty subs., fine qual., and neatly balanced through, in the pink; 2, Rundell, lightly var., not just so massive in build, but neat, and runs well up on winner for qual.; 3, Allan, fine qual. and type, looks to have been spoiled in the wash, or might have gone up; 4, Kennedy, well up in size and feather, nicely fed, fine head, neat carr.; 5, McGregor; 6, Rundell. UNFLIG. CK.: 1, 3, Cuthbertson, leader hot fed cl., grand size, deep even col., fine texture, neat, full head and neck, could do with a pinch more width of front; 3, cl. yell., well up for size and col., grand top end; 2, 5, McGregor, 2nd cl. buff, nice size and body subs., good qual., loses to leader in head points; 4, Haston, hard up for size and subs., nice feather, very similar to 2nd; 6, McEay. HEN: 1, Cuthbertson, grizzle cap buff, fine stamp, short in leg, and neat, fine chubby build, good all over; 2, Rundell, cap and wing mark yell., fine style and shape, neatly braced, fine bearing, nice weight, hard up on leader. SELL: 1, McEay; 2, Perrie; 3, Arnott; 4, Rundell; 5, Allan; 6, Hardie. CREST OR C.B.: A full team, and all the winners to W. Arnott: 1st, massive var. dark C.B., plenty body subs. and abundant feather, nice skull, good entrance, and fine lashing, staged in nice order; 2nd, var. D.C., nice headpiece, neat centre, and finely radiated, even droop, good one, quite as good as leader; 3rd, green C.B., nice qual. feather, beaten in head points; 4th, var. D.C., good all round, in top order, value for a step up. COMMON CK. CAN.: 1, Perrie; 2, 5, Sandilands; 3, Rundell; 4, Ferguson. HEN: 1, Rundell; 2, 3, Sandilands. BORD., CL. OR TKD. YELL. CK.: 1, Gibb, sweet little cl., close in feather, neat head and neck, shapely, good carr., in the pink; 2, McFarlane, similar in type and build, fine qual., neat head and neck, perfect carr., only fails across shoulders; 3, Rundell, nice one for qual. feather and carr., neatly drawn; 4, Ferguson, not up in form, yet will improve; 5, Thomson; 6, Bond. HEN: 1, Robertson, neat little lady, typical, clearly cut and sweetly got up, wins, A1 cond.; 2, Gibb, good one for style and shape, nice wings and tail, not so nice in head, otherwise well up; 3, Marley, rare col. and qual., shows a trifle too much thigh, and is inclined to draw, in fine bloom; 4, 6, Thomson, 4th, nice one for type and texture of feather, neat head and tail; 5, Alex. Thomson. CL. OR TKD. BUFF CK.: 1, cup, Sandilands, fine shapely little fellow, nicely tapered body, well filled in, neat wings and tail, fine boxy feather, only fault trifle low in head at entrance; 2, Rundell, grand qual. and type, well drawn, excels leader in head points, but fails in wing carr. at times; 3, Kennedy, neat, typical, well-balanced; 4, Robertson, nice qual., unsteady; 5, Adamson; 6, Morrison. HEN: 1, Sandilands, real good one, capital qual. feather, neatly filled at top end, fine carr. of wings and tail, just inclined to draw when handling; 2, Allan Thomson, nice one for qual., neat head and neck, clean front; 3, Gibb, nice feather and carr.; 4, Kennedy, nicely staged, just looking trifle open in feather; 5, Alex. Thomson; 6, Adamson. GREEN OR CINN. CK.: 1, McFarlane, nice feathered yell. Cinn., good in type, neatly drawn, good wings and tail; 2, Marley, buff Cinn., good qual. and typical, better in head points than leader, not quite up yet; 3, Graham, nice yell. green, line grassy col., nice type and carr., in lovely order, could have gone 1 up; 4, 5, Allan, 4th, buff Green, nice size and shape, good head and wing carr.; 6, Campbell, HEN: 1, 5, Allan, winner yell. Green, in nice cond., fine carr., neat wings and tail; 2, Campbell, yell. Cinn., fine one for shape, but loose in feather;

3, McFarlane, buff Cinn., nice type and qual., well filled in and neat, we fancied as much as any in class; 4, Marley, good yell. Cinn., not finished moulting yet; 6, Kennedy. A.O.V. YELL. BORD. CK.: 1, 5, Allan Thomson, winner, even col., close and boxy in feather, yell. wing mark, neat and shapely throughout, in the pink; 2, Marley, rather larger in build, not quite so deep and even in col., but good qual., just faintly across shoulders; 3, Robertson, yell. mark, nice feather, good wings and tail; 4, Graham, nice qual. cinn. mark, looking rather poor in feather, or might have scored another point. HEN: 1, 3, Allan Thomson, light var., nice wing marks, steady and stylish, good head, neatly folded wings and tail, not quite through moult yet; 3rd, neat, but draws too much; 2, Ferguson, good all-round Cinn. mark, might have been staged to better advantage; 4, Graham, nice var. cinn. mark. BUFF: 1, Robertson, light var., nice shape and rich qual., neatly folded wings and tail, clean cut, nice top end, staged in the form that wins; 2, J. Kennedy, fine texture of feather, heavier in build, but well proportioned; 3, Marley, nice one for type, good top end, but crosses when handled; 4, Graham, nice cond.; 5, Allan Thomson; 6, C. Kennedy. HEN: 1, Rundell, beauty for type and qual., neat and well made, could do with a little more rise in front of head; 2, Allan Thomson, nice qual. cinn. saddle mark, neat in wings and tail, stylish; 3, Allan, good grizz. mark, in fine cond., neat head, wing, and tail; 4, Graham. BRED 1915: 1, 5, Rundell, leader well drawn and shapely, line cond., incl. to lift wings a bit; 2, Robertson, grizz. cap mark, nice feather and neat carr.; 3, Allan Thomson, nice cl., line type and qual., neat and good, we fancied this for 1st place; 4, J. Thomson, deep level col., yell. nice mould, and good carr., worth a higher place; 6, Morrison. SELL: 1, Sandilands; 2, Graham; 3, 4, Allan Thomson; 5, Ferguson; 6, Marley. YORK. YELL.: 1, 2, Bond. BUFF: 1, Bond; all good birds, but not quite in show condition; looks like a novice requiring some friendly assistance. A.O.V. CAN.: 1, W. Clark, good Nor. green, in nice order. LIGHT MULE OR HYB., some nice crosses here: 1, 2, 6, Campbell, leader lovely Greenie-Bullie, topper for size and col., beautiful blend, in the pink, a well-known winner; 2, Linnet Bullie, known, face not just ready yet for hot competition; 3, 4, 5, Melvin, Redpoll-Goldie in front, a nice and attractive little creature, in perfect feather; 4, Greenie Goldie, perfect cond. DARK: 1, McEay, topping Linnet cross, rare size and col., faultless feather, and steady, will be heard of again; 2, A. Thomson, nice Goldie cross, fine col. and marking, can do with bit more size; 3, Rundell, good Greenie Mule, nice cond., and will improve yet; 4, C. Kennedy, Goldie cross, in nice order, shows the cross well, but needs size to help it; 5, J. Kennedy. GOLDF.: 1, McEay, real Britisher, nice deep scarlet blaze, fine yell. wings and bars, nicely battened, steady, faultless feather; 2, Boag, trifle larger, purer in whites, not up in col. yet, barely so steady as winner; 3, Campbell, we believe was taken away soft; 4, Melvin, unsteady, not finished yet; 5, J. Kennedy. LINNET: 1, Campbell, well-known winner, capital eye and rich nutty col., well pencilled, in perfect health, steady, and staged to perfection, wins hands down; 2, 3, McEay, 2nd, nice for size and steadiness, but fails in depth of ground col.; 3rd, nice one for col. and markings, not quite the size of 2nd, but in other respects better; 4, Perrie, good one for col. and marks, in A1 cond.; 5, McEay; 6, A. Thomson. GREENF. CK.: 1, 2, Campbell, winner clinker, massive build, fine depth of col., perfect feather, and very steady, one of the right sort; 2nd, staged in lovely bloom, but not so massive in build, still good one; 3, McEay, nice Jonque, in fine feather, nicely put down; 4, 6, Cameron, 4th, nice buff, fine cond., but lacks the size to carry it through; 5, Perrie. HEN: 1, Campbell, nice Jonque, good size and feather, steady, and well put down; 2, Hardie, massive buff, not just in such perfect order as winner, or might have been a harder nut to crack. SISKIN, ETC.: 1, A. Thomson, nice Jonque Siskin, finely mld., neat cap and distinct pencilling, steady, and in nice feather; 2, Campbell, Mealy Toll, good size and col., nicely pencilled, pure in marking, and steady, good one; 3, Perrie, Twice, not a bouncer for size, but for col. and markings hard to beat, put down in the pink; 4, Hardie, Jonque Siskin, in nice order; 5, McEay; 6, Morrison. H.M. LESSER REDPOLL: 1, 2, Campbell, leader fine size and col., rich poll and tanning, steady, in the pink; 2nd, perfect feather, scarce the size or depth of col. as winner; 3, 4, Boag, nice pair, in fine cond., but beaten in size and depth of col.; 5, Perrie. F.M.: 1, 2, Perrie, real good pair, fine col. and pencilling, nicely tanned, leader wins in size only; 3, Campbell, nice one; 4, 5, Clark, steady and good in col., little behind the others; 6, A. Thomson. BULF.: HEN: 1, rose bowl best Brit., Smith, a beauty and no mistake, topper for size and col., rich, deep expansive jet cap and wing bars, perfect feather, and spotless bloom; 2, Campbell, perfect bloom, steady, and faultless, but beaten in size; 3, Perrie; 4, McEay; 5, McFarlane; 6, Morrison. A.O. BRIT. HEN: 1, Campbell, nice steady Bramble, well mld., in the pink; 2, McEay, good Linnet, fine size and pencilling, very steady and good cond. A.O.V. BRIT.: 1, McEay, lovely Redstart, in faultless feather, magnificent blending of col., wins well; 2, Campbell, good Yellowhammer, deep rich col. and distinct head lines, steady, and good size; 3, Smith, good Bramble, fine size and col., rich markings and well-defined spangling; 4, Melvin, good Blackbird, in perfect feather; 5, Boag. FOR.: 1, W. P. Campbell, capital Goldf., rich square deep crimson blaze, fine cheeks, deep yellow wings, and nicely battened and tanned. SELL: 1, A. Thomson; 2, Campbell; 3, McEay; 4, Thomson; 5, Hardie; 6, Melvin. GIFT: 1, McGregor, buff Nor.; 2, Rundell, Mule.

GLASGOW.

Annual Show of the Glasgow and West of Scotland C.B.S., Oct. 30, in the Good Templars' Hall. A very suitable one for an exhibition, being roomy, with good light, and free from draughts, the hall is well known by all Glasgow fanciers, and has been the scene of many a conflict. The classification was a splendid one, and was well supported by members, particularly in Norwich, which held the supreme position for quality, as well as numbers. The unlighted were a grand lot, many will be heard of later. British came next and contained a few choice specimens, but still this section is lagging behind in comparison with the good old days. Borders were few, but good. The management was all that could be wished; everyone doing his bit and doing it well. The secretarial duties were in the hands of Mr. A. H. Chalmers, whom we found courteous and obliging to all. He had all arrangements in good order, and was well backed up by such capable fanciers as President, Mr. Frank Taylor; Vice-Pres., Mr. A. Maxwell; committee, Messrs. Brown, Barron, Braid, Campbell, J. Chalmers, A. Chalmers, Martin, Park, Sloan, Swan, Craig, Webster, and E. Hadley. This being the first show of the season in Glasgow, the society reaped a substantial gain by being early in the field. The early bird gets the worm. The entry totalled about 250. Special winners: Two gold medals, Ferguson cup, and silver medal, best unlighted bird, Martin; gold medal, best old bird and S.P.C. medal, Maxwell; gold medal, best Brit, Webster; silver medal, best For. and Harnon cup, best Yorks, Park; Jarvie cup, Cairns; Stewart cup and gold medal, best Nor., Hadley. The judges were: Nor. and Crest., Mr. P. Houston, Glasgow; Yorks and Bord., Mr. K. Anderson, Parwick; Brit. and For., Mr. H. Jamieson, Glasgow; and they all acquitted themselves well.

YOUNG BIRDS, NOR. CL. YELL. CK. LOANHEAD C.B.S.

Ninth annual show, Oct. 9. Entries were down a little, but quality was well maintained in all sections. Judges: A. Paterson, Edinburgh, Scotch Fancies; J. Auld, Bannockburn, Bord.; and W. R. Finnie, Edinburgh, Nor., Mules, and Brit. Their decisions were well received. Provost Williamson and Mrs. W. presented the cups and medals to winners. The show was very well patronized, and a fair sum will go to the comfort fund of local lads serving at the Front. There was a good display of Scots Fancy, Borders, Norwich, Mules, and British. Cup and gold medal for best Scots Fancy was won by Mr. Alex. Bell, Liberton, with a good Buff Piebald cock, Norwich cup and gold medal, Mr. Alan Bell, Liberton, with a nice Clear Buff cock, Border cup and gold medal and B.F.C.C. medal, W. B. Smart, with a Buff cock, and gold medal for best Brit., Mr. Alex. Gilchrist, with a Goldie Mule.

TONG.

Tong C.B.S. held its 3rd annual exhibition of Canaries, Oct. 30, in the Dudley Hill Council Schools. The room is an ideal one for a show of this description. Entries numbered 299, only moderate for a Union show, but quality was quite up to the standard. The strongest classes were the unlighted and the Green marked in the Novice section, seven classes having an average of 15 per class. The novices were, in fact, the mainstay of the show. The Society has in Mr. W. Walker one of the best of secretaries, and he got through his duties in a very business-like manner. The show stewards were Messrs. L. Hodgson and Son. The working committee, Messrs. J. Firth, Atkinson, Jowett, Robertshaw, Casey, Pacey, Baker, Raper, and Wardman, did their work well, and the society must feel proud to have such a good lot of workers. The fog seemed to keep the fanciers away, as the gate was not one of the best, and claims were very few, which did not improve matters. Mr. H. Sutcliffe, Windhill, judged, and finished his work in good time. The prize-money was paid out in the show-room to all winners who attended the show. The packing and sending away was got through without a hitch, a credit to all the workers, besides being satisfactory to exhibitors.

RICHMOND C.B.S.

3rd annual show, Nov. 8, St. John's Hall. Entries, 116, turned up far better than was expected; in fact, it was a record for the society. Norwich and Yorks. made a remarkable show, some splendid specimens being staged. Mr. J. Phipps won special for best Norwich, and also best bird in show; Martin, best Nov. Nor.; Huxley, best Yorks.; and Colin Brown, best Nov. Yorks. Borders made a poor show, but what few were staged were good. Mr. E. Randall took special in the section. There was a nice class of British, and Mrs. Eagle secured special with a grand Chaffinch, which does her great credit, she having reared the bird from the nest. Mr. F. Snow's Mules were again on show, the winner being much admired. There was a good gate, the room being packed during the evening. The Club is lucky in possessing such enthusiastic members, nearly everyone taking a hand at the work during the evening. Mr. J. Robson judged. Sandiford's medal was secured by the Sec. with a fine yellow Norwich.

POPLAR C.B.S.

Annual show, All Hallows School-room, Oct. 30. Entries far exceeded those of recent years, 149 birds being staged, while quality also showed marked improvement, and the birds were well up to the standard. The Norwich classes were well supported. Mr. Leech taking both the Champion and Woodcock Cups for best unfigured, with a very nicely shaped vhc. buff. The Yorks. in champion classes were well to the fore, but the Novice section was practically left to Mr. Marloff, who won the Novice Yorkshire Cup outright, this being the third time in succession. The Amateur Cup was won by Mr. Gedde, and the challenge bowl for best Novice Norwich went to Mr. Bloomfield's unfigured yellow cock, a handsome bird that was much admired, and will probably be heard of again in good company. The Mule Cup again went to Mr. Joyce with a fine Linnet Mule, while the British Cup was won by Mr. Major's Linnet, which was put down in grand condition and was as steady as a rock. A special word of praise is due to Mr. Prisman, who took over the secretaryship early in the present year; it certainly looked as if he had worked wonders with the Society during that time. Mr. Woodcock rendered valuable aid with the arrangements, which were everything one could wish for, while that well-known personage, Mr. Laing, made an excellent show manager. Mr. J. Robson judged.

Welsh and West of England: exhibitors should not overlook Blaenavon show on Nov. 25. The schedule is reviewed in this issue.

We hear that Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. will hold its members' annual show at the Reinder Hotel, Rye Lane, Nov. 25. Mr. J. Robson, judge; Mr. A. G. Cant, show manager.

At our next meeting on Nov. 25, at Oldham Hall, there is to be a novice washing competition, commencing at 8, writes Mr. T. R. Jones, asst. sec. Green Canary Assoc. A hanging cage will be presented to the competitor who is judged to be the best and neatest in the competition. Local fanciers are cordially invited.

"Bird Notes," the journal of the Foreign Bird Club, for October contains many interesting articles, notable among which is an account by the Marquis of Tavistock of his attempts to acclimatize foreign finches and softbills at liberty. The issue contains three delightful photographs of Pekin Robins, with notes on the species by Messrs. G. E. Low and W. T. Page.

The patronage of the Welsh C.B.C. has been given to the following societies, writes Mr. A. E. Brown: Cardiff Nov. 17, Blaenavon Nov. 25, Aberaman Dec. 2. Will members please make their entries early, by so doing they will greatly assist the respective secretaries. If anyone has not received a schedule, please apply to the secs., whose names and addresses appear in CAGE BIRDS advertisements.

The representative character of the City and Suburban A.C.B. shows, both as to quality and number of exhibits, is alone sufficient to ensure the usual good attendance of visitors. The unfortunate curtailment of the normal London fixtures' list is an additional reason why no Metropolitan lover of birds should miss the society's annual event, which is being held at the Church Institute, 60, Paddington Street, Marylebone, W., next Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 24 and 25. Note the dates. 96 classes of birds will be on exhibition, and these embrace all varieties of Canaries, Hybrids, British birds, and Foreign birds.—Advt.

OBITUARY.

The members of the South Moor Social Club, writes Mr. G. Lane, sec., desire to express their sympathy with one of their members, H. Roxborough, in his sad bereavement through the death of his little daughter. As a keen fancier, other clubs I am sure will sympathise with him.

MR. W. R. WALL (Brighton).

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. Will H. Gibb, hon. sec. Brighton C.B.A., that I announce the death of Mr. W. R. Wall at the age of 47. For many years he had been an ardent fancier, Yorkshires being his chief fancy. He had been a member of the Brighton and Hove C.B.A. practically from its start, and for several years had been on the committee, ever ready to assist in the many ways open to him as an officer of a cage-bird club. He leaves a widow and son, to whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

The opening article in "British Birds" for November (Messrs. Witherby, High Holborn, one shilling monthly) is a short account of the work of the late Richard M. Barrington, Ireland's leading ornithologist, who died on Sept. 15 last. There are "Notes on the moults and sequence of plumage in some British ducks," by F. W. Smalley, "Notes on the Great Northern Diver," by E. B. Dunlop, "The Moults of the British Passeres" (Part 1); by H. F. Witherby, and the usual "Notes."

The November issue of the "Avicultural Magazine," the organ of the Avicultural Society, contains the names of the officers for 1915-16, a list of members, the rules of the Society, and the names of winners of the Society's medals. Among the several interesting articles are accounts of breeding successes with various species of foreign birds. Mr. A. Pam contributes some practical and useful hints bearing on the transport of birds on board ship, and Dr. Hopkinson's exceedingly useful list of English names for the Parrots is continued.

Crossbills Breeding in England.

It is recorded in the November issue of "British Birds" that the Crossbill has now bred in Suffolk for six years in succession.

Ten Shilling Special for a Yellowhammer.

At the Cardiff show, Nov. 25, a class is provided especially for Buntings, and that sterling lover of the Yellowhammer, Mrs. L. Dalton, is giving a cash prize of 10s. for the best Yellowhammer out of the money.

Charity Show at Southend.

The Southend C.B.S. is holding its annual show on Nov. 24 and 25, at the Blue Boar Hotel, Prittlewell, open to the borough of Southend, write Messrs. Deer and Cundy, hon. secs. Mr. J. Dewhurst, London, will judge, and the members are showing over a hundred Yorkshires entirely for the benefit of the Red Cross Society.

The Paper for Results

AN APPRECIATION OF "CAGE BIRDS" AS A WONDERFUL ADVERTISING MEDIUM.

Sir,—May I through your columns crave indulgence from the scores and scores of answers I have had to my advertisement of last week? I have never had such a bewildering experience before in all my life. I have had postal orders, money orders, cheques, notes and coin, until I have a drawer full. I would point out I keep no private secretary to deal with a mass of correspondence that would puzzle a cabinet minister by its bulk! I am particularly busy just now owing to the cold snap, and then every letter has to be carefully gone into. Many of the birds I could have sold 4 or 5 times over, and in several cases I can supply part of a client's order, but not the whole. Then when the birds are allotted there will be the catching up, sorting out into old and young, hens and cocks, and so forth, especially the packing up and despatching, if and when the weather is suitable. I will not submit my birds to any suffering on a long journey if I can possibly avoid it. I must apologise for taking up so much valuable space, but I never for one moment anticipated such an extraordinary rush of business from one advertisement. It only shows the value of "CAGE BIRDS" as an advertising medium. (Dr.) L. LOVELL KEAYS.

Cardiff's Record.

We hear that Cardiff has received a record entry of 901.

A Long-lived Tanager.

In the "Agricultural Magazine" for Nov. Dr. A. G. Butler records the death of his Scarlet Tanager at the age of 18½ years.

Three Guinea for a Goldfinch.

We hear from Mr. J. Bobbett, Bridgwater, that his Goldfinch which won 1st at Cheltenham show was claimed at catalogue price, three guineas.

Prize-money Paid.

We are informed that prize-money has been paid in respect of the following shows; if any winners have been overlooked, they should apply to the respective secretaries: Leicester Hand-in-Hand, Hartlepool.

No Nuisance Then!

To show how uncommon Starlings were in our neighbourhood sixty or seventy years ago, says a writer in the "Newcastle Chronicle," it may be mentioned that in 1852 a few pairs nested in the high rock at Claxheugh, near Hylton, and they were regarded as so great a curiosity that on Sunday mornings many persons walked from Sunderland to see them.

Budgerigars and Royalty.

At the stall of tame birds at the "Women and their Work" Exhibition at Knightsbridge, says the "Daily Express," Queen Alexandra took a Budgerigar on her finger and walked with it to other stalls. Princess Victoria mentioned that she already possessed two of these birds, which, though caught in a wild state, can be rendered so tame that they run up and down the plants in a house.

A Lady Judge.

At the show of the Dartford F.A. held in the Assembly Rooms, Nov. 23-24, the cage birds will be judged by a lady, Miss A. Reeves. In other hobbies men have by no means a monopoly of judicial appointments; in the doggy world, for instance, lady judges frequently officiate; but this is, we think, the first time the cage birds will have been asked to display their points to a judge of the gentler sex. The Dartford birds should appreciate the honour.

A Welsh Fancier Elected as Mayor.

I feel sure your readers, especially throughout South Wales, writes Mr. E. W. Allsopp, Cardiff, will be pleased to learn that Mr. G. T. Jones, well known in the Plainhead Fancy, has been elected Mayor of Brecon. During his three years as a Councillor he has inspired confidence, and he will no doubt render good service to Brecon as its Mayor.

[We are sure that fanciers in general will join us in congratulations to Mr. Jones upon the honour which has been bestowed upon him by his fellow citizens.—EDITOR, CAGE BIRDS.]

THE BIRDKEEPERS' ROLL OF HONOUR.

Derby C.B.S.

Sir,—The following are serving in the Forces:—J. Baker, W. Woolley, A. Murphy, F. King, A. King.—W. JORDAN, Hon. Sec.

East Ardsley C.B.S.

Sir,—The above society has contributed two more of its members to the colours, Dr. B. G. Ewing, R.A.M.C., our president, and Wm. Cummings, K.O.Y.L.T.—A. Walton, Sec.

Houghton-le-Spring C.B.S.

Sir,—The following members of our society have joined H.M. Army since our last show: Mr. J. Turnbull, Treas., and J. G. Allan and J. Appleby.

R. H. Dixon, Sec.

Whitburn C.B.S.

Sir,—Owing to five of our past committee having joined the Army, we are not holding our show this year. The names are A. McLaren, R. Whiteford, A. Johnstone, R. Clelland, and T. Lambie.—R. Lambie.

WINDING UP MY EASY TERM SYSTEM DURING THE WAR.

Mr. H. Moore, of the Lambeth Aviaries, gives a short sketch of his career, and appoints "CAGE BIRDS" the receiver of money due under his easy-purchase system.

READERS and old clients will be surprised to hear, by the time this is in print I shall be serving my country with the boys at the front. I have had the pleasure of starting many a youth and man in the Fancy with my easy-term system. They have started perhaps with one singing Canary, and afterwards it has led in many cases to orders of outdoor aviaries and a nice collection of birds.

When a boy at school I took a great interest in my father's stock of birds, which he kept for the pleasure that the hobby gave him. I soon learned a great deal about the Fancy, my particular interest being in ailing birds. Many a bird that was given up as being sure to die was entrusted to me, and in nearly every case I was successful in seeing my patient slowly recover under my treatment.

When it was time for me to begin to earn my own living, I got into touch with that enthusiastic foreign bird breeder, Mr. G. E. Rattigan, Vice-President of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, the son of Lady and Sir William Rattigan, M.P., and after a few weeks this gentleman made me his chief aviary attendant.

A Pleasant Time.

The years that followed, whilst I was working in Mr. Rattigan's aviaries (all of which were outdoors) were very pleasant. We were very successful in rearing some of the most delicate foreign birds. We were also successful on the show bench, but as the birds were so very rare, and valuable, we did not think it worth the while to risk showing them at the shows, although people came from all over the world to see Mr. Rattigan's collection.

When Mr. Rattigan retired into the country with his birds, not wishing for a country life just then, I reluctantly left his service, and the next week found me as an assistant in the Zoological department at a London store; what a change! If a bird fell suddenly ill in Mr. Rattigan's aviaries, or if it had been fighting, I was able to take it up and see that it had treatment at once, but at the stores everything was for profit, if a bird was dying the department would sooner see it sold than be the loser of its price. I soon got sick of seeing how things went on, and I thought if I had the power I could alter much, and so help the birds which were caged up.

I put my plans into execution, wrote to the secretary, and stated I would sooner leave than continue to serve. I got my bullet home by doing this, for I was soon in the upstairs office before all the heads of the company, and I was given full power to act as I wished. Having now gained the power, I did my best for the comforts of the birds and animals, but unfortunately I did not stop long, as I bettered myself at a dog bureau in Bond Street, W.

"On His Own."

After being here a short time, I came into a small amount of money, so I decided to start on my own, and, as readers of CAGE BIRDS know, for a shilling per week they could be supplied through my system with anything in the Fancy. Some fanciers have run up a large account, and the total due to us from all our clients amounts to hundreds of pounds.

This is what we propose to do. Any client can send his or her instalment to the Editor of CAGE BIRDS. The Editor will deduct ten per cent. from the amounts sent to him, and send the balance of the instalment to us. We will then send a receipt for the full amount the client sent to Editor, and deduct that amount from the client's account. The Editor can use the ten per cent. in any way he chooses after taking his expenses out of it.

It would be disastrous for the Fancy if all birdy people joined the Army, but no doubt a few of us can be spared to fight the country's battles, to keep our flag flying.

Whilst I am away, should I come across any birdy items of interest to readers of CAGE BIRDS I will send it with pleasure. My business will be kept in order by my secretary and staff, and the services of Mr. Warlow, my solicitor, of 16, Regent Street, W., will be retained. My life will afterwards be devoted to birds and animals should I come through alive. In conclusion, I wish all fanciers success through these trying times, and trust we will have better times when the war is over.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the bird mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

A COCK BULLFINCH FATHERS TWO HYBRIDS.

Sir Luke White, M.P. for the Buckrose division of the E. Riding of Yorkshire, and Deputy Lieutenant of the County, succeeds in his aviaries in breeding with a Cock Bullfinch and two hen Goldfinches.

It was with much interest that we read last week the appended letter addressed to us by Sir Luke White, M.P., of Driffield, East Yorkshire.

"I have this year succeeded in bringing up two Hybrids from a cock Bullfinch and a hen Goldfinch. I have an outdoor aviary, and the nest was built in a shrub inside the aviary—I enclose photo. As a regular reader of CAGE BIRDS I know that it is a most valuable medium to those who possess aviaries, and your readers may like to know of the breeding of these two Hybrids, a somewhat rare occurrence, I understand."

We replied at once congratulating Sir Luke White on what is indeed a rare happening, and said that if he could spare the time to give further details we were sure our readers would much appreciate his kindness. With the latter request he most courteously and promptly complied, and it is with pleasure we print Sir Luke's narrative below.

We may add that the cock Bullfinch has always been something of a mystery as a breeder in captivity, especially so when tried in a cage. Thousands of fanciers have put him up with various mates, but always with the one disappointing result—unfertilized eggs. In the list of "possible crosses" given in the official Year Book of the National British Bird and Mule Club, the male Bullie is mentioned only once, i.e., cock Bullfinch to hen Redpoll. We take it, therefore, that there is evidence of the latter mating having been successful; the only other successful mating of which we have heard is with the hen Canary, though the cases seem to be more or less doubtful ones of German origin, no young, we think, having been reared to maturity in the United Kingdom.

Sir Luke White Gives Details.

Driffield, Nov. 13, 1915.

In reply to yours asking for some particulars as to the breeding of the two Hybrids from cock Bullfinch and hen Goldfinch, I may state that early in 1914 I bought a cock Bullfinch and two hen Goldfinches with a view to breeding Hybrids. I placed the cock Bullfinch and one of the hen Goldfinches in a breeding cage; the other hen Goldfinch I put in my aviary. I had no success, and at the end of the breeding season of last year the pair were removed to the aviary, which comprises seed-eating birds, viz., Canaries, Siskins, Linnets, Budgerigars, Green Singing Finches, etc.

This year (1915) in the breeding season my gardener called my attention to the cock Bullfinch—the only Bullfinch in the aviary—having paired with one of the two hen Goldfinches. I was interested in watching developments.

A Model Husband.

These two birds built a nest in a shrub in the outer portion of the aviary—cock and hen both assisting. Further, I saw on many occasions the cock Bullfinch not only feeding the hen Goldfinch, but taking its turn on the nest.

There were three eggs and three young birds, but owing to stormy, wet weather, two of the youngsters died in the nest. One survived and was reared, both the cock Bullfinch and hen Goldfinch taking part in feeding this young one. The latter was placed in a cage, and is the one on the right of the photo I have sent. [We were not able to reproduce this particular photo.—Editor "C.B."]

A Leaning Towards Polygamy.

Whilst the hen Goldfinch was sitting, I noticed the cock Bullfinch pairing with the other hen Goldfinch, with the result that they built a nest in the covered portion of the aviary. There were three eggs, and two young ones resulted, but one of these died. The other was reared, and this was placed with the other one in the cage and is the Hybrid to the left in the photo.

Both birds are splendid in plumage and appearance. The first bird in appearance is more slender than the other one, the latter being more like a Bullfinch.

Doing His Bit.

I have on many occasions seen the cock Bullfinch—the only Bullfinch, as I have explained, in the aviary—not only feeding each of the hen Goldfinches, but sitting in turn on each of their nests, and also feeding both young birds. The cock Bullfinch is a very fine specimen, and is now, having moulted some time ago, in splendid colour and condition. I bought it last year from Mr. Fred Allen, of Hull, one of your advertisers. The two hen Goldfinches are also exceptionally nice birds.

Allow me to state that I do not sell any birds, but am giving these particulars solely for the benefit of your readers.

THE WEEKLY BATH.

A Cold Weather Amusement for Saturday Afternoons.

A BATH is just as necessary for birds as for humans, and Saturday afternoon is the time for this function in my aviary during the winter months. In the hot days of summer the birds get one every day.

It is instructive to note how differently they perform their ablutions. I fill a large tray with water with the chill taken off, to about an inch deep, and place it on a large square of wood which projects a few inches all round the tray. Then I find a comfortable seat a few yards back, light my pipe, and await developments.

First from the perches comes a dirty buff hen. This is purely swank on her part, as I have never yet seen her fairly in the water. Next a Goldfinch cock perches on the way rim and goes round and round, but keeps from wetting himself. Soon there are from twenty to thirty birds on the edge of the bath, but "nothing doing."

An Involuntary Plunge.

At length one of them in half turning round slips into the water, stands astonished a moment, and then flies to a perch. Then a little Gold Lizard hen plunges into the bath. Splash she goes, and throws the water over her back like a duck. This is the lead several of the others were waiting for, and at once about a dozen of my Rollers follow suit. The splashing is just lovely.

When they are sufficiently soaked, those that can fly up to the perches and preen themselves, and those that can't hop out and make for the corners of the aviary.

The Goldfinch now takes the stage. He has hopped round and round the bath, screwing up courage, and instead of slipping in from the side flies over the middle of the bath and drops in, stands on stilted legs for a moment, and then, letting himself go, has a right royal bath.

The remainder of the inmates of the aviary perform their ablutions in a desultory manner, some fluttering and splashing in a make-believe way, well out of reach of the water; others only drinking.

One of my birds, a non-capped Lizard cock, has never been known to have a bath. He gets on the topmost perch and "looks the other way" on washing days. He loathes water as a tramp does. These birdy differences furnish a world of amusement.—J. GRIMSHAW (Hale).

PAINTING AND ENAMELLING SHOW AND OTHER CAGES.

If you are making your own paint, secure one pound of white lead and a little patent driers (a teaspoonful should be sufficient). Now secure a paint pot, jelly pot, or any clean dish, into which put your white lead and patent driers, and break up the two into a thick paste with a putty knife by adding a little turpentine only. Do not overdo or reduce it with much turpentine at first, as the lead is much more easily broken into a paste by working it up stiff.

To make sure there is no sediment in the paint, you would require to run the paint through a very fine sieve, or a piece of muslin will do, but before you sieve it, reduce or thin the paint to working strength (which should be like cream). If you are using muslin as a sieve tie the material over the mouth of a clean pot, leaving it a little baggy, to allow it to hold the paint. Remove the sieve or muslin and your paint will be nice and clean, free from sediment, and ready for tinting to the required shade.

The Colours and the Brushes.

Procure a 2d. tube of ultramarine, and with your putty or palette knife work just a touch of this up into a small tin lid or old saucer by adding a few drops of turpentine, then pour the fluid into the lead and stir up well until you secure the shade you require.

For brushes you will require a number three sash tool, or an inch and a half fitch. Never load the brush too heavily, but rather use a little, and work it lightly, laying the paint as evenly and smoothly as you can. Now allow the paint to get thoroughly dry and hard (which it should be in about ten hours) after which give it a good rub over with a piece of medium sandpaper (No. 1 will do) and dust the cage well out. If you then wish to use the paint brush for the enamelling you must see that it is well washed out in turpentine before you dip it in the enamel.

Now for the enamelling. If you have trouble in securing the correct shade or tint, you can purchase the white enamel and tint it up with the same blue, and in the same manner as advised for the paint, but if you get it ready for use, see that you stir it well up. A good plan too, is to let the tin or pot stand a short time in hot water, you will find this makes the work much easier.

Carefully Avoid Dust.

Having given the inside of the cage a good coat over with the enamel, keep an eye on it for a short time, as some enamels are apt to flow too freely or to "run," as they term it in the trade. If you can secure a place free from dust, place the cage on its back (if need be place a piece of paper over it), but let the air play on it. Never shut the cage up while drying in a closet or confined place, as fresh air is as essential to drying paint as it is to live stock or human beings. Now let the cage stand for two days. Enamel takes much longer than paint to dry, and should not be much handled before three days.

As regards new cages, the same treatment would be followed out, but you require to bring up a ground of oil paint before applying the flat paint. Ordinary oil paint is got by using white lead and adding say one teaspoonful of patent driers to the pound of lead, and thinning it up by using equal parts "raw" linseed oil and turpentine.

Having got the paint well mixed up and tinted to the required shade, you would require to sieve it in the same manner as already described. Now give the new wood a coat of the oil paint (or the priming coat, as it is known to the trade). Let it dry and harden, and then sandpaper it all over. You will then putty up the nail holes or open joints before you apply the flattening.

By
R. T. Campbell
(Dunfermline).

THING is easy when once you know how to do it," and as many an amateur or novice is quite at sea in regards the principal factors of success in cage painting I propose in this short article to give anyone thus placed a few rudimentary facts and tips which, if followed out as near the letter as possible, should help him to overcome the difficulties he has so often stumbled at.

Nothing looks so harsh to the eye as a good specimen of a bird, be it Canary, British, Mule, Hybrid, or Foreign, staged in a badly-painted cage, or in a cage quite unsuited to bring out the colour of the bird. True, our judges are not supposed to take the cage into consideration, but one can hardly blame a judge who, given two birds of about equal merit, but one housed streets ahead of the other, accords his preference to the bird put down in the neatest and best finished cage.

Take the Tip in Time.

Look over your show reports weekly, and you will find our reporters backing me up in this assertion. You read "So-and-So, grand bird, wins well; 2nd, another good bird, badly staged, deserves a better cage," and the exhibitor of No. 2 wages war against judge and reporter alike. But we will suppose he has been showing a Norwich Plainhead, and has made up his mind that never again will the painting of his cage stand against him or the bird.

I am not acquainted with the English Norwich Plainhead show cage, but I fancy there would be no striking difference from the Scottish cage, and as we wish to settle the colour before we begin the job, allow me to say that the particular tint of the Scottish cage can be got by adding just a touch of ultramarine blue to the white lead. As most show cages, however, are finished in enamel, any good colourman or decorator can supply just the shade wanted if he is asked for "Hedge Sparrow Egg Blue." But we will take it that the reader wishes to tackle the job himself, and the following remarks are specially written for his guidance.

In the Beginning.

The cages that have to be renovated must first of all be given a good wash out, using a little disinfectant in the water. At the same time give them a good polish over with a piece of flat pumice stone, but if your cage be very rough, or should the old enamel be ruffled like the sad sea waves, then you must first of all get this planed down by using a piece of square-cut glass, or, better still, an old iron frame or disused jack-plane. After having levelled the enamel by "drawing" the iron, not pushing it, then proceed to wash and polish it with the pumice stone, then rinse the cage out with clean water.

If the paint or old ground work is in good repair, it will require but one coat of flat paint before enamelling, and as one pound of paint should be sufficient to do a dozen show cages, it is better to get your paint prepared by a tradesman, asking him to make it up flat (which is paint without oil added).

Yorkshires Likely to Breed Winners.

By
A. E. WINKUP
(Belfast).

A well-known Irish breeder of the "long and slim 'uns" tells how to select the parent birds to establish a winning strain.

BEFORE attempting to write a few words on the above subject, I would like to give my reason for so doing. Having been confined to bed for eight weeks with rheumatism, and having read every word of CAGE BIRDS, including all the advertisements, I thought I would make a few notes purely as an amusement, and hope that under the circumstances, the older and more experienced fanciers of this ever popular variety, will forgive me for the effort.

In selecting my stock, I prefer the hen to be as ideal a specimen as possible. Some advise the use of hens a little on the small side, provided they are all that could be desired in respect of type, quality, position, etc., but here I disagree.

I am a firm believer that the hen has as much influence in the production of size as the cock. My experience in using hens a little on the small side, paired to an extra large cock bird, is that they produce two kinds of birds, one often an ideal specimen; if, ah! I repeat the word "if," only a little longer, while the other kind is rather on the stout side, one which, although often a good stock bird, lacks that racy appearance which is so pronounced in an ideal Yorkshire.

Looking for Good Hens.

To breed this long, slim, racy, type of bird, I would advise an aspirant to be always on the qui vive. Visit as many shows as possible, and when he sees a good hen, probably a winner catalogued at a reasonable price, even if this price is rather more than he is accustomed to give, always to remember that the extra quality is worth treble the extra money he will be paying. Bear in mind that in a good class of birds it is often only a very little extra quality which separates the first bird from the last. A visit to a retiring fancier will sometimes result in the purchase of a few good birds, but he should not buy birds because they are cheap if he has as good at home.

Having obtained a few hens in the above way, we will now come to the cocks. I think we need not be so extravagant in this respect, for with so many good points in the hens it will not be quite so easy to go wrong. Your hens being longer than usual, it will not be necessary to use the extra large and generally, in a more or less degree, coarse cock. Do not mistake my meaning; I say do not use an extra large cock, and by this I do not mean that you should use a small bird. My ideal stock cock is one of standard length, 6½ ins., with as many good points as possible.

Don't forget when selecting a few such cocks to get them as good in colour as possible, as this is a point produced from the cock. Also get a little green blood, which is so essential for good colour, but don't pair two marked birds together unless you desire to produce heavily marked young. We have now got some birds balanced in size, and possessing type and quality, and these are likely to breed birds with fewer faults than the extra large cocks.

Having got our stock, how are we going to pair them? We transfer one of our hens, a beauty, into a show cage, and wonder which cock would be most suitable for her. After a little careful thought, a thing very necessary at this period, we realise we are making a mistake, for it would be much more judicious under the circumstances to match the hens to the cocks than vice versa.

Pair the Hen to the Cock.

Having come to this decision, we pick out a cock bird, and carefully scrutinise its weak points. We then turn to our hens, and select one which is extra strong in these weak points. This done, we possess a pair likely to breed a few winners. Next take each cock in turn, and in the selection of a hen for him carefully counterbalance every bad point; never pairing together two birds possessing the same faults.

Bad points I never like to overlook when selecting stock birds are bad heads, weak necks, fan tails, bad position, or birds not well up on leg, for if any of these faults once find their way into a strain they may take years to remove.

I am not going to dwell on the point of double buffing, although I might mention I have bred a few very good birds by so doing, but I think it a mistake, unless there is any special object in view. Weak necks and hollow shoulders can, with judicious selection, be overcome by double buffing, but one decided loss is colour, and if great care is not used in selection it is easy to also lose quality by the practice.

Having come to the conclusion that double buffing was a "frost" (no joke intended). I have not tried double yellowing, so I am unable to say anything for or against the practice.

With regard to inbreeding, this is a step that should only be taken with great caution. Never inbreed with any other birds but those possessing the most robust health. Always bear in mind the reason why you are inbreeding, namely, to fix a certain type; hence the necessity of having the type a perfect one. The birds selected should be practically perfect, for any faults either parent possessed would be reproduced in a more permanent and glaring manner. Provided that after a few years' breeding, during which the fancier has made strides in the right direction, has a thorough knowledge of his stock, and possesses the necessary healthy, typical birds, inbreeding may be indulged in to advantage.

When Inbreeding.

I think the better plan is to inbreed closely and rarely, in preference to more frequent pairings of more distantly related birds. I should advise pairing birds as closely related as father to daughter, son to mother, or even brother to sister. I give preference to the former pairing, because I find the best results are got when the cock bird is older than the hen, which would not be the case in either of the other two pairings. Again let me impress that any of the above suggested pairings should be of rare occurrence, otherwise the stamina of your strain will be reduced, and disaster is sure to follow.

I have no intention of here entering into the general management of the birds, but would like to give a few words of advice on the training of the young birds. How often have we visited shows and found birds left out of the cards that would be capable of winning if not so wild? Such birds are often bred by experienced fanciers who cannot, or often do not, find time for a little training.

Show cages should be hung on the flight cages from the time the young leave the parents, and as much time should be devoted to their handling as possible. Handling and talking to one's birds, I consider to be the most pleasant part of bird-keeping.

The Yorkshire being a bird of position, will benefit much by such treatment, and the owner's patience and trouble will be rewarded by his having reached his goal, that is, he has bred his own winners by the careful selection of his own stock birds.

In the Palmy Days of the Scots Fancy Canary

The Scottish Cage Bird Fancy in the days of long ago.

By "ST. GILES."

A quarter of a century! Twenty-five years. What a flood of memories float up from the misty distance, and for the moment obscure the stern realities of the present! What a deal has happened since then, and how few of the principal actors of that time remain with us still! Many have started on the "long lone trail" long ago; many have quitted the striving ranks of the fancy, and few remain who took part in the stirring events of those days, so long ago.

Years may mellow, but can never quench the fire that smoulders in a fancier's heart. Many of the later school have happy remembrances of those times, and of the men who were the means of making the fancy in Scotland what it is to-day, and to those, no doubt, the following rambling notes will make pleasurable reading.

Mr. Thomas Buchanan, Glasgow.

Twenty-five years. 'Twas about that time the fancy, from an exhibition point of view, made its start in earnest. Societies had been inaugurated in our principal cities, and public shows had come into vogue. True, the prize money was a very secondary consideration at these functions, for honour was the fancier's ambition in those days. To my way of thinking it was a purer and more elevating fancy then, although it had not gained public favour.

Only one variety of Canary was exhibited, although the different colours gave opportunities for extended classification. The Glasgow Don had been the king of the fancy before this, and was so still, and I believe as far as Scotia is concerned is so even now. Norwich were in the struggling stage, and were only just tolerated by the powers that were. British birds were not deemed worthy of a place on the schedules, and their keeping was confined to cobblers and such like. Weavers were the leading breeders of the birds of circle.

There is no doubt whatever that, twenty-five years ago, the "Father of the Fancy" was Mr. Thomas Buchanan, of Glasgow, an honourable appellation to which no one ever disputed his right. He was one of the giants of the fancy, one of the men that brought the fancy into the glare of public light and lifted it from what it was once considered, a doubtful kind of pastime, to one worthy of recognition and honour, providing many enjoyable hours to many thousands of jaded, hard-working men; a fancy that brings sweetness and pleasure to many a home.

Mr. Buchanan was really an Englishman, although truly Scottish in everything he did, owing to his long connection with "the land o' cakes" and its all-absorbing environments. He was born at Newcastle-on-Tyne on 1st April, 1815, but was removed to Glasgow as a boy, and there he grew into manhood and died at a ripe old age.

Organised Glasgow's First Show.

From his school days he was a lover of bird life, and at the early age of sixteen we find him breeding and rearing Canaries. He was the organizer of the first open show in Glasgow, which was held in the Audit Rooms of the Lyceum, Nelson Street. It was essentially a very primitive affair, the admission was threepence, and there was no prize money or prize cards. It was the love of the fancy that predominated in those days, and the knowledge that one owned a good bird was all satisfying to the most ambitious fancier.

Mr. Buchanan was one of the genial sort, kind-hearted, perhaps, almost to a fault, but honest as the day was long. He was a general favourite, and did a deal of good work, assisting and advising the younger fanciers who were cropping up at an astonishing rate. Prohibitive prices were not known then, and a great number of the beginners got their first birds without exchanging the miserable coin of the realm for them.

For fifty years he enjoyed an untarnished reputation for honour and integrity. His knowledge of shows was by no means superficial, as he was the hardest worker amongst them all, and the success of these early Glasgow exhibitions was entirely due to his persistent determination, his administrative abilities, and his general efficient management.

The Busy Man's Leisure.

He was a lapidary by profession, the same as his father before him and as his sons were after him, being principal of Messrs. Buchanan and Sons, Lapidaries, Glasgow. In spite of the great amount of time he devoted to his birds he was a close attender to his business, bearing out again the truth of the saying that the busiest man has the most leisure.

It may be said he died in harness, for on the morning of his death, May 22, 1888, he had gone to his place of business at Morrison's Court, but, feeling unwell, he returned to his home, Maxwell Hall, Pollok Street, where he expired within half an hour from syncope of the heart.

He was over seventy-three years of age, and had spent sixty years in Glasgow. He was the most useful, earnest, and enthusiastic ornithologist that has graced the Canary fancy of Scotland. He was buried in the Southern Necropolis, Glasgow, when a huge concourse of fanciers followed him to his last resting place.

Honours had been showered upon him in his later days by his loving and admiring supporters, but the old man wore them with becoming modesty. In November, 1859, the West of Scotland Ornithological Association presented him with a piece of silver plate for valuable services rendered as secretary, and again the next year he was the recipient of another valuable piece of silver plate, which was presented to him for the great work he was rendering in the interests of the fancy at large. In May, 1876, he received a gold watch and appendages, which were subscribed for by the Glasgow and country fanciers. Amongst the other presentations he received was a handsome mounted walking stick from the old Paisley Club to mark their high esteem of him as a judge. The Glasgow fanciers, on the occasion of their annual dinner in 1884, again presented him with a handsome mounted walking stick.

BIRDS AS TAME AS DOGS.

A Chaffinch Figures in a Charming Incident.

I THINK it may interest your readers who are fond of British birds to have my experience. Some years ago I brought up a Chaffinch from the nest, and kept his cage low down near a table by the side of a window. I constantly when passing just spoke to him endearingly, often only just a word, calling him by name. He grew so attached to me that after an absence from home of three weeks, upon my return, about ten o'clock at night, I went straight up to his cage and called him by name. He instantly woke up and came to the side of his cage nearest to me, hung on to the wires and sang passionately to me.

Off to the Woods.

Some time after that I found my pet was rather a trial, through his loud song, to a relative who was studying to pass some examinations. Though I was never asked to part with him, I felt it would be right to do so. I decided that I could not sell him, so one day, with a sister, I went to the wood close by, taking him with us. We spent the day there, having our luncheon and reading, with my pet quite free, amusing himself at our feet, playing with the tags of our shoelaces, or catching flies as they passed. I said to my sister, if he does not fly away I shall take him home again. Just as we were thinking about it, a handsome Chaffinch flew down close by, daring my bird to show fight. They both went away, and I saw no more of my pet.

This bird had not been in the habit of coming in and out of his cage at all in my home, and yet with all the enticements of the woods around him, the whole of that day he never left us, although he was out of his cage all the time.

I could give an instance of even a tamer bird I had once, and I should like to add that birds reared from the nest grow as tame and loving as dogs. (Mrs.) M. J. PARKER (Hailsham).

GIVING THE CHAMPIONS A "GOOD RACE."

Some Hints for Novices, Particularly on the Linnet.

MANY catch or buy British Finches, and have the misfortune to lose some. In order to aid them, I wish to give my method of keeping these birds. If I brought birds from the South to the North of England, as plenty do, I would first boil their water. Birds taken in your own district probably don't need it. This is my first consideration.

My stock food, speaking generally, for Hardbills (say Greenfinches, Bullfinches, Chaffinches, Bramblingfinches, Redpolls, Siskins, Twites, Goldfinches and Linnets) would be: 2 parts English rape, 1 1/2 parts summer rape, 1 part teazle, 1 part Spanish canary, 1/2 part hemp, 1/4 part linseed. I prefer to use the best quality seeds only; the best is the cheapest in the end.

Plenty of people put freshly taken birds into a dark corner of the room at first, because they are wild. This is a mistake. Put them in a pretty large cage where there is plenty of light, and they will find their food and water easily and settle down more quickly.

Some birds sometimes sit "thick." This is due to the change of food and water. To get over this I give them 6 drops of syrup of buckthorn in their drinking-water, and soon see a change.

A few words to Linnet fanciers, especially novice exhibitors. In order to rise to be a champion, study the following. Secure the largest bird you can, and see that it has good colour, good markings, good whites in wings and tail, and a good head. Get it perfectly steady. To do this either wash it yourself or get someone to wash it for you, or use the spray often, as I contend water is the best steadiest. Handle the cage of the bird often and place it in a position, free from draughts, where you pass frequently.

When exhibiting, see that you have the bird properly staged, as this is where a lot fail. The novice is just as likely to get a good bird as the champion, but by staging it badly the bird may get passed by the judge. My medicine for these birds either before or after the show, is 6 drops of syrup of buckthorn in their water. By using my stock mixture and acting on the other hints, I feel sure the novice will give the champion a good race.—JOHN L. SIMPSON (Wallsend-on-Tyne).

HOW I BECAME A BIRD-KEEPER.

"CAGE BIRDS" Really Did It.

ONE cold morning in February I was surprised by hearing something fluttering about the office in which I work, and on looking about me I discovered a little bird in the far corner of the room. I picked it up and examined it, and I found it had somehow or other broken its wing. I came to the conclusion it was a bird which had been caged up but had regained its liberty.

I had no idea as to what kind of bird it was, but I could tell by the greenish colour of its plumage that it was something more than an ordinary House Sparrow. I put the little creature in a box, supplied it with a few bread crumbs, and made it as comfortable as circumstances would permit until office hours were over, and then I took my "capture" home. I went to the nearest bird-dealer and purchased a cage and learned from him that the bird was called a Greenfinch.

Well, time went on, and the bird's wounded wing seemed to be mending nicely, but you can imagine my disappointment when on arriving home one evening I discovered the little creature had managed to get loose, and had damaged its wing so badly that I was compelled out of sympathy to put an end to its existence. There I was left with the cage but without any occupant. However, I had got so attached to my little feathered friend that I determined to buy another, and this time my choice was a Linnet. I think I was blessed with misfortunes at this period, for I had only had my new pet about a couple of days when it succeeded in escaping out of the drinking hole of its cage.

After this I happened to be in a hair-dresser's shop, and came across a copy of CAGE BIRDS, and after scanning the adverts I decided I would start Canary breeding straight away. I purchased a couple of Roller hens and a cock. To-day I have a stand full of cages neatly enamelled. I have succeeded this past season in rearing four young Rollers, nothing very great, but I am determined to do better next year with a bit of luck. My experience up to the present of bird keeping is that the more ill luck a fancier has the more he is determined to succeed.—W. DAVENPORT (Sheffield).

The Trouble of the Sweating Hen.

SIR,—I see Mr. L. Bastock scouts the idea of "sweating hens," and puts the blame entirely on the breeder and his management. Mr. B. must be a very fortunate fancier, and can be assured of my congratulations. But isn't it really a bit "too thick" to suggest that breeders of forty years' experience have not learnt anything in that period, and yet been troubled with sweaters?

Mr. B. may breed with comparatively common birds, but Crests and high-class hens are like Duchesses, who would not be exactly at home handling babies. I still believe it is the assimilation of the excretions that sets up the condition known as "sweating," and hope to see other opinions of old breeders on the matter.

Don't Forget Swansea's Charity Show.

SIR,—I should like to make an appeal to exhibitors who intend entering at our coming show on Nov. 25 for their liberal support, as we intend giving all profits to the local Red Cross Society. All specials are for birds out of the money, thus making an extra money prize, and one of these is 10s. for best Yellowhammer, out of the money (not to be won locally).

By a curious accident our printer omitted to put in schedule a silver cup, value £2 2s., for most points gained by six nominated birds in the Norwich or Yorkshire section, the word "cup" to be placed against each entry; cup to be won twice, not necessarily in succession. Fanciers who intend to enter, please note.

Breeding the Bearded Reedling in Captivity.

SIR,—I read with interest the "Twittering" of last week concerning the above matter. It seems to me to raise a very important point, viz., as to what constitutes captivity and what does not. I have no wish to depreciate the success of Mr. Richardson Carr in breeding the Bearded Reedling (or "Tit") at Tring, but I understand that the aviary there, in which the feat has been several times accomplished, is an extremely large one; in fact, a wired-in portion of the park, containing a pond of some size, with its accompanying reed beds and other natural advantages. This, I may say, I know only from the information of a friend with whom I talked of this matter. In such an aviary, of course, the parent birds would be able to find a deal of natural food, possibly a sufficiency to ensure the rearing of their young. I think that some distinction should certainly be made between confinement of this nature—after all, it is only a kind of restricted liberty—and the captivity which is repre-

Our artist has depicted two Linnet-Canary Hybrids, the one on the left being bred from a Yorkshire hen, and the other from a Norwich Plainhead hen. The influence of the mother on the type of the young is clearly seen. The stouter, more heavily built, Hybrid is, of course, the one likely to meet with success in present-day competition on the show-bench.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE MOTHER.

Greenfinches at Manchester Show.

SIR,—Re Manchester show, the reporter on Greenfinch class says my Greenfinch is a big buff. I want to contradict it, as it is a yellow, and the best yellow I have seen out. The next show he sees it at, let him look at it without spectacles. I do not know if he wanted to hurt me, but I call it mean, without the mention of the scales.

The Novice with the Nets.

Some Advice Wanted.

SIR,—I have been out several times this season with my birds and net, but have always met with disappointment, catching only one or two, never any more. I and a friend of mine went out yesterday in the afternoon, it being the one day per week on which we leave off work at 1 p.m. By 2 p.m. we got to a stubble, where we had permission to catch with our Linnets and nets. My friend went along one side of the field and I went the other side. There were plenty of Linnets in the field; in fact there were birds of every description. My friend was the first to have a pull at the line, but he pulled with such strength that he broke the pull line. I was sorry to see it, but I could not help laughing. It frightened the birds for a time, and they would not come near us. We had to pick up our things just after 4 p.m., as the birds were going to roost, with the poor result—one hen Linnet between us.

Now could any of your readers kindly inform me how to train a bird to ride the flirt stick, and what feed to place in the net at this time of the year for Linnet catching. I noticed in CAGE BIRDS a few weeks back Mr. H. J. Chick said that bird-catchers never take the trouble to gather wild seeds, but I should say they must do, or what would they have to put in their nets when out catching?

I should be glad if some experienced bird-catcher would give me some advice through the correspondence columns of CAGE BIRDS, as I am only a novice at the game, although I have been in the Fancy some years. I shall be pleased if some bird-fancier will help me in the matter.

A Big Provincial Show Proposed.

SIR,—As we are not to have a National show at the Crystal Palace for the second season, surely a provincial society might step forward and provide us with a National show say early in February. What does Mr. Metcalfe, of Liverpool, say; or Manchester, Sheffield, or Nottingham? A useful and charitable purpose might be served by holding such a show, and I feel sure success would attend it.

EXHIBITOR.

sented by the garden aviary, more or less skilfully contrived, which is all that the ordinary aviculturist has at his command. In the case of Dr. Keay's the Reedlings had to make the best of a restricted space and the artificial and live foods supplied by their enthusiastic owner.

Mr. Richardson Carr seems clearly the first to have bred the Bearded Reedling in "confinement." Taking all the circumstances into consideration, however, it seems to me that Dr. Lovell-Keays is clearly entitled to claim that he is the first to breed this species in captivity, in the proper sense of the latter term.

A Frank Apology for a Mistaken Protest at Falkirk.

SIR,—At the Falkirk O.S. show on Nov. 6 Mr. Wright lodged a protest against Mr. Sharp for showing a year-old bird in the young bird class. Would you insert in CAGE BIRDS his apology, which I enclose?

W. NIVEN.

[The letter appears below.—Editor CAGE BIRDS.]

Dear Mr. Niven,—I take this my first opportunity to apologise for the statement I made in connection with crest-bred cock, and I can assure you I feel very sorry for what I said at the time. But I gave you what was my honest opinion at the time, and I hope you and the owner of the bird will accept this in the spirit in which it is given. I shall leave it to you to make any use of this that you think best for the good of the Society.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Breeding from a Dark-beaked Goldfinch.

Sir, I have a nice cock Goldfinch, and this year, in March, I put him with a hen Canary, while his beak was quite dark. The Canary laid four eggs, and brought out two young ones, the Finch's beak still remaining dark. I should like to know if other fanciers have had a similar experience. I had another hen Canary that wanted to nest, so I gave her a nesting pen and material, and when her nest was nearly made, I put in a cock Canary, and saw him serve her five times. I took him away from her, and two days later she started laying, hatched four nice birds, and they were all reared. Another fancier told me that this was something that many would like to know, and it might be of interest to other novices than myself to know that one can breed with a dark-beaked Finch, and also that one need only put the cock Canary in for one period to secure a nest of young birds.

A Crisis at Watford.

Sir, I was greatly surprised when visiting Watford on Saturday last to hear that the hall at the Conservative Club had been commandeered by the military authorities for billeting purposes. By some strange coincidence several members of the Committee found their way to Mr. Goodall's shop, and we had an informal meeting to consider what steps should be taken, as we were very reluctant to cancel the fixture. Our printer had given us a few likely places, and these will be enquired into at once. On calling at the Conservative Club, the secretary, I regret, confirmed the report, and informed us that the hall was to be ready for occupation by Tuesday. We then enquired at the Kingham Hall, and found that this had been earmarked by the military a month ago, but nothing further had transpired; the hall keeper says that the billeting officer had promised to let them know in a few days. If we can possibly secure this hall it will be a most ideal place, as it is the largest and most spacious in the town, being well lighted and heated, and capable of staging quite 1,500 birds. Our secretary will make application for the same, and we hope to make some definite arrangements this week end.

R. J. PRETTY.

Herbert J. Chick on Himself and Some Others.

Sir, Mr. Holmes speaks of "running down" Mr. Chick. I have not done anything of the sort. I am taking him at his own valuation, and everybody knows that Mr. Chick first started the "running down" business in this correspondence, and at the same time boasted about the great things he had done. I don't say that he is not "good, honest, and straightforward," and everything else that is nice, but I do say that he has offended many by his tactless and uncalled for criticisms of others (as witness the case of Mrs. Dalton). He should be a little more sympathetic towards fellow fanciers and judges, and then there would be no danger of him being thought a sort of hot-headed wind-bag. Surely there are plenty of others who have done much good for the Fancy; yet do you hear them shouting about it? I think not.

Mr. Chick himself says that I am "jealous" of him. Well, he makes a mistake here. He thinks I am somebody else, so evidently from this he knows of others who do not like him and his ways. I do not care how many "big winners" he has sold. Has he, by the way, been trying to get a free advertisement so that he can get shut of a few more? I have no permission to bring other local fanciers into this, but what I have said is the truth. I have on several occasions been told that when Mr. Chick has been visiting shows away from Nottingham he has made himself conspicuous by his loud and contemptuous remarks about the judging. I feel sure of one thing, however, and that is that this kind of thing will not help him to get what he seems to covet, namely, the fees for judging all the shows.

HYSON GREEN.

Sir, Allow me a few lines in your valuable paper in answer to Mr. Chick, where he states he can prove up to the hilt the reason of many members leaving the Nottingham Society about eight years ago, and the reason it has got to "so low an ebb." What does Mr. Chick know about the society, except by hearsay? He has not been a member for over eight years, in fact not since the time he apologised in CAGE BIRDS for his own indiscretion.

I should like to point out to him that we have had some of the most successful shows in the country since that time. If not in great numbers, we have had the best quality of exhibits it has been possible to put down, and we have given the finest prize list. The only reasons we have not had our annual shows in 1914-15 are the difficulties of transit, and the fact of our hall being occupied by the military authorities. We have paid our deposit and engaged the hall for both shows, and been forced to forego holding same for the reasons stated.

We have had amalgamated shows both seasons which have been a complete success, and further we have, at the present time a larger cash balance than I ever remember. Does this look like a "low ebb"?

I have no personal feeling against Mr. Chick, but I do not like to see him trying to pull down that which he has in no way helped to build up, and, by so doing misleading the Fancy as to the position of the Nottingham and Notts O.S. We still have some of the most enthusiastic and successful exhibitors with us, and of these we are proud. There are quite a number of our old members who have gone into businesses in which they have been so successful that they have not the time at their disposal to devote to the society as formerly, but they are always ready and willing to give a helping hand if needed. Several others of our number are with the colours doing their bit, thereby upholding the honour of Nottingham and their country. The members who are left are trying their best, each in his own way, to keep the flag flying.

Hints on Bird-catching Wanted.

Sir, Could any of the readers of CAGE BIRDS give me any advice as to catching Linnets, Chaffinches, or Bullfinches about the district of Liverpool? I am only a novice, and don't wish to catch for sale, but just for the interest in the hobby.

LOVER OF BIRDS.

"Teddy" Fuller on the War-path Again.

Ought the Present-day Exhibition Lancshires to be Abolished?

Sir, I was pleased to read your reporter's outspoken remarks on the Lancshires at Manchester. He says we miss the Yellow Plainheads. The exhibitors have none of the right sort, and what they have the Yorkshire breeders don't want, as they are "crest bred." He also says the Coppy seems to take everybody's fancy. I was there, but did not see a Coppy. What were there were Crests. Very few fanciers know what a Coppy should be like. I was very near my old friend Barker Clegg the short time he was judging. He said to me, "I must try and find what bit of Lancashire there is to be found." I replied, "You will not find much, old man; there are not many Lancashire breeders left, and most of those that are left are Crest and Crest-bred breeders!" I dare say I could find as many show birds as any two breeders in England, and not one showing Crest blood in it. But no showing for me, or selling (I can sell, as I have had several letters for them lately). I will show when I see something to show against. But it is no use showing Lancshires in "Crest" classes, as most so-called judges can only see a big rough bird with no quality. Good quality birds have not been seen for years. Will anyone tell me where the Lancashire properties were in the second buff Coppy? I could not find any. Fair crest on his head, short in body, and many a Norwich was longer in the body, legs, wings, and tail. Most of the birds in the classes were very short in tail; what is a Lancashire with a short Norwich tail?

The winner in the Plainhead class was the best Lancashire in the section, and it is not a good one. In this class was a Clear that the judge put at the bottom as soon as he saw it, saying it was a "Crest-bred." This bird, however, has been put first at a later show, the Manchester winner being second. What are we to make out of such judging? But then the latter judge is not a Lancashire judge. The same owner's "Buff Crest" was placed first in his class; this was the second so-called Buff Coppy at Manchester. Yet people ask, Why don't I show? Not me. If the L. and L.F.A. wants people to show, why doesn't it start and do something for the Lancashire bird? What's the good of breeders being members of this specialist club if they are breeders of clean-bred birds, as the club will do nothing, only take the subs. and grab specials. The birds don't matter. Anything will do for a show bird. I, for one, hope the day is not far distant when the Lancashire classes will be done away with and given a rest. Lancashire showing gets worse every year. The old bird is played out. If the classes were done away with for a bit we might get a new lot of Fanciers. The old ones have so much Crest in their stock that they will never breed a show Lancashire with the birds they have; let them take a tip from me.

EDWARD FULLER.

An Appeal for Darlington Show.

Sir, I would like to appeal to exhibitors for their support to the above cage bird show, in the Co-operative Hall, Nov. 27. This Society is the two old societies amalgamated and re-modelled. It is now a rising society, its membership is continually increasing, and it is composed of a hard-working secretary, committee, and members whose earnest wish is to make this a highly successful show. There is practically no other show for some distance on the same date. I think it is the first turn out for the judges this season, and I hope they will get some work to do, more than they can manage if possible, and we can then put others on to assist them.

Darlington is one of the best centres for train service, being on the main line between London and Edinburgh. The secretary, committee, and members will do all in their power to meet the wishes of exhibitors regarding attention to, and despatch of, their birds, and the hall is not far from the station. We hope to please everyone, so that we may have their support in future years. British and Foreign exhibitors need not be afraid to send their most valuable specimens. I expect to be able to spend some time at the show, perhaps the whole day, and I will do all I possibly can for the British and Foreign birds, and I will have a supply of mealworms and wasp grub on hand for them. I will also undertake to see them packed and despatched in a proper manner. Other fanciers will see that the Canaries, Mules, and Hybrids are also given proper attention. We shall also be pleased to see any fanciers who can possibly attend the show, and if they are strangers we hope they will make themselves known to us, and we will give them a hearty welcome. SERGT. J. FORSTER.

Intelligence in Birds.

Sir, Mr. Williams and I are kindred souls. His letter emphasizes what I have been saying all along, that birds possess just as much intelligence as one would expect them to possess. If he has followed this controversy from the start, he will have gathered that I never denied intelligence in birds. I cited the performing Redpoll, the talking Parrot, the thieving Jay, etc., and I could add many to the list. But what I have all along drawn the line at are such fairy tales as the Thrush story, the Ravens' parliament, and other yarns that compete with the romancing yarns of an octogenarian sea dog in their impossibility. Let me assure Mr. Williams that very few men in England have better opportunities than I for the study of birdlife. Eleven hours of every day of my life are spent amongst them; and if I don't see and learn something about birds with such facilities it is because my mind is singularly obtuse or because I am wanting in the faculty of observation.

Bird lovers always did and always will mix up intelligence with instinct. It is difficult to define the two; and although Mr. Teschemaker cited the case of Weavers emigrating and building different kinds of nests, there is overwhelming evidence against birds overcoming that instinctive circle of nature's laws which confines their existence within certain limits—evidence which battens down Mr. T's instance as if a steam-roller had run over it. Why should the Weavers build a different sort of nest? Let Mr. Teschemaker tell us that.

This is a most engrossing correspondence, and I could go on for a long time; but the exigencies of space, the pressure of other work and the presence of the Editor's weapon, which is mightier than the sword, the blue pencil, restrains me.

So Mr. Williams doesn't believe the Thrush story. Really . . . ! Surely . . . ! Nay, words fail! Why, sir, it's rank heresy. All the same, Mr. Williams, shake!

Entries Refused at Sacriston.

Sir, Kindly allow us space in your valuable paper to place clearly before Mr. S. Lindsay the rules of the above show. He states that on the advice of two of our members he applied, on Oct. 23, for membership. Now, Sir, we think Mr. Lindsay is going astray. We hold a letter from him saying he applied on the 24th, and this, I would point out to him, was a Sunday, and there being no post on this date his letter would not have reached us until the 26th, whereas it was published in CAGE BIRDS of Oct. 23 that we had a meeting on Oct. 23, and it was stated in the notice that all members and intending members were to understand that their annual subscriptions must be paid by Oct. 23, after which date no subscriptions would be accepted.

Mr. Lindsay's application was miles too late. We have a rule that neither Mr. Lindsay nor any other man will be allowed to break. We are pleased that the society has rules, and the committee carry them out. Mr. Lindsay says he is glad that the Sacriston Show is so sound as to permit the rejection of 19 late entries, and 28. 6d. subs. If Mr. Lindsay's subscription had been paid before Oct. 23 we would have been pleased to have taken twice 19 entries from him, but if we had accepted his entries, and taken his subscription on the date he sent them to us, we would have been brought to book by our committee and members for doing so. Mr. Lindsay's entries were posted back on Nov. 4, and as he stated his letter bore the postmark of Nov. 5 the fault would lie with the postal people, and not us. I may say, when Mr. Lindsay forwarded his entries he sent a £1 note, so I placed his note into my bank, and sent him a cheque for £1. Mr. Lindsay enquires why new members were asked for at the meeting held Oct. 30, and his application not submitted. We wish to inform Mr. Lindsay that at that meeting there were no new members asked for, nor accepted. Finding that Mr. Lindsay had not received his entries back on the Saturday morning I forwarded to my bankers a note to stop payment of cheque, and asking them to let me know when the same came in, and when they returned it, so that I could send Mr. Lindsay a money order for £1 to put his matter in order. I have this morning, Nov. 12, received a letter from my bankers to the fact that his cheque had come to hand, and they were returning it on my instructions, so I posted Mr. Lindsay a money order for £1, and asked him to join as a member of our society after our annual meeting.

Club Reports.

CITY AND COUNTY OF PERTH.

Meeting, Laidlaw's Rooms, Leonard Street, Nov. 8, D. Brown, Pres., in the chair. Stewards for Club Show, Messrs. R. Crawford and D. Carstairs; doorkeepers, Messrs. W. Gunning, R. Crawford, W. Robertson, and Curthbert. Specials were drawn. Birds to be in the hall by 10, and remain till 11. Meeting closed with a vote of thanks to chairman. —J. L. SMITH.

NORTHERN BORDER FANCY C.C.

Meeting held Nov. 3, Millar's Cafe, Pink Lane, N.C., Mr. A. Allcock presiding over a sparse attendance. Only seven birds were staged for the table show, these being in the novice section. Buff (k.); 1, Cossar; 2 and 3, Wilson. Hen; 1 and 2, Wilson. (Cinn.); 1, Cossar. Owing to the curtailment of the train service and the lighting restrictions the management of the above cafe has decided to close the premises at 9, and as this will have an adverse effect upon our meetings it is desirable that we have as large a number of members in the best room of meeting as possible to discuss the best means of conducting the club under the altered conditions.—C. PEARCE, Hon. Sec.

STANLEY (Victoria) F.F. & C.B.S.

Meeting, Nov. 7, Mr. J. Armitage, chair. Decided to have a gift class for the benefit of the local wounded. The following gave an exhibit: R. Peart, Canary and cage; W. Kelly, Canary; J. Haywood, Canary; Trelease, Bantam cock; J. Armitage, hen; J. Metenfe, hen; J. Middleton, Rabbit. Now, members, let us have another gift or two to help the gallant lads who have fought for us.—R. Hutchinson.

ACCRINGTON C.B.S.

Meeting, Nov. 4, Mr. A. Hirst, chair. Resolved, to leave the date of our annual members' show over till next meeting. We had our usual competition for best unlighted bird belonging to the exhibitor. This was won by W. Crawshaw in champions and J. Sturtard in amateurs. At next meeting, a judging competition for amateurs. Entrance fee, 3d. each. To judge six birds for special prizes. We hope all fanciers will make an effort to attend.—D. Harwood.

DARVEL C.B.S.

Meeting, Town Hall, Nov. 4, Mr. H. Hopkins presiding. Intimation was given that our Sec. had joined the Gordon Highlanders. After a short discussion Mr. J. Taylor was unanimously appointed to secretaryship. Agreed that our annual club show, Dec. 4, be in the nature of an exhibition for the public, there being no entry fees and no prize money, and that all takings at the door be handed over to the local relief fund for our soldiers and sailors. Judge, Mr. Peter McQuiston, Ayr. Please note new secretary's address.—J. Taylor, Lindy, East Donnington Street, Darvel.

LOANHEAD C.B.S.

Financial meeting, Mason's Arms, Nov. 6, Mr. A. Jardine chair. Balance sheet was read, and showed an income of 40 7s. 8d., against an expenditure of 47 14s. 2d., leaving a balance of 41 13s. 6d., which was considered very satisfactory, and was unanimously adopted. Sec. read a letter from local Recruiting Committee thanking members for donation of 42 3s. towards the local lads' comforts fund for lads serving at the front. All the office bearers were unanimously re-elected, after which a very pleasant hour was spent, and the Chairman received a hearty vote of thanks for presiding.—W. B. SMART, Sec.

LIVERPOOL B.B.A.

Meeting held at Oldham Hall, Nov. 11, Mr. J. Abbott chair, and a good attendance. The chief item of the evening was a novice night show of Canaries and British; 57 birds were staged. A hearty vote of thanks was given to Messrs. Huxton and Wilkins, who judged the birds, and gave every satisfaction. Points gained.—Canaries: Garrod, 19; Thomas, 13; Phillips, 10; Scott, 9; Cowen, 5; Hunt, 5. British: Lloyd, 24; Rothwell, 20; Robertshaw, 18; Abbott, 11; Hunt, 8; Sharples, 7; Douglas, 2; Phillips, 2. Three highest points for season.—Canaries: Garrod, 119; Greatrex, 74; Thomas, 43. British: Robertshaw, 89; Lloyd, 52; Rothwell, 20. Members not receiving a schedule of the annual old show on or before Nov. 20, kindly write to the secretary, which will have immediate attention.—T. R. JONES, Sec.

LARKHALL C.B.A.

Annual social, Mr. Haggerty's Hall, Nov. 13; Mr. R. McClue, chair. A good number sat down to tea, after which the chairman handed over the cups to the respective winners. Points cup, Mr. W. P. Campbell; Y.B. cup, Jas. Robertson; Nor. cup, J. Cuthbertson; Bord., Robt. Sandilands; novice, Thos. McGregor; rose-bowl, Jas. Smith. The following contributed to our evening's enjoyment: Mr. Alex. Robertson, song and encore; Mr. R. McEwan, song; Mr. J. Allan, song and encore; Mr. and Miss Kennedy, duet; Mr. Thos. Bond, song; Mr. J. Cuthbertson, song; Mr. R. McClue, song; Mr. A. Thomson, a side-splitting story; Mr. Guy Pollock, two readings, one of which, entitled "How I started in the cage bird fancy," was rendered in grand style and much appreciated. After the usual votes of thanks the singing of Auld Lang Syne brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.—T. J. McGregor, Sec.

LONDON C.B.A.

General meeting, Headquarters, 2, York-st., W., Nov. 9, chairman, Mr. J. Robson. A discussion took place on "Preparing and Conditioning Birds for Exhibition." Mr. Crisp opened the debate, giving most interesting accounts of his experiences in showing Yorkshires and Crests. He dealt with the subject of colour-feeding, advantages of the bath, moulting birds in the country, giving mixed seed and various stimulants, also with faking and trimming, showing clearly how he defined what was legitimate in preparing birds for show. Mr. Allen Silver followed at some length and gave interesting details of his experiences in judging and exhibiting. Messrs. Watcham, Wright, Dewhurst, Leach, and Shepherd took part, and Mr. Robson in dealing with some of the questions raised brought a most interesting and instructive evening to a close.—P. Johnston, Assist. Sec.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING C.B.S.

Meeting, Nov. 6, Queen's Head Inn. There was a poor attendance to make the classes for the annual show, but they could not be left over. It is a pity that the arrangement of such an important matter should be left to only a few. Liberal classification of 42 classes has been provided for members, so we hope they will rally up with a good entry on Nov. 20. Entries cannot be accepted after the date fixed. The classes are about same as previous years, and the fee was fixed at 4d. per cage, with specials for most points in each class as usual. We have engaged Mr. H. Seely, of Choppington, to judge, so members rally up with your entries and let's see if the show cannot be a greater success than ever, although circumstances are bad owing to the present crisis.—R. H. Dixon, Sec.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE C.B.S.

There was no meeting held Nov. 4 owing to only four members, including the sec., being at Shields Cafe. Will members please make a special effort to get to the next meeting Dec. 2, to decide what is to be done as regards future meetings. It has been suggested by several members that we do not hold any more for a few months. The question of the trams being finished running early will have to be considered, for members at a distance from Shields Cafe will not be able to get a car home after nine. I have pleasure in stating that our late open show proved a financial success, and there will be a good balance to carry forward to next year. This should stimulate everyone to take a better interest in the society, and not leave the burden in the hands of a few. If members are not able to attend the next meeting, and will send suggestions to me, I shall do my best to try and carry them out.—J. W. Reed, Sec.

GLASGOW SCORES A SUCCESS.

ALMOST 1,000 HIGH QUALITY BIRDS ON VIEW.

The Glasgow and Dist. C.B.A. held its Annual Show in the Albert Halls, Bath-street, Glasgow, on Nov. 12, 13, under patronage of the Scottish Plain-head, Border, and Yorkshire Clubs. Owing to war conditions, the Highlanders' Hall (their usual rendezvous) could not be had, and the Albert Halls were the next best shift left to the management, and although not blessed with unlimited space, still everything was very comfortable and pleasing to all concerned. Plenty of light from the roof, nice even temperature, and good attention kept the huge stock carolling their various melodies up to the close of the exhibition. Entries were rather less than last year, but ran close up to 1,000, and quality on the whole was top notch. Yorkshires are fast gaining ground and approaching the standard of perfection here, many real clean cut swanky gentlemen being on view. Mr. Heggie had a regular field day amongst them.

Where the Specials Went.

The "wee gens," had some real gems amongst them, although some did not shine as they might. British in their varied collection were quite up to the usual, and in some cases gave trouble to separate. Sales were not so numerous as in peace times, the chief sales being Mr. A. Maxwell's non-toed yell. Nor. hen, at 16 lbs., and Mr. Simpson's yell. var. hen at 15 lbs. The chiefs of the various sections were: Mr. Allison, Aberdeen, S.P.C. medal, yell. var. ck., a clincker, S.P.C. medal for best hen; Mr. J. C. Murray, Cowdenbeath, rare qual. var. buff, Jarvie cup for best members, and S.C.C. medal; Mr. G. S. Hamilton, Motherwell, topping young crest, runner up; Mr. Heggie's light male, well known winner; Mr. Craig, Brechin, captured the B.F.C.C. medal with his clear yellow cock, the novice medal being won by Hinson and McClue's even mark; Mr. McQuiston secured the Motherwell cup for best Border, Yorks., or Brit., with his famous Chough, a winner of many battles, and still in the pink.

The office bearers were the same tried and trusty lot as have stuck to their posts with credit through thick and thin. Mr. J. P. Park, president, is genial Joe, ever civil and obliging; Vice-pres., A. Sloan and E. Taylor; assist. sec., D. P. Webster; treas., W. Gunton; sec., W. Hutchinson, the right man in the right place, and backed up by an excellent committee in the following:—F. Taylor, J. Fulton, E. Barron, W. Priest, A. Crawford, T. Fraser, D. Wyllie, P. Houston, R. Watson, J. Swan; auditors, Messrs. Maxwell and Heggie. It is hard to single out for special praise, only, we think, none is more worthy than the sec.; there are few more capable or energetic leaders in the fancy than "Bill" W. Hutchinson, and much credit is due to him for his untiring efforts on behalf of the fancy. The following gentlemen made the awards which on the whole were well received. Crests, J. McEay, Kirkintilloch; Plainheads, W. Grewar, Lochgelly, and J. McEay; Borders, W. McMillan, Dumfries; Yorks., C. Martin, Glasgow; Brit. and For., A. Watson, Edinburgh, and M. Craig, Tollerose.

The Norwich Plainheads.

Norwich were a splendid collection, containing the cream of Scotland. All the leading exhibitors were represented, and grand teams were put down. Patronage of the S.P.C. was granted here, and medal for best cock was secured by Mr. Allison; best hen, Mr. Murray. The classification provided was a capital one, and we were pleased to see was well supported. Close on 300 birds were staged, averaging 15 per class, a slight decrease from last year, and with very few exceptions the judges, Messrs. Grewar and McEay, acquitted themselves well.

THE CREST SECTION.

In the Crest section, seeing that the patronage of the Scottish Crest C.C. had been secured, and a liberal classification given, the management fully expected a much better entry than one averaging only 5 per class, but although behind in numbers there were a few choice specimens put down. The birds staged by Mr. Hamilton were a credit, securing S.C.C.C. medal, also runner-up best bird in show, and sp best young bird in section. We regret to announce on the arrival of the case of birds belonging to Mr. J. McLean, Campbelltown, his Crest-bred cock was found dead in camp. Mr. John McEay judged.

CREST CK. HYBRIDS AND BRITISH AND FOREIGN.

Mule classes were well filled and contained some grand exhibits; among them were quite a good few birds from over the Border. The supposed Canary-Yellow Bunting was wrong classed by Mr. Watson, we understand, there being no doubt in his mind that it is a Canary. In any case, being variegated it should not have been in the Dark classes. British were well filled and contained some grand and well known exhibits. Messrs. Sykes and McQuinton had grand teams forward. We were sorry to see Mr. Sykes' well-known Bramble rather soft; it has the wonderful record of 61 first prizes and a host of others and specials, and we trust it survived to reach home. Foreign were fairly strong, and a grand team was put down by Mr. Arnott. The new hybrid Song Thrush-Blackbird which has been written about in "Cage Birds" was in competition. It is a very nice bird, resembling a hen Blackie in markings and appearance, with some speckles here and there.

DARK GOLDF. MULE (11): 1, spl., McQuinton, grand size, rare rich col., a little unsteady at times; 2, Ileggie, nice size, looking rather slim to-day, but improving in col.; 3, Roy, well known winner, fails a little in size, but nice col.; 4, Nicoll, nice length, but rather slim; 5, Heard, nice size and col., bad shower; 6, McLean; 7, Madisson; 8, Findlay. LINNET OR GREENE (17): 1, Duncan, linnet, grand size and col., steady and well put down; 2, Ileggie, Greenie, grand size and col., greatly improved; 3, A. McQuinton, 3, Linnet, nice size, rich col. and well fed; 4, Greenie, well up in size and col. and well staged; 5, no name. A.O.V. EXCEPT CAN-BULL (13): 1, Roy, well known Siskin Mule, in rare order, improving with age; 2, McQuinton, Twite mule, nice size, rich in col. and well mkd.; 3, Bramble, very sweet and taking Redpoll, and well put down; 4, Heard, well coloured and staged Siskin mule; 5, Heron, Twite, spoilt through having slightly bare eyes; 6, Crone; 7, Gribben; 8, Henderson. LIGHT (10): 1, Ileggie, well-known Greenie mule, often reported; 2, Heron, varieg. EDINBURGH O.S.

This old-established society holds its annual show in Buccleuch Parish Church Halls, Oct. 30. The entry was much the same as last year, and the quality was of a high standard, and very level throughout. Mr. J. Dalgleish had a grand team forward, and he secured most of the premier honours; his cup-winning buff pied was greatly admired. This bird won the special for best Scotch Fancy. There was also on exhibition a white Canary of the Yorkshire cross belonging to Mr. McPhail, of Gilmerton, and it was staged to perfection, and showed well up against the purple cage. Mr. Wm. Allan staged a grand Goldf.-Bullf. of good size, but it was scarcely finished moulting. Messrs. J. Carlow, Falkirk, and D. Brown, Edinburgh, judged the Scotch Fancy classes. Other varieties, Mr. G. Brown, Leith.

BOSCOMBE F.A.

Fourth Annual Show, Curzon Hall, Bournemouth, Nov. 3. Considering so many fanciers have joined the forces, entries turned up very well, being over a hundred, and quality was A1, everything was ready, and cards up in good time. The Sec. and Committee worked well, and great credit is due to them for the manner the show was conducted. Mr. W. Haysom, Southampton, judged, and the awards were well received. The officials were Mr. M. Cook (chair.), Mr. E. Hutchins (vice-chair.), Mr. A. E. East (treas.), Mr. E. T. Hames (hon. sec.), and the following committee: Messrs. D. Howard, W. Newell, Sullivan, S. BEDFORD.

Annual open show of the Bedford United C.B.S., Nov. 11, in the Town Hall, a very fine building for the event, being well lighted and free from draughts. Entries numbered a little over two hundred, and quality was really excellent, some very fine Norwich (which formed the bulk of the birds exhibited) being sent in by well-known breeders. Mr. Sears, of Watford, won well in yell. cocks and buff hens, and also in the unlighted class. The classes limited to Bedfordshire had some birds quite equal to the open, the fanciers of the district being keen on the chubby ones, and sticklers for type and quality. The novices made a fine show, their birds being little inferior to the champions. The society is in a flourishing condition, with the following fanciers on the committee: Messrs. Gentle, Wilnot, Notley, Crawford, Hudson, Wright, Valentine, Brewer, Fincdon, Osborne and Fowler, with Messrs. Beauland and Osborne as chair and vice-chairmen. The sec. is Mr. Arthur Simons, who had the management of the show, and had everything well in hand. Mr. H. Markham, a non-exhibitor, acted as judge's steward. The specials and prize money were presented during the evening by the Ex-Mayoress. Mr. H. Norman judged.

EDINBURGH WESTERN O.S.

30th annual show, Buccleuch Parish Church Halls, Oct. 30. There was an entry of about 250, and quality was of a high order, especially in Norwich and Border Fancies. Some nice birds were also exhibited in the Scotch Fancy section. Mr. Peter M'Niven secured the cup in this section with a nice yellow pied hen, with plenty of size and style. The B.F.C.C. Medal was won by Mr. J. Andrew with a charming yellow hen, staged to perfection. In Norwich Mr. Strongach, a novice, secured premier honours with a capital buff hen, a real Norwich all over. The judges were: Scotch Fancy, Mr. J. McEwan, Edinburgh; Borders, Mr. Wm. Thomson, Newton-grange; Norwich, Mr. James Winter. Their awards seemed to give entire satisfaction. The show was well patronised by the general public.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

Annual Show Oct. 30, in the Assembly Room, Duke of York Hotel, a capital room, admirably adapted for the purpose. The exhibits were nicely staged on the double tier principle down the centre, and round the room at a convenient height; a good entry was secured and quality was well maintained throughout; the Norfolk section was perhaps the outstanding one for quality, some capital specimens being on view, but a number of them still require a little more time to line down. It has been our pleasure on many occasions to write of the excellent management that prevails here, and we were pleased to find the same high standard is well maintained; many of the officials are of long standing, tried and true, who have every detail in the working of a show at their finger tips, and everything was in perfect order; judging was over early, and awards promptly up as each class was judged. Mr. Wm. Harrison makes a capital sec., courteous to a degree, ever willing to carry out the wish of exhibitors, and to do his very best for everybody. We were pleased to note the great assistance he received in the clerical work both before and during the show at the hands of his daughter. The Society warmly appreciated her efforts, and shortly after the opening of the show a pleasing little ceremony took place, much to the surprise of the young lady. The Chairman, Mr. F. J. Weaver (who we were sorry to see looking in such poor health) on behalf of the society presented her with a beautiful gold wristlet watch. Miss Harrison, in a charming little speech, suitably responded. Mr. Arthur C. Brotherhood judged.

The patronage of the following specialist clubs undoubtedly greatly assisted in bringing together the "cream" of the sections: Y.C.C., C.M.Y.C.C., G.C.C., B.C.C., N.P.C., and O.N.P.C.C.

BRECHIN.

Brechin C.B.S. held its 52nd annual show in the City Hall on November 6. The objects of the show were of a patriotic nature, viz., the benefit of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief Fund, but we are sorry to report that entries were down from last year. This was not expected to happen in Brechin, as it is a well-known fact that at every show in Scotland the Brechin fanciers turn out well. The judges were: Mr. W. Allison, Aberdeen; Mr. J. Rentone, Melhill; Mr. J. Brit, and Mr. R. Watson, Glasgow, and their awards gave general satisfaction. Favoured with beautiful weather, the show was well patronised during the day. The arrangements were in the capable hands of Mr. John Crabb, sec., and Mr. A. Robinson, assist. sec., backed up by a hard-working committee. G. Mitchell, Brechin, won the society's cup for best Norwich; J. Craig the society's cup for best Bor; and Black and Houdrie the rosebowl for most points in British. All these cups now become the property of the respective winners. A pleasant feature of the show was the very large number of lady friends who visited the show and took a lively interest in the exhibits.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE.

Eleventh annual show of the Blaydon-on-Tyne C.B.S., Nov. 12, 13, U.M. Schoolroom. In spite of the unsettled state of affairs the society gave a very liberal classification, and was rewarded by a record entry of nearly 800. Norwich were the strongest in numbers, including some of the cream of the Fancy. Yorks. were rather disappointing in number, but quality was good. Crests and Crestbreds were forward in stronger force than we have seen for some time, and recalled to our mind the palmy days of the Crest Canary in the Tyneside district; not only was this number good, but quality also was excellent. The champion of the section was Mr. David Scott's Crest, which won the President's silver cup for best bird in show. Border Fancy classes showed a falling off in numbers, compared with the very large classes we have been accustomed to see, but some extra grand specimens were staged of all the various colours. This district being such a hotbed of the green Border, quite a collection of top-notchers were fighting for premier honours. Males were down in numbers, but British were up to the average.

The officials are such well known fanciers, and have had so much experience in show matters that it seems almost superfluous to say that all the work was carried out without any trace of fuss or confusion. The office-bearers are: J. Hands, Chair; G. Dobson, Vice-Chair; R. Haves, Treas.; G. Haver, Sec.; Committee, G. Shapson, J. H. Crass, T. Leck, Jos. Clark, C. Vallance, T. Fletcher, C. Graham, R. Havis, J. Hillary, J. Robson, J. J. Walker, T. Harrison, T. C. Crawhall, J. T. Reed. The judges were: H. W. Battye, Nor., Crests, and Yorks; T. Dixon, Borders; J. Maddison, Mules, British and Foreign.

NOR. YELL. (16): 1, Crawshaw, rare head and neck, stout body, hot col., grand order; 2, Thomas, eye tld., very rich col., full head and neck, scarcely so stout in body; 3, Bates, fine size, cobby shape, lacks the col. of leaders; 4, Glendinning, vhc. Fleck; he, Harrison; c. Morrison. BUFF (16): 1, McKay, fine size and subs., good head, full neck, capital feather and cond.; 2, Holden, good stamp all over, just beaten in col.; 3, Hirst, big and thick set, shows a bit more feather; 4, Bates; vhc. Mason and Anderson; he, Crass; c. Thomas. HEN. YELL. (13): 1, 4, Lawson, fine size, shape, col., and qual.; 2, Hirst, almost, if not quite, as good as winner; 3, Crawshaw, grand for type, but beaten in col.; vhc. Morrison; he, Moore. BUFF (17): 1, Crawshaw, grand cobby shape, full head and neck, extra qual. of feather; 2, Lawson, rare good front, but a little less subs. in body, in capital order; 3, Kaberry, massive body, excellent feather; 4, Jeffries; vhc. Hands; he, Thomas; c. Smailes. UNPLIG. YELL. (20): 1, 3, Lawson, 1st, good head and body, hot col., pink of col.; 3rd, fine type, best col.; 2, Crawshaw, close up to winner in all points; 4, Page; vhc. Matthewson; he, Smith; c. Hands. BUFF (16): 1, Priestly and Tucker, good thick-set body, full head and neck, tight feather; 2, McKay, rare size and type, but untidy at thighs; 3, Smailes, less size, but rare good shape and qual. of feather; 4, Makepeace; vhc. Holden; he, Curry; c. Jeffries. YELL. HEN (11): 1, Moore, fine size, rare good type, col., and qual.; 2, Matthewson, cobby shape, good head and neck; 3, Hands, extra good col. and feather, good head, scarcely so stout in body; 4, Crawshaw; vhc. Priestley and Tucker; he, Fox; c. Hirst. BUFF (13): 1, Crawshaw, grand size, type, and qual. of feather; 2, Thomas, capital size and shape, in rare cond.; 3, Hirst, little to find fault with, close up; 4, Hadden; vhc. Page; he, Telfer; c. Crass. NOV. YELL. (10): 1, 4, Bell, grand size, type, and col., tight cond.; 2, Priestly and Tucker, hot col., fine size and subs., not to tight feather; 3, Bird, close up in all points; vhc. Proctor; he, Hunter; c. Coates. BUFF (12): 1, Bell, good in size, shape, and feather, hot col.; 2, Makepeace, very close up, except not so good on head; 3, Bird, massive body, good feather and cond.; 4, Hunter; vhc. Cresswell; he, Barnes; c. Telfer. CREST. CK. (13): 1, Scott, crest of wonderful size and density, perfect centre, not a feather out of place, closely packed at back, awarded the silver cup for best bird in show; 2, c. Dobson, grand length of head feather, but owing to the heavy droop the crest does not look so expansive as the winner; 3, Dickenson Bros., very neat, well-shaped crest, scarcely the size of leaders; 4, he, J. Taylor; vhc. Mrs. T. Taylor. CREST. HEN (14): 1, Barker, large, well-packed crest, grand formation and droop; 2, he, J. Taylor, crest of good size and density, scarcely so neat; 3, R. S. Bewick, large dense crest of good shape; 4, c. Armstrong; vhc. T. Bewick. C.B. CK. LEITH.

56th Annual Show, Nov. 13, in Junction Church Halls, a room of nice size with plenty of light, and birds grandly staged, round the side and up the centre. Entries were greatly over last year, and would number about 700. Scotch Fanciers were a very nice lot and contained some grand birds, the cup winner in this section being Mr. G. C. T. Hope. Norwich were fairly well up and as regards quality were on about an average. The cup winner was Mr. W. Walls with a grand, typical bird. Borders were exceptionally well filled, and contained some very typical birds of rare merit. We were pleased to see the cup winner in this section was the worthy Sec., Mr. G. Brown, he also won the B.F.C.C. medal. Crests, etc., although not forward in quantity, were there in quality. Mr. Moffat won special for best bird in this section. British, etc., were well filled, and contained some grand birds. The hardbilled cup winner was Mr. John Allan with a grand Bramble. Softbill cup, Mr. A. W. Watson, with a Blackbird of rare size. This being his third successive year of winning, the cup now becomes his property. Mules, etc., were nice in quantity, and variety, the cup winner was Mr. W. Allan with a grand Gold-Bullie. The girl class is a feature of this show; the society provides the cages, and members give six birds. This section could be better filled, for almost the same names appear year after year. We would be pleased to see other names another year, more especially from a few Norwich and Border exhibitors. The office bearers are a hard working lot, and the genial sec., Mr. Brown, is ably assisted by the Pres., Mr. Jas. Lumsden, who is ever looking after the interests of one and all; vice-pres., Mr. John Allan; committee, Messrs. E. Anderson, Buglass and Finnie, and Galloway; judges were Messrs. A. Hamilton, Pringle, Grewar, J. Hamilton, W. Thomson, and J. Skyes, Musselburgh, who all gave general satisfaction.

"CAGE BIRDS," 154, FLEET ST. LONDON. E.C.

CHESTER.

Chester C.B.S. held its Open Show, Nov. 13, the venue being the Temperance Hall, an eminently suitable place in every way, spacious and well lighted by daylight and electric, and within easy reach of the railway stations. The efforts of the Society resulted in a successful show, an entry of close on 500 being secured, an average of over ten per class throughout. The grading of prize-money was rather of an unusual order, as follows: Up to ten entries on the sliding scale; ten to twenty 10/-, 6/-, 3/-, 2/-; twenty entries, 12/-, 6/-, 3/-, 2/-; thirty, 14/-, 7/-, 4/-, 3/-, 2/-; forty, 16/-, 8/-, 6/-, 4/-, 3/- and judging from the many remarks we heard expressed, the arrangement seemed to be much appreciated by exhibitors.

Norwich opened the list, six classes bringing together an entry of seventy-seven, and a grand lot they were; in this section the winner of the coveted special for best bird in show was found in Mr. W. H. Williams' well known marked buff, a typical Norwich all over, bearing his age remarkably well, although we have seen him carry a little more substance than at present. We understand this is the third occasion on which he has gained this distinction at Chester, a good performance. Four classes were put on for Novice Norwich, but they only mustered thirty-five; nevertheless, several really typical birds were among them, notably the winners in the yell. class; Norwich greens were under the patronage of the Green Canary Association; these brought together forty-five entries. Taken all through they were a line lot, full of true Norwich properties and sound in colour. Sixty-three Yorks. took the mark, and a capital lot they were, about the pick of them being the winner in the buff class, a thigh-ticked of wonderful length and shape. Yorks. Greens—which were again under the patronage of the G.C.A.—did not fill so well as their chubbier brethren, only thirty-three being benched. Although many of them were of true Yorks. character we did not think the colour was quite so sound as we have seen. Novice Yorks. responded well, the four classes bringing together sixty-two entries—the hen class, with twenty-one entries, thus having the distinction of being the highest class in the show.

Borders had the patronage of the Southern Border Fancy Club, but were somewhat of a failure, the six champion classes only providing thirty-seven entries, the Novices being a little better with slightly over seven per class. Quite a lot of the Borders were too late for judging; all Messrs. Madagan's, Elston's, Bacon's and Burton Bros'; the latter did not reach the show until 6 o'clock at night; hard luck this, but all in the game these troublesome times. Mules and hybrids made interesting classes with fifteen entries, the winner—a very nice Greenie-Bullie—being the runner-up for special for best bird in the show. British were a nice collection, the winning Goldie being a gem. The Hawfinch, Linnet and Chough each topping its class stood well out.

Of the management we have nothing but the highest praise, the staging being nicely arranged at a convenient height, where every bird could be viewed in comfort, the birds receiving splendid attention at the hands of a grand set of stewards. We noticed that several cases of birds that unfortunately arrived late had some extra attention bestowed on them in Secretaries' room immediately upon arrival. An early start was made with the judging, which was over in good time. All birds from a distance were packed and dispatched to the station before six o'clock. Prize-money was paid out to successful exhibitors present at the show during the evening. Mr. L. Cavanagh, as Hon. Sec., did wonderfully well; possessing fine tact, method and ability, he was ever at his post working like a Trojan. He was ably assisted too by Mr. A. Hibbert, who seemed to vie with his partner in their joint endeavours to cope with the many duties that came their way. The cup for four nominated birds fell to the lot of Mr. McAndrews, the runner-up being Mr. F. Taylor. Mr. Walley secured the Members' Nomination Cup, Mr. Challinor being runner-up. Mr. Guy judged Novice, Selling and Gift classes, and Mr. Battye the remainder.

ARDWICK AND MANCHESTER.

The Ardwick and Manchester C.B.A. held its second annual open show, Nov. 13, in St. Thomas' Schools. The room is very comfortable for exhibits and visitors alike, well lighted, warm, and free from draughts, and within easy distance of the city, the trams practically passing the door. An entry of 542, being an increase of 60 over last year, augurs well for the future of this society, who had the pluck to run a show despite the troublesome times. A good classification, backed by substantial prize money, and the adjudication left to two specialist judges, brought out all the cream of Lancashire and Yorkshire. Being blessed with a working President, Rev. C. E. Gaul, ably assisted by the Rev. J. W. Wragg, no wonder the society flourishes. These are the men we want in the Fancy, men who are not afraid to pull their coats off and do their bit in unpacking alongside the working-man fancier. Mr. J. Spencer is the head of the secretarial department, and right well he knows his duties; one would think he has been in the habit of running Crystal Palace Shows by the thoroughness of all his work. Manchester seems to be the natural home of ideal show managers. Mr. Hall makes a rattling good assistant. Mr. A. E. Thorpe is the Paymaster-General, and a good help in the Sec's office. A hard-working and obliging band of stewards were headed by Messrs. Boothman and Parish, and all did their share to make everything comfortable. Mr. S. Oldham, President M. and N.C. C.B.S., looked after the wants of the Britishers.

The N.P.C. gave full cup patronage, and right royally they turned up. Everybody acknowledged it the best show of Plainheads we have had out for some time. This section was in the hands of Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, of Liverpool, who went in strictly for type and quality. The honours were evenly divided, some marvellous exhibits being put down.

Yorkshires did not come up to previous numbers, but some exhibits of the first water were staged, while the wee gems were a feature of the show. Mr. Bennett's team, all the way from Kelso, took all the firsts, and deserved them. Mr. Middleton scooped the pool in Greens with a choice lot.

Open Amateur Norwich proved a great section, some birds of correct type being put down. 63 in four classes, and hardly a bad bird out, speak volumes for the variety.

Visitors turned up well, the room being packed all the afternoon. We noticed one gentleman all the way from Norwich. We did not catch his name, but we found he was president of two societies in that city. He was very keen on buying a few good birds to take home. The winning yellow hen was invited to a new home at Norwich, but we think her nest is too well feathered in Brunswick Street, Chorlton-on-Medlock. When a fancier is so keen that he travels to a show, and lands in a strange city at two o'clock in the morning, he deserves to take something good back with him. The judges were: Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, Canary Classes; Mr. C. Houlton, British, Lizards, and Lancashires; and their awards were well received.

Mr. J. W. Metcalfe's Classes.

YORKS. YELL. CK. (8): 1, Knowles, red hot, lengthy, excels in qual., stands on good pins, staged to perfection; 2, Potts, very racy, straight as a rush, long sided, pipe tail, full of go; 3, Dykes, again erect and fearless, leggy, round as a bottle, only fails qual. to above; 4, Bulmer; vhc. Tansey; hc. Green; c. Henderson and Crosby. BUFF (1): 1, Dykes, real topper, great length and style with it, marvellous feather, Al pos., stands away; 2, Bulmer, another good one, erect, nice wedge shape, natty head, shows a few waist feathers; 3, Woodward, red hot, no better qual. to be found, trifle short on leg, otherwise good 'un; 4, Henderson and Crosby; vhc. Knowles; hc. Darlington; c. Green. Mr. Houlton's Classes.

Lancashires and Lizard classes were confined to members of the L. and L.F.A. Lancashires only came up in small number, but these were of the right sort, Mr. Filton putting down a very strong team. Lizards were much better for numbers, and the cream of to-day were present. A few good Mules and Hybrids were shown. British birds were of very good class all through, and some of the best of to-day were scoring high in the cards. A very good entry was seen in members' Canary classes, and most of these were especially good birds, and keen competition resulted. LIZARD. GOLD. CLR. CAP. 1. Hamer, beautifully laced, plenty work, fine size, rare col. and tight cond.; 2. Barnes, smaller, well-laced back, etc. SILVER. 1. Hamer, very even profuse spangling, nice size and good feather; 2. Mrs. Burgess, equal in spangle, shade smaller; 3. Barnes, fine big bird, not quite so fully laced on back. BKN. C. GOLD. 1. Barnes, most profuse in spangle, rare size; 2. Ridgard and Stansfield; 3. Hampshire; 4. Rukin; vhc. Hamer; he, Millington; c. Teasdale; a very good class all through. SILVER. 1. Rukin; 2. Teasdale; 3. Barnes; 4. Ridgard and Stansfield; vhc. Millington; he, Hampshire; a lot of the pick of this breed. GOLD HEN. 1. Howard, a real good one, well and evenly spangled; 2. Mrs. Burgess; 3. Rukin; vhc. he, Ridgard and Stansfield; c. Teasdale. SIL. VET. HEN. 1. Barnes, a beauty; 2. Hamer; 3. Howard; 4. Hampshire; vhc. Rukin; he, Teasdale. LANCS. COPPY. YELL. 1. Fitton, immense, easy win; 2. Ridgard and Stansfield, good one. BUFFS: 1. Fitton, regular giant; 2. Collinge; 3. DERBY C.B.S.

57th Annual Members' Show, Normanton Hotel, Derby, Nov. 13, upwards of 170 young birds were staged, the old bird classes were not so large as previously, and in British classes also there was room for improvement. In the young bird classes a great keenness was shown, fine specimens of Norwich, Yorkshire, and Mules proved that the members are making rapid strides by improving their stocks. The Norwich cup was won by Mr. C. Oliver with a clear buff cock, a fine upright bird, good feather, clear cut, and good head. Mr. G. York won the Yorks. cup with a cl. yell. cock, good head, long fights and tail, well up on legs. Winners of point medals: Nor., Roberts; Yorks., Barton; Crests, Colledge; Mules, Seamer; Brit., Watts. The show was undoubtedly a great success, and a fine improvement upon any previous show, the committee and hon. secretary, Mr. F. W. Jordan, worked very hard to attain this. Mr. J. H. Rose, Birmingham, judged. Mr. J. Parnell won Sandford's medal, with a lightly marked yellow cock, very hot indeed. CL. OR TKD. YELL. NOR. 1. 3. Drakeley; 2. Watts; vhc. Roberts; he, Jordan; c. CAMBUSLANG.

Annual show, Free Gardeners' Hall, Nov. 6. The hall is most comfortable and well lighted, and the method of setting the staging round the walls leaves plenty of room for visitors in the centre. Entries were about as usual here, but quality, as a whole, has been of a higher order, though some real good specimens were on view, notably a Bearded Tit and a capital Waxwing, both of which were disqualified by the judge as being Foreigners. The former, the best in its class, was kept out of the tickets altogether, while the latter received 1st and spl. but was debarred from competing for the cup. A deal of talk was indulged in by visitors, some of whom were of the opinion that the Waxwing ought to have shared the same fate as the Tit, i.e., kept out of the tickets altogether, if considered a Foreigner, while all seemed satisfied that it was the best bird in the show. That honour, however, fell to another bird of the same owner, Mr. A. Crawford. The President and the genial Sam Lindsay are still swaying the rod of management, and with an able and willing committee, had all their duties well under weigh and disposed of in a masterly fashion early in the day, leaving plenty of time for a good look round. Mr. G. Smart, Carmyle, judged Canaries, and G. Martin, Hamilton, British. One notable feature in connection with the above society is the great interest taken in the "Great War" by the President, Mr. A. Crawford, who, with great ingenuity and thoughtfulness, has been able to form a scheme whereby the Red Cross Society of the district may benefit to the extent of close on £100. Books of numbered tickets have been issued to members, and every subscriber of 3d. is to participate in the drawing for 14 Canaries. £60 is already in hand, and the fund, which was to close with the show, has had to remain open for another week, owing to an accident which had happened in a pit causing a delay in the handing over the various books and moneys not yet accounted for.

Lindsay, beautiful even mark buff, capital stamp, nice head and neck, neat type and A1 qual., neat all over, was winning when we made our notes; 3. Brownlie, cl. yell., stronger in build, nice col. and size. HEN: 1. Pearce, grand stamp, cl. buff, fine head and neck, neat wings and tail, fine feather, in fine order; 2. spl. Pearce, good shape, nice qual., just loses in carr. and headpoints; 3. Brownlie, buff cinn., nice qual., well built, neat in carr. VAR. MULE OR HYB. 1915: 1. 3. Allan, nice sized heavy mld. Goldie Mules, leader more subs., lovely feather and without bluish; 2nd we could not find. DARK: 1. cup, best Brit. Mule or Hyb., and 2. spl. Crawford, leads with topping jonque Goldie Mule, rare size and col., plenty subs., will improve yet and be heard of again, 2nd nice Greenf.-Goldf., in good feather, showing the cross well, will carry more col. yet and improve; 3. Lindsay, nice buff Goldie, in good cond., nice size and good col., not quite finished. GOLDF. 1. spl. Shaw, good size, nice col., rich crimson face, good depth and expanse, deep yell. wings, bars, and fine buttons, in nice feather and steady; 2. Ballantyne, good col. and marks, nice face, loses in size; 3. spl. Crawford, larger than 2nd, purer in whites, nicely tanned, not up in col. yell. LINNET: 1. Pearce, nice size and col., neatly pencilled and plenty white in flight, could be a trifle steadier; 2. spl. Crawford, steady and A1 cond., nice nutty, evenly pencilled font, just fails size; 3. spl. Taylor, quite good, rich in col., but lacks steadiness. GREENF.: 1. spl. Davidson, easy winner, fine size, A1 cond., nicely fed, rich in ground col. and deep yell. wings, steady; 2. spl. Green, nice size, nat. col., soiled in plumage through unsteadiness, a trifle lucky; 3. Crawford, nicely fed jonque, not the size of winner, but for col. and cond. quite equal, might have gone up a step. BULLF.: 1. Davidson, nice size, good feather; 2. Taylor, read Britisher, good size, rich ground col. and fine cap and wing bars, could have been better staged. LESSER REDPOLL: 1. Ballantyne, H.-M., in the pink, nice size and steady; 2. Pearce, nice F.-M., good feather and cond., nice poll and bib., neatly pencilled, well put down; 3. Lindsay, good one, in nice feather, nice pencilling and line tanning, nice poll and bib., hard up in the run for pos.; No. 2, good specimen, unnoticed, hard lines! MEALY REDPOLL OR TWITE: 1. Crawford, nice Twite, in fine order, not one of the largest but finely pencilled and steady, deep ground col., wins well; 2. Taylor, Twite, nice feather and pencilling, fails in steadiness; 3. Davidson, Twite, nice size and cond. SISKIN: 1. Taylor, fine size, good nat. col. jonque, nice cap and markings, steady, with another moult should take some stopping; 2. Davidson, C.F., in A1 fettle, nice rich col. and markings, beaten in size; 3. Ballantyne. BRAMBLE: 1. Davidson, nice one for size and col., steady and in nice feather, good in spangling, wins nicely; 2. 3. Taylor, former nice col., good feather, beaten for size and steadiness, 3rd larger and richer in col., with time will be the better of the two, unsteady. CHAFFINCH: 1. Crawford, top cond., nice size and rich in col. and marking, steady and nicely staged; 2. Taylor, nice feather, well up for size and steadiness, not quite the depth of col. of winner; 3. Brownlie, nice Finch, but wild. HEN FOR MULLING: 1. Crawford, capital Greenie, spanking cond., staged to win; 2. Pearce, nice little Siskin, in good feather and steady; 3. Ballantyne, good Bullie. A.O.V. SMALLER: 1. Allan, nice Clr Bunting, fine feather, very steady; 2. Ballantyne, nice Yellowhammer, for size and cond., headlines not yet as clear as hot competition requires; 3. Taylor, Yellowhammer, not much behind; 2. No. 4, Bearded Tit, in lovely cond., disqualified as a Foreigner. LARGE: 1. spl. magnificent Waxwing, in perfect style, not a ruffle in feather, beautiful wax, one of the best, very steady, hard lines, indeed, to be disqualified. Mr. Crawford; 2. spl. Taylor, good Hawfinch, in perfect feather and steady.

WALKLEY C.B.S.

Show, Nov. 13, Westmoreland St. Schoolroom. The entry was good and quality A1. Yorks. as usual were the feature. The Chairman is Mr. T. Ridal one of the best. Messrs. J. Woolhouse and A. Sparkes are most practical as understudies; treas. is Mr. L. Falding, the British bird expert. The secs., Messrs. C. Tomlinson and E. Sisson are a brace of real workers. Stewards who worked willingly and energetically were Messrs. A. Hobson (Sec. Sheffield C.B.S.) and Son. Mr. W. Vardy judged.

CRYSTAL PALACE AND PENGE

Annual show, Nov. 10, Alexander Hotel, Penge. A large room was kindly lent for the occasion by the host, Mr. A. Hutton, who, as usual, gave valuable aid in erecting staging, etc., and assisted in several ways to make the show the complete success it proved. Although the fixture clashed with the mixed show at Croydon (several fanciers being members of both) the entry was good. Mr. Fairman won well in yellow cocks, and Mr. Hutton staged a grand unflighted yellow hen, which stood at the top in the hen class, beating the old birds fairly easily. Special for best champion was secured by Mr. Hutton with a good yellow Norwich; Mr. Ramsey winning the one for Novices with a good cinn.-marked Yorks. Mr. Cory won in British with a charming Bramble. The cup for four nominated birds was taken by Mr. Hutton, and Mr. Cory won the British cup. The show was well managed by Mr. Fryett, the Sec., Messrs. Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

- (1) All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and conclude with either the correct name or a pseudonym.
- (2) The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query.
- (3) Queries intended for different specialists must be written on separate sheets of paper.
- (4) Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions or advertisements, or any other matter for publication.
- (5) The department to which the queries refer must be stated on the left-hand corner of the query.
- (6) Queries received during any week, up to the first post on Saturday morning, will be answered in the issue bearing date of Saturday in the following week.
- (7) If an answer by post is desired from our specialists, a postal order for postage must accompany any query relating to sickness of birds, or a shilling in ordinary enquiries, with a stamped and addressed envelope in either case. Dead birds must not be sent to the office (see Post-mortems).
- (8) All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a five shilling note. All fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Fund (London).
- (9) All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

SORE FEET (E. W. H.).—See that the cage floor and perches are kept as clean as possible until the feet are quite healed again, and it would assist to attain this object if you kept the floor well strewn with clean pine sawdust for the time being. Also see that the perches are made of a nice soft pine wood, and of a suitable size and shape for the bird to perch comfortably on them. Catch the bird and bathe the feet for a few minutes each morning and evening for a week or so with a warm solution of Wych Hazel—a teaspoonful of the extract in a saucerful of warm water. After bathing dry gently and carefully anoint with a little Lancelin ointment, but do not leave any surplus grease about them to collect dirt or refuse from the cage floor. You may also add to the drinking water every second day for a week or so ten drops of lemon juice and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea.

SLACK PLUMAGE (Norwich H.).—The bird has evidently got badly run down by the moult and accompanying diarrhoea. Try what a few weeks of the following treatment will do for her. Keep her in a comfortable temperature, but you need not overheat her, and see that she is free from cold direct draughts or rapid extremes of heat and cold. Give a staple diet of plain canary seed only. Every third day give separately a small teaspoonful of scalded summer rape, and on the intervening days give first a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and well dusted with carbonate of bismuth, and next half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp (see that it is sound and sweet in the kernel), niger, rape, teazle, and maw. Do not give any green salad, but a morsel of banana or raw carrot may be given as a substitute for green food. In the drinking water every second day for a week add four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba and aromatic sulphuric acid, then miss a week, and resume and give it again for another week. If bird is not well in, say, a month, please write again, and repeat particulars, and I will advise you further.

REFERENCE WANTED (J. W.).—Sorry, but it is an unalterable law that no particular dealer can be singled out for mention in these columns. For reasons which must be obvious it would be most unfair to do so. Therefore, I can only advise you to watch our prepaid advert. columns for a week or two, where you will find no lack of birds on offer now, or consult a copy of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, wherein you will find the names of the principal breeders and winners last season. If you write to any well-known respectable breeder, stating what price you are prepared to pay, and asking for birds on approval against deposit of the agreed price with our Editor, you should not fail to get every satisfaction. From now onwards till the middle of February is the best time to purchase stock. As you appear to be starting from the bottom of the ladder I would advise you to get a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which our Manager would send you for 7d., post free, and well digest its contents between now and the beginning of next breeding season, which should begin about the end of March. No advantage is to be gained by starting earlier.

A VAPOUR BATH (H. R.).—Here is the rough and ready fashion of giving a vapour bath when other appliances are not easily available. Place the bird in an open wire cage in the centre of a table and cover the cage over with a small blanket or shawl, supported over the cage so that there is an inch or two of empty space over and all round the cage. Then place beneath the cover a mug of nearly boiling water, and arrange cover around the mug so that the steam will be confined beneath the cover and within the cage. Allow it to remain 15 or 20 minutes, then remove the mug, but leave the cage standing covered for another half-hour or so. Then remove bird to its own cage, and keep a light cover over it for a day or two in order to protect it from chills. I rather fancy you defeated the object of the former treatment by re-moing the bird from the cold room before the move had time to take effect; and giving the cod liver oil would undo all that might have been done to bring on the moult, and now you may very probably have to wait until next spring before the moult takes place. Without moving the bird again you may try the following treatment for a week or two.

Give two vapour baths with an interval of three days between them. In addition to the staple seed diet, give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts niger, white millet, teazle, linseed, and maw, every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give a morsel of bread and milk slightly dusted with cayenne and sprinkled with soft sugar. In the drinking water during the same time add twelve drops of sweet spirit of nitre and five of syrup of salfron every second day.

AN IMPROVEMENT (W. H.).—Glad to hear the bird has made so much progress under the treatment advised. To complete the cure as far as possible see that the bird is kept as free as possible from the exciting causes of the trouble as outlined in previous reply, and keep it rather on the warm side for this winter. Continue giving the medicine advised before in alternate weeks until it has had three more weeks' treatment. Instead of giving bread and milk or any other soft food for the next two months make a little of the following paste and keep a morsel stuck in the wires of the cage for the bird to peck at when it likes. Mix together on a hot plate a teaspoonful of pure honey, ditto of cod liver oil emulsion, as much powdered grain of paradise as will cover a shilling, a similar quantity of chlorate of potash, and a sufficient quantity of finely powdered biscuit to bring the whole to the consistency of soft cheese. When cold it will become a little harder, and may be cut into cubes to stick conveniently between the wires.

BAD PLUMAGE (K. Fitzpatrick).—See reply to "H.R." Oct. 9 issue, and treat your bird the same, with the exception that you give three vapour baths during the course of the first week, and offer the bird an ordinary bath on each of the remaining days, and also allow it to bathe daily if it will do so afterwards. For vapour bath place the bird in an open wire cage on a table; cover all over with a small shawl or woollen wrap, leaving a few inches of space between cage and covering all over, then introduce beneath cover, and place near cage, a mug of nearly boiling water. Allow to remain so for 20 minutes, then remove mug, but leave the cage covered for another half-hour. Then return bird to its proper cage, and keep a light cover over it for a time to avoid all risk of chills.

VARIED (E. V.).—(1) It is not unusual for birds when getting old to become rather erratic as to the season for moulting. They may not only moult late, but even defer the process until the following spring. Considering the bird's age, and the fact that she is apparently quite well in health, I do not advise you to attempt to force a moult upon her. Leave the process to Nature. (2) So far as my experience goes, hen Canaries are not perceptibly shorter-lived than cocks. I should certainly say that a hen, or cock either, 7½ years old was quite a respectable age. Very many live considerably longer, but probably the great majority die younger.

CANARY QUERISTS

should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Butte's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Avaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutsell" booklets (2d. each): No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of How to Cure Them," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 19 "Green Canaries," No. 24 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

(3) Only a post-mortem could reveal with any certainty what was the nature of the substance on the bird that died. It is quite possible it may have been a fatty tumour, but I am more inclined to think it was merely an accumulation of fat due to overfeeding.

HEAD UNDER WING (Bonnie Doon).—I should expect this bird to be past any relief before this reply can reach you, and you do not give any real clue to the nature of the trouble. If still living, place it in a quite warm temperature, but see that it is fairly equable and quite free from direct cold draughts. Add to the drinking water 20 drops of whisky and 12 of syrup of rhubarb daily for three days, and after this give instead five drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. If the bird is in poor condition or the appetite is poor, give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar daily during the week. If not then well, please write again, referring to this reply, and give more particulars about the symptoms shown by the bird, especially the condition of the bowels and the breathing, and if any wheezing is present.

SCRATCHING THEMSELVES (F.F.C.).—Birds are not necessarily infested with insects because they scratch themselves a good deal just now. The scratching and shaking of their plumage may be nothing more than their natural attempts to throw off the rapidly-loosening feathers. If the birds are showing any signs whatever of moulting, do not worry about this scratching at all, but if they are not moulting, you may give a morsel of bread and milk dusted with flowers of sulphur every second day for a week or so, and on the alternate days add to the drinking water 20 drops of fluid magnesia.

BREEDING ROLLERS (Veriest Novice).—(1) Yes, you can certainly breed Rollers in a cold room, just as well and freely as any other variety. (2) Song is a question of strain and efficient training more than anything else. There is no best singing variety among them. (3) Sorry, but I cannot mention names; it would be too obviously unfair to all others. (4) You should get a decent cock for 20s., and hens about 4s. or 5s. each. But this, of course, depends upon the vendor and the value he places upon the birds to himself. Your idea of beginning with a cock and two hens is a good one. See reply to "E. G. Miles" in Oct. 16 issue, which will also apply mainly to your queries.

WHEEZY YOKES, IN FLIGHT (Jack, Watford).—The fights are either exposed to direct draughts or extremes of temperature in all probability, and the birds affected are just those that are most susceptible to these baneful influences. You should first see to it that these exciting causes are removed. Then you may give to each group containing affected birds three heaped teaspoonfuls of soft food with 20 drops of sherry and six of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it and sprinkled with may seed. Do this every second day for a fortnight, if necessary, and on the alternate days add to each ounce of drinking water six drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine and sweet spirit of nitre.

TO INCREASE SIZE (A. Jones).—You do not give any idea as to the way the birds have been bred, but I rather suspect you have been inbreeding them and thus reduced the size. To get a fair increase in size next season I should advise you to introduce two fresh birds, a cock and a hen, to mate up with your own birds. Get the cock as large as possible, consistent with typical properties, and a closely-feathered buff. Mate this with your largest buff hen, which is close-feathered and not of coarse quality. The hen you should get of medium size, but with plenty of substance in front of the perch and boxy-feathered, and one which is bred from good large stock. This bird should also be a buff, and you should mate it with the largest yellow cock of your own stock. Keep all the young from these two pairs showing a material increase in size for mating up with your own stock the following season, keeping the pairs as distantly related as the number of your stock will allow you to do. In the third season you should find a substantial increase in the general size of your birds.

A LARGE SWELLING (Budor).—I do not think there is anything worse the matter with this bird than being in a gross, plethoric condition. Give a staple diet of summer rape only with just a pinch of canary seed on the top each morning. In addition give a fairly liberal allowance of green food, such as watercress, daily, and twice a week half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts niger, white millet and teazle. Limit the diet solely to this for a month, and during this time add to the drinking water six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week. Then omit the drugs for a week, and after that resume them and give again for another week, continuing the above dietary all through the course. Don't paint anything on the abdomen at all. If bird is not all right at the end of the month, please write again, and repeat particulars, and I will advise you further. Glad to hear the last advice was so successful.

RUFFLED NORWICH HEN (F. E. R.).—(1) I am afraid the prospects of getting this hen through the moult are not hopeful. Try what the following treatment will do for her. Give her three vapour baths, as you will have seen described in this column, with an interval of two days between each. Keep in a fairly warm temperature, and with a light cover thrown over the cage. In addition to your present staple diet give every second day for a fortnight half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake dusted with flowers of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed, and on the alternate days add to the drinking water 20 drops of whiskey, five of syrup of salfron, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence. Give a spray of watercress daily. If the bird has not commenced to moult feathers by the end of the fortnight, stop the medicines, and place the bird, still covered, in a decidedly colder room for a few days, but see that it is quite free from cold draughts. Leave it there for a week, by which time the moult should have made a good start, and then take it back to the warmer room and give the same medicines again as above for another fortnight. The staple diet you name is quite passable, but taken altogether a simple mixture of canary and rape only, at most, is the best. (2) If the seven-years-old cock is still in good health and active next spring there is no reason at all why he should not breed successfully. Age alone certainly will not debar him. Indeed, judging from his performances three years ago and the fact that he has had a long rest since, I should expect him to make a good average record in the breeding cage next season.

FLYING LOOSE IN ROOM (M. B.).—(1) There should be no difficulty in finding out whether your birds, flying loose in a room, are pestered with grey lice by catching one that seems most pestered when the hands are nice and warm, and holding the bird in the tightly-closed hand for a minute or two. If the bird is really infested you will soon find the lice running nimbly about your own hand. You may also turn up the feathers at the base of the neck and base of tail, and examine the skin in these parts, beneath the wings and on the flanks. (2) Strong, healthy birds kept under these conditions may very safely be allowed to bathe every day throughout the winter if they wish to do so, but you should always offer the bath in the early part of the day during the winter months. (3) To catch the birds readily you need a net, similar to a butterfly net, or a fisherman's landing net, but with a mouth at least 15 inches in diameter, and a five or six-foot handle. With this, and a little discretion and skill in wielding it, you should have no difficulty whatever in capturing any bird you wish in a very short time. To catch one haphazard I found, when I had birds flying loose in this manner, a common trap cage, into which the bird hops through the top on to an automatic perch, baited with hemp seed, a ridiculously easy method; but this would not act so well if you wanted to catch particular individuals. (4) If you find the birds infested with lice, you may quite safely, three times a week for a month, offer a bath to which you have added sulphurated potash in the proportion of a small teaspoonful to a pint of the bathing water. It will not rival canle Cologne, but will prove efficacious for the object in view, which is the main point after all.

TO CURE A COLD (A. B.).—Aconite is a powerful and dangerous poison, and as there are other remedies for colds equally efficacious, and quite safe and harmless, you do not lose anything by not being able to purchase the former drug. Keep the bird in a comfortable and fairly equable temperature, free from direct cold draughts, or extremes of temperature, though you need not overheat it, and for two days in every three for a week or so add to the drinking water five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, and sweet spirit of nitre. This should suffice to quite remove any ordinary cold. If there are any signs of hoarseness, a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar every second day may be added to the usual dietary for a week or so.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS

Answered by H. NORMAN.

MULES OR CANARIES? (F. Campbell).—The Linnet-Canary cross is such an easy one that you would be as likely to produce it as anyone else. If your Canary cock was in the moult when he ran with the hen, it does not seem to me possible for him to fertilise eggs. I have never yet heard of one doing so, although strange things do happen in the bird world. What I would advise you to do is to exhibit one of them again, under a well-known judge. Get to the show yourself and have a chat with him, and whatever his decision is he will be able to give you his reason for it. I fear in these times, when railway traffic is so disjointed, it would be too far to send them down here, although I should very much like to see them.

BULLFINCH WITH SWELLING (Perplexed).—I anticipate that the trouble with your Bullfinch is caused through your method of feeding. Seeds are all very well, and form the staple food to feed them upon, but in addition the birds should have an assortment of green food and berries. I fear all would be in much the same condition as your bird if we fed on all meat and no vegetables. Give it at once as much Glauber salts as will cover a sixpence dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of water, and let him have it to drink for one day, then miss a couple of days and repeat. Take a walk into the country lanes and collect a good big bunch of privet berries, and give him a spray of them daily. They will keep some time placed in damp sand or water and stood in a cool position. Bathe the eye with warm water with half a spoonful of boracic acid dissolved in it. I would also advise you to send to this office for the Nutsell booklet on the Bullfinch, and treat according to the directions given. The Bullfinch mixture you mention may not be quite the correct food for him. These mixtures are frequently sold for any Finch. Your better plan will be to follow the advice given in the book, buy the seed separately, and mix it yourself.

STUCK IN THE MOULT (Hugh S. Irvine).—Your bird has caught a chill, and unless you re-start him in the moult you will lose him. Place him in a cosy corner of the room and partly cover his cage with some thin material. Get 3d. of saffron from the chemist, 1oz. of glycerine, and 3oz. tincture of gentian; add to it half-pint of rom. Let it stand for a couple of days and give 15 drops in his drinker every other day. When he has well started again discontinue it, but be careful he does not catch cold.

FEEDING A NIGHTINGALE (Gale).—It is the usual thing to allow birds in captivity to have as much food as they require, and there should be no harm in doing so, providing it is of good quality and free from mustiness. If you think the insect life you gave him causes trouble, I would advise you to reduce the quantity somewhat. Many fanciers are not quite so liberal as you are, and yet they have good results. As a rule, most insectivorous birds are rather heavy feeders, and it is as well to occasionally give them an aperient. I would also advise you to induce him to partake of a fair quantity of soft fruit; it will assist very much in keeping him in healthy condition.

CANARIES WITH FINCHES. (??).—You do not say in your letter the sex of the Canaries that you think of adding to your collection. If they are cock birds, there should be no difficulty, as birds of one sex, as a rule, live amicably together, but if they are hens you could only keep them there during the winter, for as the spring approached their presence would cause considerable trouble among the others. Of course, I am presuming that all the birds you have now are males, although you omitted to mention it.

UNNATURAL GREENFINCH (Greenie).—It seems to me almost unnatural for a Greenfinch not to eat rape. Many will almost live on it, thrive well, and be contented, but, of course, the cause is that he has been badly reared and pampered. Have you tried him with it soaked or germinated, or rape alone, with nothing else? If he still persists in doing without it I would advise you to slightly increase the quantity of linseed, just sufficient to prevent constipation from eating so much of the drier seeds. (2) I would certainly continue with the soaked corn; I frequently use it myself. (3) He can do without the sunflower, although it is good food for them, and an extra quantity might take the place of the rape; it would be better than the extra linseed. (4) Most Greenies will eat the berries. (5) Only try him with one hen. As a rule they are silky and spiteful forced to mate with another partner.

BREEDING REDPOLL CANARY (A. Allan Vincent).—The above cross is not a very difficult one to produce, and the usual method is to use a Lesser Redpoll cock and a yellow Norwich Canary. Redpolls as a rule are very free breeders, and will mate with almost anything. To breed Hybrids fit for exhibition it is necessary to procure the very largest Redpoll it is possible to get. Of course, the Mealy is much larger than the Lesser, but the accepted theory is that these do not breed so freely as the Lesser, although personally I have had no difficulty in that; the Meales I have tried have bred as freely as the Lesser, but another drawback in using the larger bird is the certainty that almost all the young will be bufts, even although the hen is a yellow. Up to the present I have produced nothing but bufts when mating in this manner, although other breeders may have been more fortunate. (2) A book that would interest you is the "Secrets of Hybrid Breeders," post free 1s. 6d., from this office. It describes the experiences of many well-known Hybrid breeders.

CONCERNING REDPOLLS (Novice, S.P.).—The difference between the Mealy and the Lesser Redpoll that first strikes the observer is in the size, many Meales being half as big again as some of the Lessers. The latter is a brownish bird with very little white about it, whereas the Mealy is much greyer in colour with the wing coverts tipped with white and the body heavily streaked, he is a much heavier feathered bird than the Lesser, some specimens being quite rough in appearance. The difference in the sexes is most apparent when the birds are getting their spring plumage, the cock Mealy having a crimson head and breast which is absent in the hen. The cock Lesser has also this colour on the head and breast, and a rufous patch on the rump, the hen lacks the breast colour and also that of the rump.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

PARROT WITH FITS (E. E. C.).—I do not keep queries or replies by me, so I am unable to refer to previous instance. Give the bird at once three drops of tasteless castor oil direct to the beak and repeat this daily till the bowels have been thoroughly relieved, then keep them moving quite freely, but not watery-lose, by giving doses of the aperient as necessary. Get from your chemist a dozen 3-grain powders of bromide of potassium, and give one of these daily, for three successive days, by dissolving it in a little syrup, and then stirring it into the drinking water, which should consist of about one ounce (two table-spoonsful) and be given in a glass, china, or crock vessel; a metal receptacle must not be used. It is well to put something soft in the bottom of the cage, so as to remove all possible chances of its injuring itself while struggling—peat moss litter answers well; hay is not so good, as it gets round the bird's feet. Only keep one perch in the cage, a good thick one, and have this fairly low down. Remove the wire grating from above cage tray and do not use at all till the attacks have ceased. If the Parrot gives any signs of an attack coming on, give one of the powders at once; if not, use the twelve powders up as above, with a week's interval between the doses of three. Report progress in a fortnight, and then state fully how it has been fed previous to the attacks, and whether it is overfat or merely in good condition, and give its symptoms during the fourteen days as fully as you can.

BIRDS, ETC., FOR CONSERVATORY AVIARY (W. T. K.).—It would be better to cover the glass of the roof immediately over the aviary with roofing felt. This would make it more comfortable for the birds both in winter and summer. All clear glass must be covered with wire netting (1/2 in. mesh) on the inside. The trees in pots are quite in order. Drive some staples into the brick wall and, with the aid of binding wire, fasten thereto some jagged twigs of branches (pea-stick size). The bases of the branches should be 18 in. above the floor, and their tips touch the roof. Behind these branches hang up about a dozen rush nests (mixed sizes), as sleeping quarters and nesting receptacles. You have accommodation for from 6 to 8 pairs, according to their size. The following would make a very nice series, both for beauty and song: Pairs each of Pekin Robins (easily kept on cake crumbs, stiff milk sop, ripe fruit, and a few live insects; very attractive), Zebra Finches, Orange-breasted Waxbills, Bib Finches, Orange-cheeked Waxbills, Green Singing Finches, Pink-cheeked Waxbills, and Green Singing Finches; also 2 cock Weavers, say, Tala and Napoleon, for the sake of colour when in nuptial plumage. In addition to what you supply for the Goldfinch and Canaries, put in a mixture of canary, white and Indian millet in equal parts, and also supply millet sprays. You would find our Nuthatches, "Pekin Robin," "Avadavats," and "Waxbills," 2d. each, or "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1s. 2d., all post free from our manager, very helpful. Cannot recommend special traders in this column. All the birds named are advertised in "C.B." from time to time.

OBTAINING A TALKING PARROT (W. V.).—In sending you a reply per post I have indicated several advertisements in the last issue which would meet your requirements. Most dealers of repute would give you a written guarantee; at least, no vendor having a reliable bird for sale would need to withhold it, and I should refuse to purchase from any who declined. Of course, it is always best to procure an established bird, though more costly, and also, if possible, to see it or get some friend to do so and test its tameness, etc., before purchase. In recent issues of "C.B." there have been many likely adverts, and it those I have indicated do not produce what you want, then choose others from future issues on similar lines till you are suited. Do not deal with a stranger except by the deposit system. At the same time keep in view that a known really good bird is never cheap, except under very special circumstances, and one usually looks askance at an advert. offering a bird with high qualifications at a "give-away" price. I think the indications I have given should procure you what you want, but if any point is not clear, write again and I will reply per post.

GARDEN AVIARY (Budgie).—In so small an aviary it would have been better to have the roof entirely covered in, and I suggest you now making a flat board with a square of glass in the centre large enough to cover the wire portion of the roof, and hinge it to the back piece with draw hinges, then it could be removed altogether during fine warm weather and would be easily put over for wet periods and permanently for the winter months. The aviary would answer well as a Budgerigar aviary, especially if you improve it as above. The Virginian creeper will do no harm, but the Budgies will soon kill it, I fear. If you can buy birds straight from an aviary you can put them out at once, but birds that have been caged or flying loose indoors must not go out till the spring. Two pairs will be sufficient to start with. They breed more or less all the year round once started, but it is best, as far as possible, to confine them to March to October.

PEACH-FACED LOVEBIRDS WITH FINCHES (Hustings).—I have seen them kept with Finches and apparently agreeing well, but seeing that they are not too amiable, even with Parakeets twice or three their own size, when breeding, the wise will not attempt it. Making full allowance for all the individualism possible, Peach-faces are pugnacious birds, and it is not fair to subject Finches to the possible peril of their formidable beaks. With you (Hants) they would be hardly in any reasonable aviary with a small shelter attached, and a couple of small barrels for nesting operations. They would winter comfortably in an entirely unheated room, and the accommodation you propose for them would be ample. Some new importations arrive in a debilitated condition and need careful nursing at first, but if you procure an established (acclimatised) pair, they are little, if any, more difficult to keep than Budgerigars.

YOUNG YELLOW-FRONTED AMAZON (W.C.).—Your diet is fairly correct, but the seed mixture might be improved. Supply the following: One quart each oats, hemp and sunflower seeds; one pint each canary, white millet, dark, small maize, and shelled monkey nuts, and a gill of chilies. Well mix and keep a supply in the cage. Providing the bird is not thin, it should not now be necessary to give it boiled maize. Chemical food will form a useful tonic, but you must watch against constipation. The bowels should move quite freely without the voidings being watery-lose. To secure this put one teaspoonful of fluid magnesia into the drinking water, in lieu of the chemical food, as often as may be necessary. The moult of newly-imported birds is very irregular. Some Parrots are just about through the moult, others halfway, and others but just commencing. Newly-imported birds sometimes seem to moult more or less right through the first year of their stay over here. Keep it where it will get light and air, and yet be out of draught. It is possible to give it a light spraying during the winter. Spray it about noon and choose a bright warm sunny day for the purpose, and afterwards be careful of cold winds till the plumage is dry again.

SHARP CLAWS (E. M. L.).—Unless the claws are abnormally long it is simply a case of cutting off the sharp points with a pair of nail piners as often as may be necessary, and with a tame bird this will be simple indeed. In cutting a Parrot's claws the only thing to guard against is cutting back into the quick, for if you do this it bleeds rather badly, but in cases of mishap a touch of Priar's Balsam soon stops the bleeding. It should not be difficult to cut them yourself, but the claw must be held steady with one hand while you manipulate the piners with the other. The better plan is to get someone who knows the bird to hold it for you, and so leave both your hands free to hold the toe while cutting back the claw, as a slip might mean amputating half the toe.

PARROTS AND INFECTION (Richmond).—Personally, I never indulge Parrots so far as to permit them to feed from my mouth, as perfect chumminess and confidence is possible without. If a Parrot is suffering from an infectious disease communicable to human beings, and it is allowed to feed from its owner's mouth while suffering from such disease, then the owner would most probably pay the price of his, or her, folly. To assert that every Parrot has this, that, or the other, is absurd. Even with chickens and pheasants which you quote, they get the gape-worm by being on infected ground. All do not have it, and the same principle applies generally. Many of a Parrot's ailments would probably not infect a human being at all, but that is no reason why such a bird should be fed from the mouth. Such liberties should only be permitted with proved healthy individuals, but every creature has at least little ailments in the course of its life, and, small or serious, they are not always at once apparent; so, personally, though I have had, and have, some unannounced tame ones, they have never fed from my lips. As regards toys and amusements for Parrots, you are quite right. Most of the ill of caged Parrots have their origin in ennui, which the provision of a few toys soon obviates. But why not put a spoke in the wheel of freedom and amusement for Parrots yourself. How easy, under a pseudonym if you prefer it, to describe your toys, the use it makes of them, and the amount of liberty you allow it, etc. I am sure the Editor would be very pleased to find you the space.

GALAH GREY PARROT (H. Thomas).—Galah is one of the vernacular names for the Roseate Cockatoo. The grinning of the beak is quite natural, though it is also a sign of indigestion, especially if accompanied with gaping. Give it a more varied seed mixture. One quart each canary, white millet and hemp, one pint each oats, sunflower seeds, and shelled monkey nuts. Well mix and keep a supply in the cage. Supply ripe fruit daily and you can give as extras: raw carrot, dry boiled potato, pieces of bread, biscuit and plain cake. Keep cuttlebone, Parrot grit, and a thickish piece of a branch (for it to exercise its mandibles upon) continually in the cage. Nearly all Galahs are chummy, droll birds, but the majority are not great talkers; but there are fairly numerous exceptions, and if you take pains in training it, there is no reason why your bird should not develop the power of speech.

IS IT FINGER-TAME? (E. L. S.).—If it was as tame as represented, it ought by this to have become accustomed to you and to be doing the same to you. Of course, you must not confine it to the stick, but quietly seek to induce it to step from the stick to your finger. At any rate, you must not take it out of doors till it is quite accustomed to go about on your finger indoors and will fly from and return to your finger at any time. The difficulty out-of-doors is that there are such unexpected sources of fright, during one of which scares the bird might fly right out of sight of its home and be unable to find its way back; though when once they have become accustomed to a place the homing instincts of birds are marvellous. Write to its former owner. Your dietary is satisfactory. Avoid scaring it, but unless you offer your hand to it continually, it will grow out of its earlier habit. It will moult very soon or not till spring.

BIRDS FOR C.P. AVIARY (C. W. L.).—If you have Java Sparrows, a pair each of Grey and White would, with the two nest-boxes, fully occupy your cage, as they are large birds, and more or less bullies, too, so that small species mixed with them would fare badly in so confined a space. The White variety should ultimately breed in the cage, and probably the Grey also. You could put, say, three cock Weavers with them, which would give a dash of colour to the whole; good kinds would be: Napoleon, Red-billed, and Madagascan Weavers. As an alternative selection of small birds the following should make a nice show: Pair each of Zebra Finches (breeders), Silverbills, Golden-breasted Waxbills, Bib Finches, and Avadavats. For the first selection you would have to supply canary and white millet mixed in equal parts, a millet spray, soft food when they are feeding young, also green food, grit, water and cuttlebone; with one or two meadowlarks per bird per diem, for the Weavers. This dietary would also meet the need of the second selection, but for the former you must put one large rush nest in the top of each section, for the latter two medium-sized rush nests to each section, the twigsy branches for perches, and while it is in season flowering and seeding grass is the best green food; during the winter months ripe apple and frame lettuce may take its place. If your choice falls on the second selection get our Nuthatch, "Waxbills," and "Avadavats," 2d. each, post free from our manager, the treatment given therein would meet the need of all the birds in this series.

AMAZON WITH COLD (J. W. M.).—Stop giving the tea-sop at once, and if she calls for it, soak the bread in a strong mixture of chemical food and hot water. Bathe or spray the nostrils with a dilute glyco-thymoline solution. Though Parrots are not hearty drinkers, it is cruel to keep them entirely without water, but you will have to be careful in introducing it now, or the bird will do itself harm by over-drinking. Put a small vessel in containing a little water, and as soon as the bird has had a few sops take it away and do not offer again for a little time—offer it about three times a day at first, then a little more frequent, and in about a fortnight's time it should be safe to leave the water in the cage altogether. For one day put five drops of tasteless castor oil on the soaked bread, and whenever the voiding becomes at all still repeat the dose; at the same time, while moving freely, the bowels should not be allowed to remain watery loose. When not giving the castor oil put 8 to 10 drops of cod-liver oil emulsion to the soaked bread. Do not give any tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. You can add nuts, and pieces of biscuit and plain cake to its dietary. Also keep a piece of cuttlebone in its cage continually, and put a pinch of Parrot grit on the top of its seed daily. Report progress in about three weeks.

AILING BUDGERIGARS (Mrs. Cole).—Re the bird with the swollen foot, is there not some fancier or vet. whom you could let see it, as from your latest details, it would appear to be either a deformity or a dislocation, or a fracture left to set or itself, and it will not be of any use to the bird again; however, if there is no one you can show the bird to, if after about three weeks things should be just where they are now it will be far best to painlessly destroy it. As regards the second bird, where are you keeping them? It is evident that it has been in a draught and so caught a bad chill somehow, as these birds are so hardy that merely cold weather of itself would not bring it to this condition, and it must have been subjected either to damp or cold. I really cannot say whether it will recover or not definitely; if you have nearly cured it then it should, but if you have merely checked the trouble temporarily then it is probable it will die. Keep it in a warm equable temperature (not in a stuffy corner), and out of reach of draught. It will eat it, lightly spread a small piece of bread with cod liver oil emulsion, then moisten it with boiling milk, give this daily for a time. Get the following mixture: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glycerine in equal parts; for use, take one teaspoonful of the mixture to two table-spoonsful of water, and give this daily till the cold yields. If there should be any signs of constipation give one drop tasteless castor oil direct to the mouth from a quill, as often as required.

AMAZON PARROT WITH SORE MOUTH (J.B.W.).—Get a box of honey and borax, and put a little in its mouth twice daily till the mouth is quite clean—there are several ways of administering this, viz., lightly spreading it on a piece of bread, biscuit, or plain cake, or if the bird is playful and will bite at a piece of stick, then put a little of the mixture on the stick, and when the bird bites at it it will take the honey and borax, but only a clean stick must be put in the mixture. The bowels must be kept moving quite freely, but not watery loose; to effect this put one teaspoonful of fluid magnesia in the drinking water as often as may be necessary, and when not giving the magnesia lightly colour the water with chemical food. Give the bird, say, one table-spoonful of boiled maize—boil till soft, drain off all water, then put ten drops of cod-liver oil emulsion over it, and when cool supply to the bird—the boiled maize must be prepared fresh daily. You say nothing as to how you have been feeding, and this makes a helpful reply rather difficult. The dietary should consist of a seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, and such extras as pieces of bread, biscuit, and plain cake. Keep cuttlebone and grit continually in the cage. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Report progress in about three weeks' time.

BLUE-FRONTED AMAZON SLEEPY (R.W.C.).—It is a bad practice to put a healthy bird by the side of a new arrival, before the condition of the latter has been ascertained. The new bird should be fed for a time as it had been before coming into your possession. The dietary for established birds is: Seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, pieces of stale bread, biscuits, etc., but no table scraps, tea, coffee or milk sops should be given. One can only say that it will entirely depend on the bird's condition how long it will take to come round, and I should not trouble about the talking till it gets more lively; also I should keep the cage of the Cockatoo at some distance from it, yet where the birds can see each other, as they've already been introduced. In addition to the diet named above I should give boiled maize for a time—boil till soft, drain off all water, and then put over it ten drops of cod liver oil emulsion, and when cool supply to the bird. The bowels must be kept moving freely, but should not be watery-lose. As required, to secure this "happy medium," put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in the drinking-water, and when not giving this, lightly colour the drinking water, with chemical food. Give it a piece of bread or plain cake daily, lightly spread with honey and borax. When the bird is fit, if the Cockatoo is a talker he should help the other bird, they are sure to mimic each other. So if he has any unpleasant raucous calls they had better be kept apart. Cuttlebone and Parrot grit should be kept in the cage regularly, but till it has become accustomed to the latter only a pinch daily should be given.

TREATMENT OF PEACH-FACED LOVEBIRDS ETC. (H.J.E.).—(1) A seed mixture of 1 quart each canary and white millet, one pint oats and 1 pint safflower seeds—well mix the whole and keep up a continuous supply of some. (2) The temper of most pairs of Peach-faces in the nesting season effectively prevents them being kept with other species, though there are exceptions which are fairly amiable, but they are safer alone. Success is more probable in the aviary, but there is no reason why they should not breed in a roomy cage, say, three feet square at base and about the same height. A small barrel makes a good nest receptacle. (3) I assume that the Plumhead is in a cage. In addition to your present dietary give it a few drops (7 to 10) of cod liver oil emulsion daily on a piece of sponge cake or anything similar. Secure free movement of the bowels, not undue looseness, by an occasional laxative in the drinking water (one teaspoonful of fluid magnesia is the best), and also put it on a course of chemical food.

GREY PARROT ILL (Maker Up). You had better get our Nuthatch, "The Gray Parrot" 2d., post free from our manager, and read and treat your bird as advised therein. The dietary should consist of seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, pieces of stale bread, biscuit and plain cake; also Parrot grit, cuttlebone and water. Dissolve three drops of tincture of opium in a little syrup, and stir this quantity into the drinking water on three successive days, then repeat again after an interval of three days, the water into which you stir the above should consist of two table-spoonsful of warm water and one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia. Do not give any more tea sop, but in lieu of same soak the bread in a strong liquid of chemical food and warm water. To keep up its strength give ten drops of cod liver oil emulsion on a piece of sponge cake or anything similar it will eat. Keep it warm, out of draught, yet not in a stuffy corner. Remove and burn the voidings promptly.

PARROT WITH DIARRHŒA (Mrs. D. H.).—I have turned up the previous reply and I can add but little thereto. You must continue the treatment in all respects, but into the milk preparation put several pieces of stale household bread, not sufficient to entirely absorb the milk—some liquid should be left round the bread. Regulate the water supply as already advised, and burn the voiding at once. Keep the bird warm and out of draught, yet not in a stuffy corner. Offer it pieces of arrowroot biscuit at intervals during the day, and keep a piece of cuttlebone in the cage. If the beak is abnormally long it should be cut back, but be careful not to cut back to the vein. A small log of wood in the cage may help the bird to keep its beak properly trimmed. Put a little honey and borax in its mouth daily for the next month.

SEEDS FOR SENEGAL PARROT (E. M. K.).—There is no hard and fast rule, but I always found this species very fond of canary seed, and I used the following mixture with good results: One quart canary seed, one pint each oats, white millet, hemp and sunflower seeds, and half a pint of shelled pea nuts—well mix, store in dust tight tin and keep in a dry place. Ripe fruit, pieces of biscuit, plain cake, cuttlebone and Parrot grit must be regularly supplied. You can also supply other nuts, such as Barcelona and walnuts, shelled or unshelled. If you find an undue quantity of the small seeds left, you can reserve them after picking them clean and then add more large seed to them. However, after filling up the seed-tin in the morning, do not replenish again during the day, so long as there remains any seed in the tin. All Parrots eat their favourite kinds first.

PARROT LAYING IN CAPTIVITY (B. Cook).—Such cases are by no means uncommon. For one day put one teaspoonful of fluid magnesia in the drinking water, and repeat the dose after an interval of three days. On other days lightly colour the water with chemical food. In addition to the ordinary seed diet, fruit and nuts, supply pieces of bread, biscuit or plain cake (either will do, whichever the bird prefers), that have been lightly spread with cod-liver oil emulsion. Such as fruit, biscuits, nuts, etc., can be offered freely; tempt its appetite with such as it favours most, so as to encourage it to eat as much as possible. It would be wise to keep it fairly warm, as egg-laying, at any rate for the first time after such a period, is always accompanied by risk. Keep cuttlebone, grit, and a lump of mortar rubbish in the cage.

BREEDING IN WINTER (Enid).—Many breeders just leave their birds to go on breeding or not, as they please, all the year round; others take down all nest receptacles, but this does not stop danger of exhaustion, as they often attempt to nest in holes on the ground, etc.; and yet others separate the sexes for the winter, and if you can conveniently do this, it is the better course, as it gives the birds a period of rest, and you are more likely to get good results from three nests than from four or five or more under other conditions. I consider the period they can be associated together for breeding purposes to be from April to October inclusive. I also consider it better if they can be in divisions of the aviary out of sight of each other during the separation period. When you put the sexes together again, only put those up for breeding that are absolutely fit in every respect.

BREEDING BUDGERIGARS (A. B. C.).—As you are a beginner you should procure our Nuthatch, "Budgerigars," 2d., post free, from our manager. Budgerigars will nest either in a hollow log, small barrel, or coco-nut husk, and they do not require any nesting material whatever; they will fashion the interior of the receptacle to their liking, and then deposit their eggs on the bare wood or the fibre of the husk.

POST MORTEM.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon any cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's. J. H. Booth.—Not contagious. Enteritis following digestive disturbance. The latter either through errors in dieting, or the too free use of rich foods, producing a catarrhal inflammation of the mucous membrane of the intestines, with consequent mal-flamatory changes. The bird was in a depleted nutrition, rendering the subject an easy prey to infection and very anemic.

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL

It is the only year book of the Fancy. It has been truly described as an ENCYCLOPAEDIA OF BIRDY MATTER.

And there is not any bird-keeper who could fail to be interested and benefited by its perusal. Something for everybody is on every one of its pages; it tells you how to save money in many ways on your seed and food bill; how to conduct your operations on a profitable basis; how to regulate your work in the bird-room month by month; how to construct and stock a fascinating aviary; and numberless other things of supreme importance to all bird-keepers.

This Edition has met with such success, and is selling so fast, that one day's delay may mean you cannot get one!

For a Complete Knowledge of British Birds You Can't Beat

By H. NORMAN.

The Most Thorough and Practical Work on British Birds ever Produced. Published in two parts and complete bound in cloth. Part I. Hardbills. Deals in the fullest manner with Linnets, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and all other varieties of Finches. Part II. Softbills. With Blackbirds Thrushes, Jackdaws, Larks, and most of the more commonly kept species of insectivorous birds.

This work, lucidly written by a noted specialist, contains fullest directions for Hand-rearing, Keeping, and Exhibiting the most popular of our British Birds. Each bird is dealt with separately, its nesting habits, etc., are fully explained, and these, together with a description of its general characteristics, will enable the novice to easily identify the various species. Each part contains a coloured plate and numerous black and white illustrations by the author.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL.

Real practical information on every variety of Canary illustrated with an art plate of a standard bird is contained in

The author, that well-known expert and judge, gives much useful instruction on AVIARIES and CAGES, BREEDING, MOULTING, EXHIBITING, DISEASES & THEIR CURE, SEEDS, Etc., and devotes a separate chapter to each individual variety. Get a copy now, it will help you this coming breeding season.

Price 1/2 post free, cloth bound, 2/2.

Wisely fed birds are healthy birds, and healthy birds do you service. Avoid all errors of diet in feeding them, therefore will help you to feed them properly. It is especially valuable at this season when wild foods are to be had in such abundance, merely for the gathering. There are many sketches and illustrations of all the best known wild plants. 1/2 post free.

A HANDY BOOK.

MULE and HYBRID BREEDERS make your 1916 breeding season a record in every way by purchasing a copy of

CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS.

This great work is written by CHARLES HOULTON, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading Exhibitor, and a leading Expert and Judge. Edited by G. E. Weston and C. A. House.

Complete Bound in Cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. Magnificently Illustrated by that great bird artist, MR. H. NORMAN.

MARVELLOUSLY COMPREHENSIVE.

First of all are considered at great length the question of cages and aviaries for hybrids. All the various methods of housing are thoroughly and carefully described. The perches are minutely detailed; nests and nesting material have a chapter to themselves. Mr. Houlton's special cage for hybrid breeding is clearly described and illustrated. All the foods, natural and artificial, are enumerated. Egg and other soft foods and their feeding values dealt with. The selection of the stock is debated at length. The hens which breed light and dark exhibition mules described. The proper breeding procedure for Dark Goldfinch Mules gone into. Egg binding and its treatment. The food supply. Care of the young hybrids. All these topics are treated with that experience and skill only an expert of Mr. Houlton's standing could bring to such a task.

There are no less than Sixteen Coloured and Sixteen Art Plates in this work. EACH PLATE IS A PERFECT STUDY OF AN INDIVIDUAL HYBRID. Every plate shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present day type and general characteristics of a prize-winning Hybrid.

THE PRACTICAL AND COMPREHENSIVE WORK WHICH ALL HYBRID BREEDERS REQUIRE.

ALWAYS USE "CAGE BIRDS" DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

FRED ALLEN, BRITISH BIRD CHAMPION

I INVITE YOU

to see the best and largest stock of British and Canaries in the North. All my birds are sent on 7 days' approval (longer if desired), for cash, or deposit with Editor. Give me a trial order, please, and I guarantee you will not regret it. I am expecting 200 Siskins to arrive in the next few days, and am now booking orders for them; cocks, 2/6, 3/6; yellows, with bills, specially picked for exhibition, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6 each. Norwich type cock Linnets, the best and largest in England, splendid colour, well pencilled, steady as rocks, 2/6 each, and two monsters, 3/6 each. Cock Hawfinches, gems, and ready to win, 15/6, 20/-, 25/- each. Monster yellow cock Greenfinch, equal to Mr. Lang's winner, only 2/6. Cock Chaffinch, a beauty, 6/6. H.M. Brambling, a gem, 7/6. Cock Goldfinches, gems, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6 each. I have a few House-mountain Linnets, perfect, and well known winners on the bench, feathers like silk, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6 each. Gem of a Redpoll, 2/6. Grant Yellow Bunting, 2/6. Splendid Reed Buntings, 1/6, 2/-, and one a gem, 2/6. Now, you Linnet singers, if your birds are not singing send 1/- for a bag of my secret mixture; half-teaspoonful does the trick. I won all my prizes on this. It is acknowledged by all that I have the best strain of singing ever heard. Our House-mountain birds have won at Hull, Leeds, Bradford, Hunslet, Newton, Batley, Morley, Blackburn, Huddersfield, etc. I am willing to dispose of these champions at 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/- each. Also "Young 'Un," a bird that has never been beaten, price 40/-. These birds are mad proud, and will sing anywhere, and for catching, well, they will keep any catcher and family. I have also a grand lot of youngsters, clean through moult, on grand song, and being learnt under my undefeated champion of England (Cup winner), prices, 2/6, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6 each; also a grand lot of kitchen songsters, 1/-, 1/6. SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nutshell No. 26," by H. J. Full-james. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with most varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealworms? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 2/6, from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest and get it for 2d.

THERE is no more lovely seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutshell No. 14," from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2d. From agents (see list frequently published).

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once, 2d. post free from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

THOSE who have bought or those who are about to buy a Grey Parrot, should get "Nutshell No. 17," it only costs 2d. post free, but the tips it gives are priceless: from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. (2d. from agents, a list of whom is published frequently.)

PAINTING AND ENAMELLING SHOW AND OTHER CAGES.

By
R. T. Campbell
(Dunfermline).

OF late many show cages have been made up with three-ply wood, and although this makes a very light cage and saves time in the dressing of the wood, the grain of the wood is much rougher, and sometimes, even although it is picked wood, we find a raggedness in it which does not make a very nice surface for painting on. Moreover, you will find that three-ply wood springs at the joints much easier than ordinary woods, and is apt to show open joints before long.

To treat wood which is open in the grain, give it a coat of oil first; then with a little distemper or duresco in the stiff state, and with the aid of a flat knife, scraper, or plane iron, draw a little of either over the surface of the wood, when you will find the "pores" are all filled up. Let this harden, after which give it all a slight damp with cold water and polish it all over with the pumice stone again. When the cage is dry again give it a second coat of oil paint, sandpaper down again, apply a coat of flat paint, and then enamel for a finish.

The Use of Size or Glue.

I have read from time to time in CAGE BIRDS letters in which the writers recommend a coat of size or thin glue as a ground work, or priming coat, but in my opinion this is not a system that can be recommended; it is far too ready to crack, chip, or peel off. If you are pressed for time on your job, better give the new wood a thin coat of spirit varnish first. This will save time, as it dries in a few minutes, and you can proceed to paint over it after having sandpapered it over and filled up any holes.

As regards the painting of loose fronts, lay them out on a piece of paper and dab the paint, as it makes a better job than trying to paint them as you would do anything in the ordinary circumstances.

For the painting of flight or breeding cages I prefer oil paint and enamel to distemper or "Duresco"; I find it more profitable in the end; one cannot wash with any freedom any of these cold water paints, and in the case of breeding cages, when you wish to start off each round in the most healthy condition, enamel can be washed over, dried, and the birds replaced in a few minutes, whereas when you re-distemper a cage, it takes at least three hours before you can run back the birds with safety.

You will find it much easier to do the outside than the inside of your box cages. If they be new cages you can use spirit varnish first, if you like, or give two coats of oil paint, then a coat of flat black, but if you prepare the black paint yourself, see that you are a little more liberal with the patent driers, as the black pigment needs more driers than white lead. Then finally use black enamel, although personally I like to use as a finish a good japan got from some coach-painter. If you let the black enamel or japan stand by the fire a short time, or on the hob of the kitchen range with the lid removed, it will work more freely, and this also helps to harden it.

For the re-enamelling of wire cages, such as Border Fancy or Yorkshire show cages, I expect anyone will find ways and means of making a decent job of the outside, but some little ingenuity is required to make the same job of the interior. Some of these cages are made on a punch-bar frame, and made to detach from the base of the cage. You should find no difficulty in doing up these cages, provided you have a brush very short in the handle, cut down in fact to the top of the binding; but the easiest plan is to gently remove the bottom of the cage and proceed to use the short-handled brush and then re-fasten the bottom by using a fine wire nail.

When washing any of your cages, never use a strong solution of soda, it surely will take the face or finish off your paint or enamel, but always use a little disinfectant in the water.

Never Leave Brushes About.

Never leave your paint or enamel brushes lying out, or in the paint for any length of time, but place them in a hardware pot with water well up on the binding.

It is not within the scope of this article to treat on the various shades of paint and enamel used at the present day on the show cages in use, except you are compelled by the particular specialist club you may be showing under. Pay attention while visiting any good show to the colour of the show cages used by the leading exhibitors, and if you are convinced that the colour of the cage is helping to enrich the plumage of the bird, then try and reproduce it.

But very often you find it a difficult job to carry forth the exact shade in your eye until you continue to make the experiment. Well, one good plan is to ask your painter for an old colour sample board (these boards are about twelve inches square), and you will find something like 50 different shades of paint. Cut this board up into suitable sizes that can be carried in the vest pocket, and at the next show you visit, spot the cages and make a mark on your boards against the particular shade you wish to copy. Many a good wrinkle can be picked up this way, and after you have mastered the cage question perhaps you may be able to "keep in" with the better-half by applying your artistic tastes in making "The House Beautiful."

I find on reference to my pedigree book that her ancestors on the female side were invariably labelled "pale in colour." I account for this peculiarity in the following manner: Some two or three years ago I was engaged in building up a strain of Muling hens, hoping by this means to breed a much-coveted clear Mule. I proceeded to carry out my own idea to attain my object, viz., to breed only from the palest-coloured birds, and then to pair father to daughter and vice versa. I certainly got my birds very pale in colour, and had quite fifty per cent. of variegated Mules, whilst I found at least one clear Mule dead in the nest at a few days old; I suppose the good usually die young.

When I took to exhibiting Norwich Plainheads, I cleared my muling stock out with one exception, a really good buff hen, which I decided to introduce into my strain of Norwich. I quite think that to this hen belongs the honour of being great-grandmother of the white specimen now in my possession. I sometimes think that if I had persevered in my way of breeding muling hens I might ere this have bred a pure white Mule.

But I must not dream of what might have been, but rather look at things as they are, and whilst not wishing for a moment to belittle any kind of bird, I modestly affirm that there are few things more beautiful than a good exhibition Norwich Plainhead Canary.

If these few remarks give as much pleasure to some fancier in the reading as to myself in the writing, I shall be amply repaid for any little time spent for the good of the Fancy in general and our paper in particular.

Correspondence.

Thanks from Gallipoli.

SIR,—I want to say how very thankful I am to you for copies of your splendid paper, CAGE BIRDS, which I received on Nov. 1. I shall distribute the extra copies, and try to get some recruits for the Fancy on our return home.

More Specials Offered.

SIR,—I read with interest the announcement in your issue of Nov. 20 of Mrs. Dalton's fine offer of a 10s. special for a Yellowhammer at Cardiff, and doubtless CAGE BIRDS will duly tell us something of the winner.

I would like to see other societies expand themselves a bit in the Bunting class, and if there are any other societies giving the Yellowhammer a run who care to accept modest specials in-kind (books, etc.), I shall be pleased to make an offer to the first half-dozen applicants after publication of this letter.

The Novice Question: A Moot Point.

SIR,—I have won several first prizes in open competition in the United States, but have not won one in the open in this country. I should be glad if you would inform me if I am eligible to compete in "Novice" in England, or if I should have to enter in open classes.

F. A.

[This is a point which, we think, has not yet arisen in England, and, as we have never met with a similar case, we hesitate to give an opinion. We should be inclined, however, to say that our correspondent, having won in open competition, should exhibit as a champion. We should be glad to hear our readers' views on the point. Possibly the birds which "F. A." had to compete against in the U.S.A. were not by any means of the quality to be met in our own open classes, and this might be a factor to be considered in coming to a decision.—Editor CAGE BIRDS.]

Watford Crisis Over.

The Annual Show to be Held as Usual.

SIR,—It gives me great pleasure to announce that Watford C.B.S. will be able to hold its show in the Halsey Hall as originally intended. The Military Authorities have notified that they will not require this hall for the present, and they have been informed that the premises are let for Dec. 8 and 9. All we ask now is for the liberal support of the Fancy, as a reward for our efforts to "keep the flag flying." A liberal classification for Canaries and British, in addition to an exceptional one for foreign birds, is provided, for an entry fee of 1s. 6d. We are in negotiation with the railway company to get some better arrangements to facilitate the despatch of the exhibits at the close of the show, thereby remedying the inconvenience of last year. There is a good train service from Euston and a through service of fifteen minutes from South London by the Bakerloo, via Willesden. We trust the Fancy will support us both by exhibiting and visiting our show, and then we shall feel amply rewarded.

The Value of Wild Seeds to Exhibition Britishers.

SIR,—Many Sheffielders will be pleased, as I am myself, that your artist displayed his undoubted ability by depicting my winning Greenfinch in your last issue. Some correspondence has recently taken place in your columns concerning the merits or demerits of feeding British birds on wild seeds during the moult. A few words of my experience, I hope, may not be considered out of place. My birds are moulted out of doors, and are given all the wild seeds they will eat whilst in season. I have the advantage of growing most of the wild seeds in my garden. My birds have an abundance of this fresh wild food as required, and during this time the ordinary seeds in the pots are mostly untouched, the birds showing a decided preference for the former. The wild seeds and foods (with plenty of water for bathing and drinking) are all the "colour food" my birds have, yet they receive praise for their colour in your show reports, and do well on the show benches. I do not wish to insinuate that there are not some very good birds exhibited that are moulted on hard seed and colour food. I, however, have a preference for the food the British bird is most used to in its wild state, also to get them to the nearest approach to their natural colour.

The Trouble of the "Sweating" Hen.

SIR,—From Mr. Smithson's reply I am afraid he has not learned much wisdom, despite his great experience. I can give him some start in years, and quality, of the variety he names, but I may say I have lost hundreds of pounds worth of birds through this so-called "sweating" business, and still I do not blame the birds, but the breeder. I for one cannot accept his theory, for I have always found the hen that cleans her nest best and longest brings forth the most and best-developed young.

A Hall for London's Proposed Great Show.

SIR,—In CAGE BIRDS of Saturday last I note you hint at the possibility of a big London show being held early next year. To those who have the matter under consideration, may I suggest as a venue the People's Palace in the Mile End Road? Only a few days ago, one of the Kennel Clubs held a most successful show there, and I believe I am correct in saying that in past years many a good cage-bird show has been held in this fine building; so why not again?

A Mistake Made en Route.

SIR,—Would you inform your readers as to the reason my birds were not at Haltham show? They were sent off on Thursday night, but arrived home again on Saturday morning, never having been at the show. Another box of birds from Brechin went by the same train and arrived all right. Could all expenses be recovered from the railway company?

JOHN CRAIG.

[If the fault was clearly that of the railway company—this would seem to have been the case—then Mr. Craig should certainly claim of them the return of the amount paid for carriage on the outward journey, also the amount of his entry fees at the show.—Editor, "C.B."]

Do Birds Kill Imprisoned Young?

SIR,—I read with interest in your valuable paper of the 13th Nov. the letter on the above. I think I can give you an instance which bears out Mr. Green's case. An uncle of mine got two young Thrushes, and placed them in a farmer's garden one Friday afternoon within reach of the parent birds. Going ever to see the farmer on the following Sunday, his son passed the remark that the Thrushes were all right. My uncle and the farmer went and smoked their pipes in the greenhouse, which was situated in the garden. They had been there about an hour when the son came back and said the Thrushes were dead. When they went to the cage there the birds were lying with their legs pointing skywards.

CURIOUS.

Another Aspect of the Novice Question.

SIR,—Being a regular reader of your paper, CAGE BIRDS, I should be greatly obliged if you will let me know what constitutes a novice. I was at a recent show, and heard a lot of remarks concerning the winner of novice open cup. He lives in the same house as his father, also his father has got a great interest in the birds that won. Now I would like to know whether he should not have been showing in open classes, considering his father is an open champion, but was not showing at this show, only his son. Another exhibitor entered his wife's birds in the novice class, but the entries were returned, stating she was not eligible for novice, as her husband was a champion, and she would have to show in open competition. I would like to know your opinion about two persons residing in one house. I and others I know have always been of opinion that where two exhibitors resided in one house, and one was champion, the other had to show in open. Why I am asking you this is because a raw novice run him a dead heat with points for cup, only losing it because the winner had more prize money to pick up. I consider it hard lines on beginners if this is allowed to go on at open shows, but I will leave it with you, trusting you will give me a fair and plain answer in your next issue.

NOVICE.

[The show rules of most societies with which we are acquainted distinctly state that all exhibitors residing in the same house must show in the highest section in which any one of them may have to compete. Thus if one is a champion all must show as champions. We were under the impression that this was the rule governing the novice sections at all shows—it obtains at the Crystal Palace.—Editor CAGE BIRDS.]

HOW I BRED MY WHITE CANARY.

By E. WILCOX (New Sawley).

WITH pleasure I accede to the Editor's request to furnish a few particulars concerning the White Canary I have exhibited this season. The bird is a hen, possessed of really good Norwich properties, and in this respect could hold her own in good company. I have only exhibited her once, previous to the present season. This was at Long Eaton, under Mr. J. H. Roe, when she beat my best buff hen, which had stood first at Ilkeston, etc. I entered her as a buff hen, to which colour she inclined when coloured. I sent her to Alfreton show this season and entered her in the natural colour class, when I suppose the judge wished to disqualify her, but accepted the committee's decision to let her remain. I maintain that white is her natural colour. What say the critics?

Bred from a good-coloured buff cock and yellow hen, both clear, I noticed when in her nest feather she was unusually pale in colour. I hoped by colour feeding to improve this, but was unsuccessful. I did not exhibit her, as stated above, because of her pale colour, knowing that I could not hope to win when I had to sacrifice colour. I therefore decided not to colour-feed her this season, intending to exhibit her in the natural colour classes, when to my surprise she moulted out clear white. I sold a buff hen from this bird last season, and I learn from the buyer that she also has bred a pure white hen.

Young Bird Points Competition.

Sir,—As exhibitors are writing me with regard to their position re the Provincial show, kindly make it known that the B.R.C.C. Young Bird Point Competition does not take place at that show. Exhibitors can please themselves about sending their birds for competition; at the same time they must bear in mind that any points they may score will not count in the B.R.C.C. Young Bird Point Competition.

Short Entries and the Cause.

Sir,—We often read about short entries. I think the rules and classes should be made to suit all fanciers. I am a great fancier of the Goldfinch, and I have bred mules about 70 years. I generally keep 4 or 5 Goldies and I think I have the best now that I have ever had. I had a great desire to enter it at Newcastle show, but found there are seven or eight classes each for the Canaries and only the half one for such a popular bird as the Goldfinch—the Bullfinch enjoys the other half. How the judge can give satisfaction with two birds having no resemblance to each other I cannot think. He would be entitled to a medal. If I was judge I would pass on to the next class, and they might cast lots for the first prize. I think, too, that nine in a class is too many for the half-price money limit. Just imagine the judge awarding you first prize, and when you go to get it you are told that you are only entitled to half prize money, as there are only nine birds in the class. We live in excitable times.

WILLIAM RICHARDSON.

A Charity Show at Bristol.

Sir,—I beg the favour of space to refer to Bristol Show, classification of which is appearing. I believe, in CAGE BIRDS this week. All profit on the show is to be given to the Bristol Police and Fire Brigade Children's Home. This is especially fitting, for no less than 243 of the Bristol Police and Fire Brigade have joined the colours, and I know others anticipate doing so. I may add that since the war commenced, the committee of the Home have made no appeal whatever to the public for a penny.

With regard to our own society, I may mention that at least three of our present small executive committee have joined the colours, and another recent member holds a commission in the R.F.A. We have been obliged to curtail our classification somewhat, but this does not affect the cage bird section so much as others, for we shall have a very fine special room available for the cage birds, lighted solely from the top, and absolutely free from all possible draught. The preparation of catalogue will naturally be more difficult in these times of shortage of labour, and I would therefore appeal to fanciers not only to help a most deserving cause by sending entries, but also to assist us by sending early.

Birds as Tame as Dogs.

The Young Goldfinch that Gladly Returned Home.

Sir,—Apropos of Mrs. M. J. Parker's charming account of a Chaffinch's friendship, I could, as a result of a life experience of birds, give many similar stories. I recall one incident that occurred 20 years ago in the county of Durham. I presented to my sister a "grey pate" Goldfinch, which became very tame and was a great pet. He was allowed much liberty in the living room of the family, and one day escaped through a window accidentally left open. He flew straight over the fields to a wood hard by. Several miners, who are inveterate bird lovers, assisted my sister in an effort to recover him, but eventually he was lost to view. On the following day I suggested another attempt, without outside help. My sister carried the cage in her hand and walked through the wood calling "Goldie, Goldie." Soon we heard his voice approaching, and presently Goldie perched in a tree over our heads and sang with all his might. The cage was put on the ground, and we stood a few yards away. Without hesitation "Goldie" flew down and entered, allowing us to walk up and make him a happy "prisoner" again. He exhibited the greatest delight on being restored to his old home.

N.W. GLASGOW.

Third Annual Show, Nov. 20, in the Blythswood Halls, a very comfortable room for the purpose, being roomy and free from draughts. Nearly 350 birds were neatly staged on the three tier principle all round the four sides. Despite the miserable weather visitors turned out gamely, the hall being packed from end to end. Owing to the dense fog birds were far from being at their best, which must have caused the judges considerable trouble, as the judging was done in gas-light, but was got through in good time. The management were a very capable body of fanciers; Sec. P. Houston is obliging and courteous to all, and is strongly supported by Pres. R. B. Gibb, vice-pres. P. Thorn and J. Stewart, jun.; committee, Messrs. Phillips, Paterson, Findlay, Loan, Adams, Brown, Taylor, Crawford, and Stewart. The six valuable trophies were on view, the winners are: Best young Scotch Fancier, J. Young; young Nor., also young (rungs) bird, P. Houston; young Bord., W. Loan; best young Yorks, J. B. Pincock; Brit., E. Taylor. Judges were: Scotch Fancier, J. Smith, Howood, and G. Blackstock, Glasgow; Nor., W. Grewar, Lechelly; Bord., J. Craig, Brechin; Yorks, J. McLean, Renfrew; Brit., A. W. READING.

The Fanciers of Reading once more succeeded in holding a very fine exhibition in the Palmer's Hall on Nov. 17. Although the collection was slightly below previous years in numbers, it was nevertheless a grand display, and the open classes filled excellently. It was in the members' section that the faling oil occurred, and this through the many men at the front or engaged at war work. Quality was of the very highest class, and one could not wish to see a better collection of the popular varieties. The committee this year added a couple of Border classes with excellent results, and will no doubt extend them another time; the birds staged were some of the best of the Southern birds. Norwich were a grand lot, type, quality, and size being well represented. Mr. Saunders, of Haslemere, won in yell. and buff cocks, with two beauties, taking the special with the yellow for best Norwich. The unlighted buff class was a good one, and very little separated the winners. Mr. Silk's birds arrived too late for judging, although sent off in good time the day before. In this matter this exhibitor has been particularly unfortunate, his birds being late for the L. and P.O.S. Show, and only arriving just in time at Bedford. Yorks were a very level lot, and needed careful sorting over, some of the winners were very fine specimens. The special for best in the show was secured by a lovely yell. unlighted owned by Mr. Last, a first year champion who is doing remarkably well. Although the members' section was not so full as on previous occasions the quality was quite up to the mark, and we heard of several of the winners changing hands at the catalogue prices, the total sales amounted to £17 2s. 6d. As usual the foreign section was particularly choice and attracted quite its share of attention from the visitors. Mr. A. Silver did remarkably well, staging a winner in every class. The management was all that one could desire, and everything was in proper order and for this the society and exhibitors have to thank Mr. O. C. Smith, the secretary, who is quite keen, and a real worker, his committee consisting of the following fanciers:—Messrs. Munday, chairman; Brooker, vice; Yates, Dearlove, Laurence, Meadowcroft, George Frewin, Eggleton, Larcom, Fyke, and Foster, all worked well. The hall is well lighted, and beautifully warmed, and a little music was provided during the afternoon and evening. Mr. H. Norman judged.

NOR. YELL. (12): 1, vhc, Saunders, very fine, short, neck set bird, good head and wings, rich col. and lovely silky feather; 2, Sears, the Bedford winner, grand head, full Bullfinch neck, scarcely so deep as leader, but very hot col. and qual.; 3, he, Lovegrove, not quite so massive, but a real Nor., all over, and well put down; c, Stubbs Bros. BUFF (12): 1, he, Saunders, not the largest in the class, but excelling in type, qual. of feather, and general proportions, a real Norwich; 2, Lovegrove, wonderful size, and good in type, and wing carr., scarcely so nicely proportioned as winner, but quite worthy of its position; 3, Graves, not a monster, but quite good, full head, and neat clean cut, and nicely braced wings, grand qual.; vhc, c, Noyce; he, HEN (5): 1, Frost and Rogers, wonderful size for a yellow lady, beautifully proportioned and filled in, full head and neck, nicely cut away; 2, Gough and Leach, another charmer, not a monster for a buff, but beautifully shaped, clean cut, excellent wing carr., lovely qual.; 3, Graves, good yell., nice type, although scarcely so full fronted as leader, neat head, good wings and tail, and fine con.; vhc, Saunders; he, Sears; c, Kerr. UNFLIG. YELL. (6): 1, Gough and Leach, grand size, bold front, full head and neck, capital wings, nice tone of col., excellent qual., should make up well; 2, Fellow, beauty, quite as good on points, nicely rounded in front, scarcely so deep in col.; 3, Saunders, quite the type and style, red hot col., lovely qual. feather, not quite so massive; vhc, Larcom. BUFF (16): a real good class, the leader, Saunders, a bird of marvellous col. for a buff, massive, full fronted, neat, full head and neck, nice short wings and tail; 2, Sears, charming wing mtd., excellent type, almost perfection, just a crossing of the wings spoils the outline, otherwise a gem; 3, vhc, Lovegrove, another good one, fine size, very typical, nicely proportioned, good qual., well up with leaders; he, Graves; c, Noyce. YORKS, YELL. CK. (13): 1, Hoyle, lovely wing and eyes, tdk., grand length and style, well up on perch, nicely balanced, smart wings, neat tail, in the pink; 2, Cook, grand cl., long and shapely, neat head and neck, capital wings, fine qual.; 3, vhc, Runchman, charming cinnamon, mtd., fine length and style, good pos., free, nicely balanced; Al qual.; he, Montague; c, Nicholls. BUFF (5): 1, Fulford, the Bournemouth winner, as fit as a fiddle, a real Yorkie, all over, wonderful feather; 2, Panchi, grand head, tdk., rare length of side, good wings and tail, capital shoulders, smooth front, Al qual.; 3, Hoyle, typical, nice pos., neat head, grand wings, shade rough in plumage, but when fit a good one; vhc, Yates; he, Clarke. HEN (5): 1, Montague, none too clean, but a winner all over, stylish, fine pos., nice length, neat head and good shoulders; 2, Fulford, grand hen, but scarcely at her best, beautifully proportioned, grand shoulders and back, capital wings; 3, he, Runchman, good buff, fine length, stylish, well up on leg, neat wings, Al qual., in fine letter; vhc, Last; c, Hoyle. UNFLIG. YELL. (9): 1, sp, best Yorks, Last, charming, fit as a fiddle, lovely type, grand length, tightly braced wings, rich col., lovely qual.; 2, Troke, another beauty, grand length of side, good shoulders and back, neat wings, fine qual.; 3, Fulford, scarcely so large, very neat and stylish, well up on leg, fine pos., hot col.; vhc, Nicholls; he, Runchman; c, Yates. BUFF (8): 1, Fulford, another Bournemouth winner, lovely 4-ptd., beautifully moulded, finest pos. and style, good head and shoulder, grand qual.; 2, Troke, fine length, typical, neat head, good shoulders, fine cond.; 3, Clarke, smart wing tdk., nicely balanced and moulded, good shoulders and back, lovely qual.; vhc, Nicholls; he, c, Runchman. BORD., OLD BIRDS (14): 1, Montague, lovely buff, grand type and style, free, neat head, nicely rounded front, well braced wings, as light as wax; 2, 3, Last, two charming birds, tender a lovely yell., nice size and style, well balanced; good movement, sound cond.; 3, buff, fine capital, grand type, well moulded, sound col.; vhc, Philpot; he, Cooper; c, Clayton. YOUNG (16): 1, Cooper, charming yell., all there for type and qual., good style, neat head, smart wings, capital cond.; 2, Last, good buff, grand col. and qual. of feather, nicely rounded, capital wings, neat tail, in the pink; 3, vhc, he, Madagan, very line yell., grand type and style, good head, back, and wing, scarcely the bloom of winner, but a real Border, well shown. A.O.V. (13): a good class leader, Edwards, very fine V.H. Crest, grand formation, good centre and nicely drooped all round, thick and well veined; 2, Field, grand Dutch Frill, massive, bold looking bird, lovely even mantles, good under curls, full of feather, excellent qual.; 3, c, Burgess, charming Silver Lizard, nice size and type, neat, even spang-

CARDIFF.

The annual show of the Cardiff B.S., held Nov. 17 and 18, Carlton Hotel, proved a huge success. The officials were beaming with satisfaction at the great entry of nearly 1,000 exhibits. The staging was arranged in three tiers high all around the room and down the centre, and nicely draped in royal blue, presented a charming effect. On the far side row upon row of Norwich, in the centre and at the end the Yorkshires and Borders, and on the other side the Mules, Hybrids, and British, all at a convenient height to be seen without any inconvenience. And such exhibits! Undoubtedly the cream of the Fancy, and in the pink of condition; small wonder that the judges did not finish their task until close on 6 o'clock. Truly a grand response to the diligent labours of the members of the society and their hard-working committee, all of them true fanciers, leaving no stone unturned that would add to the success of the show. The Chairman, Mr. S. F. Whetton, was here, there, and everywhere, with a cheery word for everybody, ably seconded by the Vice, Mr. E. J. Banks, another fancier who puts his heart into the work, and the committee, Messrs H. C. Smith, Rev. Jolliffe, E. James, D. Raymond, W. Merritt, S. Wiseman, P. Braith, J. Pearce, A. Ball, and A. Deere, all of whom worked with a will. The stewards, two of the younger members, the Rev. C. B. Jolliffe and Mr. S. Wiseman, worked a full eight hours' shift without a murmur, and are to be congratulated on their efforts. The sec., Mr. E. Thomas, is well known, and when we say he did his part in his usual good style this speaks volumes. He was ably assisted by Mr. A. Bull, who got through a tremendous amount of work, and found nothing too much trouble. We must also not forget another old friend, Mr. E. J. Davies, who undertook the feeding and watering of the birds. To individualise among the birds would be almost unfair, so many real champions were meeting together, while the novice section also contained some choice exhibits, many of whom could have given a good account of themselves in the champion classes. Yorks. numbered nearly 300. Borders were a capital display, not far short of a hundred, in seven classes, all full of life and vigour. Mules and Hybrids were a show in themselves, not far short of a hundred of the best in the Fancy, altogether forming a wonderful collection. Last, but not by any means least, the British section, headed by the Goldies, with their scarlet faces and golden wings, completed one of the finest exhibitions ever seen in the Principality. Messrs. Payno and Roe judged. Special winners were: Nor. Cup, Bowl, best mld., Hyde's Houghton; Yorks Cup, Bale; Bord. Cup, Pratt; Brit. Cup, Chick; Members' Cup, Bale.

MR. J. H. ROE'S CLASSES.

NOR. CL. BUFF. CK. (19): 1, Houghton, grand size and shape, well-rounded head, compact wings and tail, beautiful col.; 2, Stubbs Bros., beautifully moulded, good deep chest, neat head, full neck, grand col. and qual.; 3, 4, Allsopp, close up, true type, good round head, full neck, plenty of chest, short, well-braced wings, lovely mauling; 4th, very shapely, trifle smaller, but for type and qual. hard to beat; vhc, no name; he, Slocumbe; c, Gardener. TKD. BUFF. (18): A grand class, two sets of winners here easily: 1, Collins, cap mld., a real good one, true Nor. properties, good head, neck, nicely rounded chest, short wings and tail, good col. and mauling; 2, W. Davies, grizzle mld., close up, correct type, good subs., best of head and neck, perhaps hardly the polish; 3, he, Houghton, saddle mld., good wings and tail, neat head and neck, nice size, hardly qual. of leaders; 4, Tedstone, lightly var., good size, neat wings and tail, trifle longer than winners; vhc, Lewis; c, Spillman. YELL. HEN. (14): 1, Spillman, cl., good col. and qual., nice shape, but some thought a bit lucky; 2, Collins, good col., very shapely, rather on the small side, and both might have given way to the 3rd, Davies, cl., grand size, beautiful shape, lovely qual., well-backed wings, a trifle paler in col. than leaders; 4, Addison, eye tld., good col. and qual., hardly the head properties of leaders; vhc, c, Tedstone; he, Jolliffe. UNFLIG. YELL. CK. (24): Another wonderful class for type and qual.; 1, W. Davies, cl., blaze of col., nice size and shape, good wings and tail, good, qual. and cond.; 2, Allsopp, eye tld., real gem, wonderful size, grand head and neck, beautifully moulded body, clean cut behind, good short wings and tail, a trifle paler in col. than leader, some preferred to win, a bird to be proud of; 3, Stubbs Bros., head tld., lovely qual. and col., nice type, trifle smaller than leaders; 4, Sampson, cl., good size, very shapely, loses head properties; vhc, Allsopp; he, Tedstone; c, Selby. HEN. (11): 1, Collins, cl., real gem, lovely col. and qual., neat head, well filled neck, good deep chest, neat wings and tail; 2, 4, Stubbs, good one, full of col. and qual., grand type; 3, Jones, rather soft when we took notes, good col., lovely qual.; vhc, Houghton; he, Sampson. NOV. YELL. CK. (17): 1, 2, Jameson, clrs., good size, nice subs., lovely col. and qual.; 3, Powell, var., grand col. and qual., trifle longer; 4, Morton, var., good col., nice size and shape, loses in head points to leaders; vhc, Walters; he, Williams; c, Wolfreys. HEN. (17): 1, Dr. Weeks, cl. yell., beauty, grand col. and qual., neat head, well-filled neck, good subs., correct wings and tail; 2, Williams, cl. buff, grand size and qual., a trifle heavy behind, and inclined to crouch, otherwise really good; 3, 4, Sidney, cl. buff and var. yell., very neat exhibits, good type and qual., loses in size to leaders; vhc, Williams; he, T. and G. COWDENBEATH.

4th annual open show, Nov. 20, in the Drill Hall. Everything was in first rate order, in spite of the worry the officials had to undergo, owing to the hall being occupied the previous evening, which meant some of them remaining up all night. The birds were well staged, with plenty of light all round. Entries were up, being a record for Cowdenbeath, the total was 806. Mr. Stridland, the pres., vice, J. Beattie; sec., A. Robertson; treas., T. Menzies; committee, Cunningham, Langan, Paterson, Clayton, Cowan, Kirk, Anderson, Stewart, Baxter, were all hard working lot. The judges were: Messrs. Hope, D. Hamilton, Lindsay, A. Harris, who took Mr. Fleming's place owing to his having enlisted, Mason, and Henderson. There were many outstanding exhibits in each section, and all throughout quality was up to high water mark and competition was very keen. Special cup winners were: Best in show, W. Allison; best local, J. Sneddon; Yorks., R. Heggie; points, R. Heggie; Nor., W. Grewar (out-right); Brit., J. Sykes.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

HALIFAX.

26th Annual Exhibition of the Halifax O.S. in the Friendly and Trades Hall, St. James'rd., Nov. 19 and 20. Considering the present state of affairs, and the clashing with a Yorkshire Union Show within seven miles, the show must be described as a great success. Entries numbered 476, the full classification and good prize money helping no doubt to make the show a success. The show room is spacious and lofty, is well lighted, and free from draughts. In Mr. Harry Clegg, the society has without doubt one of the best secretaries in the North of England, and one who has proved himself quite capable of controlling any show, no matter how large it may be, and in Mr. H. Lord it has an ideal president. The show stewards, Messrs. Speight, Relfe, Horsman, and Mitchell, got through their duties in a business-like manner. Mr. E. Helliwell had full charge of the packing and sending away of all the exhibits, and the way in which it was carried out proves the society had chosen the proper official for the work. These, along with several other workers made up a strong team of real good fanciers. The novices were the mainstay of the show, 11 classes having an average of nearly 21 per class. The open Norwich classes averaged 14 per class, and open Yorks. 12.

Quality was quite up to the standard. The Norwich came up best, and these were well worth going a long way to see. Yorkshires were a splendid lot. British birds had only a smallish entry, but amongst them were a few real gems. The novices were probably the best lot seen out this season. Mr. Crawshaw won Ramsden's special, and Mr. Spencer Sandford's. The Society promised half the gate to the local comfort fund for the soldiers at the front, and we hope it was a real bumper. The judges, Messrs. Mundell and Battye got through their duties in good time, and seemed to give every satisfaction.

MR. H. W. BATTYE'S CLASSES.

HALTWHISTLE.

Haltwhistle C.B.S. held its fifth annual show, Nov. 19-20, in the Mechanics Hall, and a more suitable hall it would be difficult to find, there being plenty of space, and a good light from all sides. The society courageously put on a liberal classification, which merited better support than they received; 420 entries for 55 classes is not very encouraging. The show is run by a small, but very enthusiastic, body of fanciers, including the well-known Border exhibitor, J. Nicholson; Mr. Bowerbank, who has bred quite a number of good Mules; Mat Phillips, the British bird enthusiast, who can tell you exactly what species of British birds visit that part of the country throughout the year; Mr. W. Tallantyre, Sec., who is keen on the Borders, and has bred a few well-known winners (it is certainly not owing to any lack of energy on his part if the show is not a complete success), and a few more willing workers, who acted as Stewards, and whose names we fail to remember.

British were the best-filled classes in the show, the class for Goldfinch and Bullfinch having 21 entries. The cup for three nominated birds bred 1915 was won by Mr. J. Nicholson, the runner-up being Mr. J. Johnson. The judges were Mr. W. McMillan, Borders; Mr. T. Dixon, Norwich and Yorks.; Mr. J. Maddison, British, etc.

BRD. YELL. CK. Club Reports.

ATTERCLIFFE C.B.S.

Meeting, Nov. 11, Mr. Havenband chair. Messrs. Hartley, Gifford and White kindly volunteered to act as stewards at show. We had numerous sps. promised, and I think there is every prospect of our having a highly successful show.—E. Johnson, Sec.

INVERNESS O.S.

Annual general meeting, Mr. Harcombe's Rooms. The report was gone over and approved. Resolved to hold a show on Dec. 29 if a hall could be procured for that date large enough, which is a difficult thing owing to the military baying taken over so many, and it was submitted to Committee to curtail classification. Present: Chairman, Ed. Chisholm, and Messrs. McNaughton, Fraser, Durward, Falconer, A. Smith and W. Smith, Harcombe, Todd, Anderson, Brots, and sec., John Connachie. W. Simpson was appointed judge.

AYR C.B.C.

Meeting, Nov. 15, Wallace Tower Hall, High-st., Ayr. Mr. J. Murray presiding. Agreed that exhibitors wishing to become eligible to compete for specials pay 2s. 6d. members' fee. In classes of eight entries or more full prize money will be paid. Judges elected for Open Show, Dec. 25: T. Dalton, Ayr, and A. Baird, Paisley, Scotch Fanciers; A. Chalmers, Kirkintilloch, Nor.; G. Hislop, Stirling, Bord. and Yorks.; and J. Steel, Falkirk, Brit. and For. Agreed to show under B.F.C.C. patronage. Next meeting Nov. 29.—H. M. Ferguson, Sec. and Treas.

LOCHGELLY C.B.S.

Meeting, Victoria Bar, Nov. 15. The members met chiefly to do justice to Mr. James Wilson, proprietor, who has presented to the society a handsome cup. The conditions are that if he won three times, not necessarily in succession, for best young bird bred by a member (confined to district). Mr. D. McLaren was the fortunate winner for the first time, and, being present, thanked Mr. Wilson most heartily for the interest he has shown in the society. Songs were sung by Messrs. Campbell, Muir, Smith, Grewar, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Club show on December 11. Entry, 6d. not cage.—R. Muir, Sec.

STRATFORD & E. LONDON F.S.

Meeting, Nov. 10. Arrangements made for annual show, Mechanics' Institute, Jan. 6. Judge, Mr. A. E. Litchell. Sec. will be glad to hear from any member willing to put up specials. Drawing competition for school children in connection with this show.—A. Wasey, Hon. Sec.

SOUTH MOOR C.B.S.

Annual meeting, Nov. 6, Mr. Wm. Creswell, chair. Prize money for annual show was paid, 10s. per class, for 6d. entry. Decided that balance was satisfactory. Officials for year elected: President, Mr. T. Oxley and Mr. S. Allsopp; Vice-Pres., Messrs. F. Biggs, M. Coulson, T. Y. Greener, E. W. Storey, A. Swinburn, J. Cogle, G. Oxley, W. Scott; Chair, W. Creswell; Sec., G. F. Bates. Decided to have another show in February, each member to pay 2/6 sub., new members 3/6, each class to pay its own prizes. Schedule was drawn up for confirmation at next meeting. Any amount of selling and pair classes, so line up, you fanciers in the district, and see if we cannot make a record.—Geo. F. Bates, Sec.

MIDLAND ROLLER C.C.

Meeting, Nov. 18, headquarters, Seven Stars, St. John Street, Wolverhampton, Mr. Willows presiding over a rather sparse attendance. New member elected, Mr. W. H. Woolridge. This meeting being the end of the financial year, the Sec. produced balance-sheet of show showing a profit of £2 9s. 6d. Balance-sheet of the year was read, showing an income of £20 3s. 4d., less expenditure, leaving each in hand of £11 14s. 11d., which was considered very satisfactory, and unanimously adopted. Presentation of medal to Mr. Willows, holder of cup, 1914, was made by Vice-President. Presentation of cup to 1915 winner, Mr. Harper, Bilston, was made by the President. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Willows for judging gratis, also to those who generously helped at the show. December meeting rescinded. Annual general meeting last Thursday in Jan.—J. W. Thomson.

LEICESTER (Hand-in-Hand).

Meeting held Nov. 16, Mr. Gibbins presiding over a full attendance. Several new members were elected. Cups, prize money, and specials were handed to winners. Decided to hold next Open Show Nov. 4 and 6, 1916; also to make application for patronage of the N.P.C. at same. Mr. Jno Allen was elected judge for next Table Show. The first show of the season was held, the added prize money and silver trophies played an important part in producing a large entry. Messrs. Gibbins and Hulse judged. Nor. Cl. Yell. Hen: 1, Hulse; 2, Sturgess and Day; 3, Laundon and Hart; vhc, Gilbert; he, c. Moores. Buff: 1, 3, Moores; 2, vhc, Hulse; he, Sturgess and Day. Nov. Nor. Yell. Hen: 1, A. BORDER FANCY C.C.

OPEN SHOW IN EDINBURGH.

Committee meeting, held 142, High St., Edinburgh, Nov. 20. In the absence of the president, Mr. S. Buglass, the show manager, took the chair. Secretary reported that the Cathedral Hall, Albany Street, had been booked for show. Garrioch's model prize-cards decided upon, and no deduction will be made for same. Sec. will be obliged if B.F.C.C. delegates, or others who have specials to intimate, will send a list before Dec. 3, when committee will meet to allocate specials. In addition to the usual club patronage, the patronage committee of the B.F.C.C. have granted a championship gold medal for best Border Fancy in show belonging to a member of the club. We hope the committee's generosity will be rewarded by members sending as many entries as possible. Prize list ready by 10th Dec., and exhibitors not receiving same on or before the 17th should send me a p.c., when one will be sent by return. On behalf of the committee I thank all fanciers who have so readily responded to the call for special prizes, and promised support with entries.—J. Lumsden, Sec.

size of a hazel nut, soaked in cold milk, drained, then sprinkled with soft sugar, and also a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp (see that this, in particular, is sound and sweet in the kernel), niger, millet and teazle. On the alternating days give a morsel of banana. In the drinking water every second day for a week add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and after this give instead five drops each of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight.

EFFECT OF RELATIONSHIP (L. Scott).—The relationship of the birds you enquire about would amount to the closest possible inbreeding, and the effect would be practically certain to show itself in a material reduction of size in the progeny, and also probably reduce the vigour and stamina of the progeny. Such mating should never be resorted to merely for the sake of making up a pair of birds without introducing fresh stock. There should always be some very definite object in view, which should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Battye's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3/4); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 5 "The Pel Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Parrot," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

makes it unavoidable, and even then it should be done only with birds which have not been previously inbred, and one must be prepared to meet with the consequent reduction of size and stamina. I would strongly advise you to dispose of the cock and replace him with another specimen which matches your hens as nearly as you can get one in colour and markings. If you did this you could run the three birds together next season without any of the baneful effects of close inbreeding appearing in the progeny from them. Please see Mr. Page's column for reply to Bulldogger query, which, by the bye, you should have written on a separate sheet of paper.

IN DIRTY CONDITION (A. L.).—If you are expert at hand-washing, or have a friend who could do it for you, a hand-wash would be most beneficial as a preliminary to treatment in this case. Do not offer the bath, except occasionally on bright, mild days, and only offer it in the early part of the day. As the bird never seems to dry itself, a daily bath will do far more harm than good in its present condition. Keep the cage floor strewn with clean gritty sand. Give a staple diet of plain canary seed only. In addition to this give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of scalded summer rape and a morsel of banana, and on the alternate days give a morsel of bread the size of a hazel nut, soaked in cold milk, drained, and well sprinkled with raw seed, and a spray of watercress, or some other green salad, but see that it is not given in a wet soiled condition, nor gathered with frost on it. In the drinking water every second day for a week add six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, and in the next week dissolve in each two tablespoonful of its drinking water every second day a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, and of sulphate of iron half as big, and add six drops of dilute sulphuric acid. In the third and fourth weeks repeat the dosage of the first and second weeks in the same order. If bird is not well at the end of a month please write again, and I will advise you further.

FATTY DEGENERATION (Nemadd Aber).—In a general way the treatment for this complaint may be summed up in the words, a plain wholesome diet, containing a fair amount of green salads, and plenty of vigorous exercise, preferably wing exercise. To a certain extent diet is very much a question of individualism, and that which will be no more than a very moderate regimen for one bird will suffice to feed up another to an inordinately fat degree. You cannot treat a number of birds exactly alike in the matter of diet and get the same effect with each one. This will explain why one of your birds has died with fatty degeneration and another is showing similar symptoms, whilst all the rest remain quite healthy, though all are fed and treated alike. Your best plan would be to remove the one that is now looking thick to a large flight cage or aviary, if it had a companion or two to keep it on the move, so much the better. Give a plain diet of canary seed only, supplemented only with a liberal amount of green salad, stop all fat oily seeds for the time being, keep floor strewn with clean gritty sand, and a culch of hard common salt stuck in the wires for the birds to peck at when they like, and add to the drinking water six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and repeat the latter in alternate weeks until the bird has had three weekly courses. If you cannot move it to a large flight or aviary, then you must limit its supply of seed to a small teaspoonful daily, all told, and otherwise treat the same as above.

TO BRING ON SONG (V. B. Harrow).—It is not very unusual for some cocks to take a few weeks' rest from singing after recovering from the moult, specially when they have been such ceaseless performers for a long time as yours. Occasionally such birds will remain silent until the weather gets mild the following spring. However, the chief cause in your case is probably keeping the cock caged with the hens, as you seem to be doing. If you do not wish to separate him, give two moderate teaspoonfuls of crushed sponge cake with six drops of cod liver oil emulsion and 20 drops of sherry well mixed in it and sprinkled with a mixture of equal parts maw and gold of pleasure seed every second day for a fortnight to the group, and on the intervening days give two small teaspoonfuls of a mixture of equal parts hemp, tiger, teazle and millet. Give a little watercress or banana three times a week. Add to each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water ten drops of lemon juice and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence every second day during the same time. If this does not bring the cock into song your only course is to cage separately the one you think most likely to be the cock and keep it within sight of the hens, and treat it the same as described above, except that you give half-teaspoonfuls of til-bits instead of the quantities named above. If "he" shows no signs of coming in song in a week or fortnight, turn "him" into the aviary again and try one of the others, and so on until either you have the real cock or have tried them all. Pray do not hesitate to write because you have had advice on previous occasions; it's our mission in life to try to be of assistance where we can.

SUDDEN SEIZURE (E. B.).—The attack was undoubtedly due to an apopleptic seizure affecting a nerve centre—most likely hemorrhagic effusion in the cranial bones—to which all birds are more or less susceptible when in high condition, or in a plethoric, overfed condition. The onset of this cold spell of weather would tend to increase the susceptibility to this accident, and your bird is one of those whose vital resistance was not equal to the strain. You can do little for it beyond keeping it quite on the warm side, giving a light nourishing diet, and a sufficiency of green salad to keep the bowels quite free, but not to the extent of causing watery evacuations. Give plain canary as staple diet, and in addition give separately every second day a morsel of bread and milk as you are now doing, and on the alternating days half a teaspoonful of scalded summer rape. Add to the drinking water ten drops of dilute sulphuric acid and five each of tincture of opium, and tincture of gentian every second day for a week. The bird should be kept quite quiet for some time, so I would not advise you to show it this month, even if it appeared to have recovered perfectly, which I rather doubt, as recovery from these attacks takes some time, and is rarely complete.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

SAMPLE OF WILD SEED (B. Hughes).—The sample of seed you sent is composed of charlock, persicaria, dock, a little grass and plantain. Unfortunately some of it was not quite ripe when harvested, and so its value is somewhat lessened. Any way, you can give it to your Finches, allowing them to pick it over and select what they like, but do not force them to eat it; see that they have plenty of their staple food to go to. The best plan is to throw a little into the corner of the cage after cleaning them out. Keep it in a nice dry place or it will soon spoil with so much husk on it. A good deal of this husk could be removed by shaking it in a bag, spreading it out on newspaper, and then blowing or fanning it off.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

WHAT PARROT? (North West).—Your description is incomplete, but I have little doubt that what you have is a Blue-fronted Amazon. Till the bird is established keep it fairly warm, and spray its nostrils with a tepid dilute solution of glyco-thymoline. Put a little chemical food in the drinking water, and if the bowels are not working freely (the bowels must not be watery loose), give an occasional dose of fluid magnesia—one teaspoonful to the ounce of drinking water—as often as may be required. As regards diet, this should consist of seed mixture, ripe fruit, pieces of biscuit, plain cake, or stale crusts, with grit, cuttle bone, and a chunk of wood kept continually in the cage. A good seed mixture is: One pint each oats, sunflower, safflower, white millet, canary and hemp seeds, and half a pint each of maize, shelled peanuts, and dani, the whole to be well mixed, stored in a dust-tight tin, and kept in a dry place. You can also give a little raw carrot, also boiled potato and vegetable, provided they are unseasoned and without fat. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, or any kind of animal food whatever.

ABOUT A RED CARDINAL (A. J.).—I presume you mean the Virginian Cardinal, an all-red bird. It is not quite possible to make a definite pronouncement, as this is one of the species in which individuals vary considerably. Many are atrociously pugnacious, others quite amiable, and again others run amok occasionally. Pairs are pugnacious, to a greater or lesser degree during the breeding season. I have kept a cock successfully in a fairly roomy aviary with Red-crests, Buntings, Finches, and Waxbills, and so have others, while yet others have met with disaster in so doing. I have had a cock in a roomy aviary (30ft. square) out of doors for the past six years with birds ranging from a Waxbill to a Thrush, but no other species of Cardinal, and I am not aware of any misadventures on his part. In the aviary (a large one) of a friend, Virginian, Red-crested and Green Cardinals, have been successfully kept together—all three species are quite hardy once they have got over the hardships of importation. Much depends on the size of the aviary. It is all in favour of your project that the Red-crests and other birds are established in possession of the aviary, and that the Red Cardinal will be the stranger. If your aviary is a roomy one, with good cover, I think you may venture to introduce a pair, but I must warn you, that though young may be hatched out, there is small prospect of them being reared, unless you keep up a supply of live food during the period they are being reared, and till they are well on seed and other food.

COCKATIEL ILL (Paulé).—Bring it in at once and put it in quite warm quarters till it has recovered. I strongly suspect it has been in close quarters since it was brought in from outdoors, and the symptoms rather point to some serious bowel trouble; however, warmth will do much to remedy things. Give it two drops of castor oil daily, direct to the mouth, till the bowels have been properly moved, then cease. In lieu of the drinking water, give the following: One teaspoonful condensed milk, ten drops cod liver oil emulsion, two drops laudanum, and two tablespoonfuls of boiling water, and well stir together—it must be prepared fresh daily, and continued till the bird has recovered, when it can be gradually discontinued and water containing chemical food offered at the same time, the former ultimately being stopped. Watch against constipation, and at the least sign of this put fluid magnesia into the drinking water, one teaspoonful to the fluid ounce. I should keep this bird isolated from your healthy stock till it is quite fit again. After being in warm quarters it must be gradually hardened off before being put into unheated quarters again.

POST MORTEMES.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 1s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

SHELLING THEIR SEED (Learner).—I take it you mean that the birds remove the husk from the seed and then reject the kernel. If this is correct, first of all test the flavour of the seed by chewing a pinch. If you find it is musty that is undoubtedly the cause of the rejection, and this remedy is sufficiently obvious—change the seed for one that is sound and sweet. If there is no fault with the seed, then the cause lies in some digestive derangement, which the following treatment should remove. Give a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition to this give separately every second day a morsel of bread the

THE RIGHT WAY

Of purchasing anything is to have it on approval. The broadest guarantee goes with every article I send out. It must meet with your approval in every detail, otherwise you merely return it, and I at once refund the money, free from any deduction whatever. The whole of the men employed by me are thoroughly experienced craftsmen who know exactly what is required for successful bird-catching. Clap nets made from 60 s.3 cord, superfine netting (specially knitted for bird catching), 3 yards long, 5 1/2 feet deep, 4 feet fly, 5/- pair; 4 yards long, 6/-; 5 yards 7/-, 6 yards 8/-, 7 yards 9/-, 8 yards 10/-, 9 yards 11/-, 10 yards 12/- per pair. All clapnets consist of two nets to the pair each net guaranteed full measurement, and are fitted complete with all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use. Single nets half above prices, plus 6d. Loose netting as used in above nets, 7ft. deep, 4d. yard; ditto 9ft. 5d. yard, ditto 12ft. 6d. yard, post free. Self-acting spring net traps, 24ins. long, 18ins. wide 1/6; ditto 18 inches by 14 inches, 1/3 each, post free. Kindly note these net traps are by far the largest and most simple net traps on the market. They are practically invisible when set, can be baited for hard and softbills at same time, will catch and hold uninjured any bird from wren to rook, and call bird can be used inside them if desired. Please notice I give measurement of my net traps, but do not claim that they are a new invention. I have supplied all the leading softbill catchers with these traps for years past. Original Japanese bird lime, warranted strongest lime made, does not freeze, and specially good in fog or drizzle, sample 4d., 1lb. 9d., 1lb. 1/2, 1lb. 1/10, all post free. Full weight guaranteed without tins, hence extra for postage. Italian hemp pull lines, warranted not to snarl or stretch, and strong as boat lines, 68 yards long 2/- post free. Superfine hemp, rabbit netting, 16 meshes, steep selvage top and bottom, 3d. yard, 100 yards 16/-, carriage paid. Special flax lines for rabbit nets 3/- lb., post free. Flirt pegs or lines 7d. each, post free. Bird brace swivels, three 3d., twelve 6d post free. Kindly note all goods are guaranteed exactly as described, and no expense is spared by me in order to supply the most serviceable and durable catching appliances possible, for past 11 years I have supplied all the leading professional bird catchers throughout the kingdom and Colonies. All articles advertised are actually in stock and immediate dispatch guaranteed.

Zam-Buk

VETERINARY

THE BEST FIRST-AID IN THE AVIARY.

Rheumatism, Scale,
Baldness, etc.

THIS new preparation, having already been put through the several tests, is found to fill admirably the requirements of an ideal first-aid for use in the aviary.

Zam-Buk in its veterinary form is still free from animal fats, and, as before, is essentially vegetable in origin.

All Fanciers will find it good policy to keep a supply of Veterinary Zam-Buk handy.

Birds, like human beings, suffer from bronchial trouble. This can be cured by melting a little Veterinary Zam-Buk, diluting it with olive oil, and cleansing the bird's wind-pipe with the aid of a small feather dipped in the mixture.

"Veterinary Zam-Buk" is sold in a RED package to readily distinguish it from the original Household Zam-Buk which is put up in a Green package. Prices, 1/1½ or 2/9, from THE ZAM-BUK LABORATORIES, LEEDS.

FRED ALLEN, BRITISH BIRD CHAMPION

DO MULING BRITISH DIFFER FROM OTHERS?

If you intend going in for Hybrid breeding or muling you must have the right birds. Why won't your birds breed? Because you have not the right kind. There is a difference between mulers and others, and that difference I have solved. I have studied for years this problem, and I can now say with confidence that I can now supply real Hybrid breeders and mulers. I can give proof of my statement by mentioning a few successful customers. Sir Luke White, for instance, bred with a cock Bullfinch and 2 hen Goldfinches. Sir Luke gave me the photos of these Hybrids, and I intend to have postcards printed and sent out to all customers. Some say, give me a bird with a big head for muling, but my secret I intend to hold and let my customers have the benefit. I can honestly say there is not a man in the world can teach you more about British than your humble servant. Here, again, is proof of my superiority over others: Mr. Plows, secretary of Kippax Club, wrote me for some singing mixture. After using it he quickly won 1st and 3rd prizes. I could fill "Cage Birds" with thousands of successful customers. I have a grand lot of cock Bullfinches, specially picked for Hybrid breeding and on grand song, finger tame, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, and one a gem, fit for keen competition, 7/6; other good ones but not mulers; can win members shows, 3/6, 4/6 each; giant hen Bullies, specially picked for breeding, real monsters, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6 each; other good hens, 1/6, 2/-, 3/-; monster cock Goldfinches, 2/6, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6 each; giant Norwich type cock Linnets, well pencilled, grand colour, steady as rocks, 2/6, and two extra gems 3/6 each; giant muling Linnet, 3/-; What a monster! Real giant yellow cock Greenfinch, a gem, 3/6; another good one, 2/-; gem of a Redpoll, 2/6; fine, large, well-coloured cock Lark, a beauty, and on song, 2/6; splendid large cock Reed Bunting, grand bib, 2/6; very good Yellow Bunting, good V-marked head, nice cheeks, 2/6; monster cock Hawfinches, splendid bibs and steady, 15/6, 20/-, 25/- each; 200 Siskins expected any time now; orders booked. I thank the 38 customers who have already ordered. Now, you Linnet singers, call and see my champions. I have the finest strain of singing in England. I have won all before me. I have some of our champions for sale, including "Young 'Un," which won 1st at King's Head, Leeds, defeating 44 birds, open to all England. He will sing in your hand and at an empty cage, price 40/-; also other good house-moulted birds, equally as proud, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/- each. I have a grand lot of this year's birds, clean through moult and being taught under above champions, including my cup winner, £10 refused for him. These are on quality song and singing day and night, 2/6, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6 each; good loud kitchen songsters, 1/6, 2/- each, and a few nice youngsters, coming on grand song, 1/- each; good call birds, Linnets, 2/-, 2/6 each; Linnet cages 9d., 1/-, 1/6 each; British show cages, very neat, 1/6, 1/9 each; best birdlime in England, 3d. and 6d. tins. Throw it away if you can find any as good. Linnet whistles, 6d. Make your birds sing at one another with 1/- bag of my secret mixture; Roller School masters, no jars or clicks, every note lovely, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/-; hens 3/-, 4/-; cock Canaries, good loud songsters, over 300 in stock, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each; monster Goldfinch Mules, win anywhere and on Finch song, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, and one foreign Goldfinch, a gem, 15/6; Linnet Mules, on full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6. Mr. Hogg's winning cinnamon Greenfinch Mule, a giant, only 20/-, worth 60/-; large muling hen Canaries, 2/6, 3/6 each; house-moulted Linnets, well-known winners on the bench, 10/6, 15/6, 20/-; I claim to have the largest stock in the North. A visit will convince you without making any idle offers. Moreover, I send all out on seven days' approval for cash or deposit. Bankers: London City and Midland. Please cross all postal orders L.C. & M., payable to me. Write at once to Fred Allen, The Reliable Specialist, 156, Porter Street Aviaires, Hull. (94)

POST YOUR ENTRIES TO-DAY FOR AND DISTRICT SHOW December 10th & 11th.

We have engaged Mr. Chas. Houlton, Lancashire's most respected judge, who will take Borders, Brit. and Mules, while in Mr. J. W. Metcalfe we have secured "the man of the moment" for Yorkshires and Norwich. We are out to keep things going, not to make money. Full patronage of the Green Canary Association. Classification up to date. Prize-money guaranteed. Anyone who has not had a schedule will be supplied by return. Write—W. Middleton, Northenden Rd., Sale, or H. Whitnev, Brook-st., Sale.

As we are going to press we are informed by telegram that the Truro Show will be held on Boxing Day, as usual.

We have received the price list of the Volunteer Wire Works, Longton, Staffs. It contains a nice collection of cages, baths, fronts, and useful bird-room sundries. Bird-keepers would do well to write to the Company for copy of this list.

Schedules for the great War Red Cross Show at Hamilton, Dec. 11, have been posted, but any fancier missed can have one by applying, writes Mr. W. S. Wilson, Sec., "Glendyne," South Park Road, Hamilton. Two specials given by Messrs. R. Houston and W. Glass are omitted from the schedule, but will be competed for all the same.

I would like to appeal to exhibitors for their support to Great Horton cage-bird show in the Cross Lane Council School, Dec. 11, writes Mr. A. W. Hartley, sec., 1, Cragg St., Great Horton. The society is one of the oldest in the district, and has again placed a splendid classification before exhibitors. The Committee are real fanciers, and every attention will be paid to the exhibits. Mr. H. W. Battye, Huddersfield, will judge, and he and the society are hoping that he may have a good morning's work. (See advertisement.)

A Fine Classification for Borders.

At Edinburgh open show, Dec. 31, Jan. 1 (see advt.) 24 classes will be provided for Borders; 19 open, 2 novice, and 3 selling.

An Appreciation.

Kindly allow me to express my thanks to the committees of Halifax and Darlington shows for the prompt and splendid manner they returned my birds, writes Mr. W. Fairhurst; they deserve all praise. May their future shows meet with every success.

THE NEW POSTAL REGULATIONS.

The attention of correspondents is directed to the fact that under the new postal regulations only one ounce can be sent for one penny. From one to two ounces the postage is twopence, and one halfpenny extra is charged for each additional two ounces. Reporters and correspondents who have to send long communications should please use very thin paper and be careful to prepay the postage in full, or we have to pay double the deficiency on delivery.

Our Front Page Drawings.

Corrections in Show Reports.

At Cowdenbeath 1 and 5 in buff pied Scotch Fancy hens should be Henderson, not Montgomery. 1 in cl. buff Yorks at Cardiff should be Mrs. Holliday, not Holloway, and in the H.M. Goldfinch awards the Holborrow should be the Coakham.

Prize Money Paid.

We are informed that prize-money has been paid in respect of the following shows; if any winners have been overlooked, they should apply to the respective secretaries: Cardiff, Kidwelly, Swansea, Darlington, Haltwhistle, Blaenavon.

Watford Expects a Good Time.

Watford C.B.S. has been granted the patronage of the National British Bird and Mule Club and the Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League. Entries are needed to make the show a success, and these should be posted on Saturday to Mr. J. Goodall, 56, Market Street, Watford, Herts., to be in time. Fanciers and exhibitors will be heartily welcomed at the show. Facilities for reaching Watford have been greatly increased by the linking up of the London and N.W.R. with the "Bakerloo" by through trains from the Elephant and Castle to Willesden Junction, whence fast trains run to Watford Junction, or frequent fast trains run from Euston direct.

Special Notice to Correspondents.

Every day we have to pay fines upon insufficiently stamped communications, and these penalties are double the amount of the short paid postage. Excessive postage may be in many cases avoided by the use of extra thin paper, but in any case we must ask our correspondents to please prepay the postage in accordance with the regulations which were explained in a special announcement in our last week's issue, and which are repeated elsewhere on this page.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

A THEFT OR A MISTAKE: WHICH?

Extraordinary Incident at an Edinburgh Show.

In the appended letter that well-known Scottish fancier, Mr. A. W. Watson briefly recounts the remarkable disappearance of two of his birds from a show held on Saturday last. We have no doubt our readers will be interested to learn whether anything further is heard of the missing exhibits.

Sir,—I have had two birds lifted from the Edinburgh and District Cage Bird show held on Saturday, Nov. 27, namely 1st prize Goldfinch, class 51, No. 1; also Linnet, class 54, No. 2. Should any fancier have these birds I shall feel obliged if he will communicate with me at the undermentioned address. The cages, prize-cards and drinkers have all gone with the birds. The Linnet I had already promised to a fancier over the Border. Any information will be thankfully received.—A. W. Watson (58, Colinton Road, Edinburgh).

THE PROPOSED GREAT LONDON BIRD SHOW.

REGRETFULLY ABANDONED FOR THIS SEASON.

A special meeting was convened for Nov. 26th at the York Hotel, York Street, Piccadilly, to consider the advisability of holding early in the New Year a large Amalgamated London Show in place of the Crystal Palace and Horticultural Hall annual fixtures, which owing to various causes have had to be abandoned. The following gentlemen attended, representing the London and Provincial O.S., National British Bird and M.C., London C.B.A., and Foreign Bird E.L.: Messrs. Robson (Chairman), J. W. Ramsden, T. Heath, A. Silver, C. T. Maxwell, R. Manning, A. J. Watcham, P. Johnston, E. Stephens, J. Frostick, and T. R. Trower.

After a prolonged and animated discussion it was unanimously agreed that owing to the following reasons it was almost impossible for a large London show to be successfully organised:—

It would probably result in a heavy financial loss through increased cost of staging, printing, postage, etc. Want of the hitherto prompt carriage facilities of the railway companies bringing exhibits to the show; this would entail, under the present regulations, a special motor collection, paid for by us, to and from the various London termini to enable the birds to reach the show in time for exhibition, and also for their prompt dispatch on the return. There would probably be a deficiency in the usual voluntary labour which, with a large show of this description, is so necessary. There would need to be early closing of the show; also probable alteration of arrangements through military reasons. Delay en route to and from long distances, with a certain proportion of the delicate and valuable exhibits might result to their serious detriment, and a large share of the onus would be thrown on the promoters of the show.

The gentlemen present, while deeply regretting disappointing so many of their old supporters, could not ignore these serious probabilities, which in a show of this magnitude would be sure to crop up. They very kindly asked me to intimate through the Fancy Press to those who have so kindly supported the Crystal Palace and Horticultural Hall Shows in the past their very deep regret, in which all must share, at not being able to provide something to take their place. When the great and grave crisis which lies upon us has passed away we hope to see the old faces, and many new ones, and to revive that keen rivalry which has so distinguished exhibitors in the past.—T. R. TROWER.

Border Fancies in Wales.

I should like to draw exhibitors' attention to the liberal classification for the show, Dec. 9, especially in Borders, writes Mr. J. H. Bevan, hon. sec. Porth and Rhondda Valley C.B.S. We are giving 11 classes for Borders, the same as in Yorkshire and Norwich, hoping to have the support of Border Fanciers. Now is the time for the Border Fancy men to come forward. Entries are very slow up to the present. The following specials are offered in open competition:—5s. cash for best Redpoll, 5s. cash for best Bullfinch or Greenfinch, 5s. cash for best A.O.V., 5s. 6d. pipe for best dark mule, mounted walking stick for best nov. Yorks., also several other specials which will appear in the catalogue.

"I sold all my British through my advert. last week, and could have sold some of the pairs three or four times over."—J. McKAY (Forfar).

"My advertisement in CAGE BIRDS produced magnificent results, despite the present crisis."—D. J. JAMES (Shepherd's Bush).

The Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid and its Visit to London.

OWING to the public spirited action of Mr. T. H. Anderson in sending the bird all the way from Darvel in Ayrshire for our inspection, we have had an opportunity of making a close examination of the Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid, the hatching of which was announced in our issue of May 15 last.

We would say at once that the bird so closely resembles a Thrush, and upon casual inspection shows so little trace of its Blackbird parentage, that any judge who was not in possession of the facts which have been known to us from the beginning would be justified in not accepting the bird as a bona-fide competitor in a class for Hybrids, and there is little wonder that the judge at Carlisle, Mr. John Robson, rejected it as being purely and simply a Thrush.

A short resume of the actual facts, as published in our columns from time to time may be of interest to those who have not back numbers of CAGE BIRDS for reference. In our issue of May 15 Mr. Anderson's first letter appeared, and in this he said that a hen Blackbird which had moulted twice in his outdoor aviary, and which had laid twelve eggs in the first year, and fifteen in the second year, had in the present year hatched two eggs out of three in her first nest, and that the only possible male parent of the young birds was either a Corn Bunting or a Song Thrush, as he had no other large British birds in the aviary.

Those Who Saw the Young.

On May 22 we published a second letter from Mr. Anderson and a certificate from Mr. Nicol C. Hopkins, the President of Darvel C.B.S., that he had seen the young birds and they could not be otherwise than Hybrids, as stated. On May 29 Mr. Anderson reported progress, and his letter was accompanied by one from Mr. A. Beaton, also a member of the Darvel C.B.S., and a frequent visitor to Mr. Anderson's aviary. Then, in our issue of June 12 we published an article by Mr. Anderson fully detailing the breeding of the Hybrids, and giving an account of a second nest of young from the same two birds.

On Nov. 13 we published a final letter from Mr. Anderson describing the progress of the young birds, and their plumage after the moult, and this letter was accompanied by another saying that after the disqualification of the bird at Carlisle he had sent the judge the actual eggshell out of which it was hatched.

Being primed with a knowledge of all these facts, and bearing in mind that it was outside the bounds of possibility that anyone could have deliberately prepared the ground beforehand in such a systematic manner merely with the object of foisting a fraud, we had, as we have said, an advantage over any judge who was faced for the first time with a specimen such as the one now in question.

The bird was with us for two days, during which time it was subjected to the most critical examination. At one moment it was being handled and inspected by three well-known judges of British birds, gentlemen who have officiated for several years at the Crystal Palace and the principal shows elsewhere. Our friend, Mr. W. A. Lott, who knows a Thrush perhaps as well as any British bird-keeper, who might be mentioned, was one of the many others who saw the bird while it was in our charge, and among them all there was not one who did not agree that upon close examination the Blackbird parentage could be traced.

The Evidence Considered.

The general conclusions may be summed up as follows: The bird being a bird of the year, and probably a hen, could scarcely be expected to show its Blackbird origin very distinctly, especially as even a cock Blackbird is not really black in its first year. There is a general "sootiness" along the flanks which would certainly not be expected in a Thrush, and there is a depth of colour on the sides and abdomen which also would indicate a Blackbird origin. The buff edging which is so distinctive a feature of the median and greater wing coverts of a Thrush is entirely lacking in this bird. There is no white on the under tail-coverts, as in a Thrush. The colour of the feet (legs) is dark brown, which will become darker with age, while the feet of a Thrush are pale yellowish horn in colour. The beak is longer and darker than would be expected in a Thrush. The eye-circles form a very distinct circle, and are much more definite under the eye than in a Thrush. In length the tail feathers are between those of a Thrush and a Blackbird, and the bird can spread them exactly as a Blackbird does in flying from bush to bush. There is none of the golden buff which belongs to the neck and breast of a Thrush, all this part of the plumage being of a dingy brown.

Points That Tell.

All these points, small matters as they may individually be, being combined in one bird, we have no hesitation whatever in pronouncing the bird to be the genuine product of a cross between a cock Song Thrush and a hen Blackbird (of the Blackbird there can be no possible doubt, as she laid and hatched the eggs). We thank the breeder, Mr. Anderson, for giving us the opportunity of seeing this unique Hybrid, and congratulate him upon the possession of such a rara-avis, also more particularly upon setting at rest the question of the possibility of Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrids, as several have claimed to have bred them, though we cannot remember that any previous claim has been substantiated, while instances of the supposed mating of the two species in a wild state have been not infrequently reported.

We must not forget to express our acknowledgments to Mr. Lott for his kindness in supplying us with an unlimited supply of mealworms and "insective" food for the sustenance of the bird while it was with us, and we trust the Hybrid is none the worse for its long journey from Ayrshire to us and back to its home in Mr. Anderson's aviary.

How the Fancy Helps the Soldiers.

The gate at our annual open show, writes Mr. H. Clegg, sec. Halifax O.S., was £5 16s. 3d., and we have sent half of that amount to the local Comfort Fund. The amount collected in the boxes in addition was 11s. 0½d. We have not had a gate like this for some years, it being more than when we had over 800 entries. I also wish to thank all the 146 exhibitors who so kindly helped us in our efforts, and CAGE BIRDS for the report of our show.

Correspondence.

Good at the Shows and in the Breeding Cage.

SIR,—It was a pleasant surprise to find on the front page of CAGE BIRDS my variegated yellow Yorkshire cock. Your artist can make a very good reproduction indeed. This bird, while winning himself for me, also produced young which helped to win the Yorkshire Nest Feather Cup of the Western Counties O.S., Plymouth. Much help is received by me from your valuable weekly journal, and I do not see how a fancier can expect to make progress without it.

What's the Matter with the City of Glasgow Show?

SIR,—Another show season is drawing to a close. One of the best shows in Scotland at one time was the "City of Glasgow," but the club held no show last season, and there is no word of one this season. Surely the management have not lost heart owing to the war? Or can the question be: Is the City of Glasgow Club alive or dead? If alive, why cannot the members put their shoulders to the wheel and have a show as before. Look at the Glasgow and District, a club that has struggled on year after year: last year's show was a success (in spite of the war), and their show of 12th and 13th November last, with an entry of almost 1,000 birds, is sure to leave a balance on the right side. Perhaps some "City" men can enlighten the Fancy as to why their society cannot hold a show.

Who "Pinched" the Water Tins?

A Warning to Fanciers.

SIR,—I have been at four shows this season. At Beamish, the first, I had five tins taken off my cages, and there was a lot shouting out about them. Then I showed at South Moor, a week after, and there was the same old cry about missing tins. At Sacriston Show, however, I never heard a word about them. At Pelton Show there were also a lot of troughs taken from the cages. There, a novice told me he had marked his tins, and that he had to take two of them from off another man's cages. I think that when a fancier has no troughs he should ask for the loan of what he wants, not take them off cages without the consent of other fanciers. I think, too, that as they are only 9d. a dozen, every fancier should get them for himself. It is a serious thing to remove a tin off any man's cage, for the bird might not have had a drink, also it might happen to die just through a clarty penny trough.

Another Aspect of the Novice Question.

SIR,—I have read the letter signed "Novice" with some surprise, re winner of novice open cup—I presume he means members' cup. The assertion that the father of the person declared the winner has an interest in the birds that won, I can say without fear of contradiction, it is a mistake. If he has it on good authority that such is the case, why did he not lodge a protest in the proper way, and the matter would have been dealt with to his complete satisfaction. Further, his friend, whose wife's entries were returned for amendment, has on more than one occasion shown at the same shows and knows perfectly well neither he nor anyone else raised any objection when the son referred to won the novice cup at show, Nov., 1914.

Then "Novice" gives his version of the injustice in not accepting an exhibitor's wife's birds in the novice section. I am afraid his statement is misleading, and give him facts. Mr. J. has for a number of years been a member of the society, and in July 1913 suggested transferring his Norwich birds to his wife and joining her as a member of the society if she would be allowed to exhibit as a novice. The rule was fully explained to him, and the matter ended where it was. When entries for 1915 show were about to close he sends entries for Yorkshires in his own name in champion section, and entries in his wife's name for Norwich in novice section, both nominated for the same cup. His own entries I accepted, and as I could not according to rule accept those in his wife's name in novice section, I wrote and explained same to him, sending fresh entry form and returning fees. At the same time I offered to allow him to amend the wife's entries to the champion section. He preferred to demand return of his entry money. Having returned his wife's, and as the catalogue was in the printer's hands and his cage numbers allotted, I refused his request. I on no occasion said she would have to show in champion section. This was the only course open, if your correspondent will study facts, so where is the injustice he speaks of?

I am at a loss to know who is the raw novice who ran the dead heat for a cup never offered for competition. I would also remind him that a novice, according to our rule, is one who has never won a 1st prize in open competition or three 1sts in open novice classes, and not necessarily a beginner. It is not an uncommon thing to find persons of 20 years' experience in the Fancy still eligible for, and showing in novice sections, and, according to rule of most shows, quite entitled to. The cup winner he takes exception to has never shown except in members' shows of the society.

I will leave it with the Editor to express his opinion whether I was correct in refusing the wife's entries under such circumstances, and shall welcome the presence of the injured (?) party at our December meeting, when his grievances will be gone into, if such is his desire.

HON. SECRETARY.

Eastleigh's Successful Show.

Wounded Soldiers Much Interested.

SIR,—Allow me to thank exhibitors at our recent show who have sent their congratulations, as I find it impossible to answer all individually. I am very pleased to say that it has turned out very satisfactorily. All exhibits were here in good time, and staged before our judge arrived, while a good number of visitors made the show a complete success, 30 per cent. of the gate being handed to the Cigarette Fund for the wounded, amount £1 4s. Wounded soldiers were admitted free, and over 250 passed the gate. Several winners changed hands, and all prize-money has been paid. Amongst the special winners were Mr. S. Fayle (shield), L. Page, L. Bousfield, H. J. Vale, and J. Thornton (silver medals). The committee worked well, and all rail exhibits had left by 10 p.m.

Should Present-day Exhibition Lancashires be Abolished?

SIR,—Replying to Mr. E. Fuller's letter of last week, he says Mr. B. Clegg remarked that he (Mr. C.) must find what bit of Lancashire there was to be found. Mr. Clegg was judge, and should not have needed anyone else's opinion. With regard to the Lancashire breeders that are left, I say without fear that my father, who is partner with me and has shown for over forty years without a break, has shown and won as many times as any other fancier in the variety. I am told by several fanciers that Mr. Fuller never had but one bird worth looking at, and it only won 1st once, and that was at Glossop. He has never won to my knowledge, and I have been showing now in my own name a few years. He says in his letter: "No showing or selling for me." When I saw that I had to laugh, because I have only been in his rooms once and I saw more rubbishy birds of all varieties, including his favourite variety, the Crest and Crestbred, than I have seen in all the rooms I have been in, before or since. If I had known that he was going to take part in the judging of Manchester show, I could have put some birds on the bench that I consider would have suited him, but for my part these are best left in the room after what Mr. Fuller said to me when he judged Nottingham and Notts show on Nov. 11, 1911. I asked him what was the matter with my yellow and buff copies, and he said he could tell them, so he thought he would give someone else a chance, so he gave the yellow Copy to and left the buff Copy cardless. I think if that is encouraging Fanciers and the variety, it is only a poor way. I think if Mr. Fuller would start showing, instead of doing so much trying to break the Fancy up, we should get a better idea of what he wants. The only consolation a fancier can get out of him is a request to "come and have a drink." He has done this with me; or, "how is your father, as he is worth all the birds, for I can get on with him better than I can with you." The first person I saw when I got to Ardwick show on Nov. 13, 1915, was Mr. E. Fuller, and the first words he said were: "Why don't you sell the buff Copy, as there is somebody wants to buy it?" But though we are only working people, we love the hobby and also the Lancashire variety, and are not going to be told what to do by, someone with more rubbish than ourselves.

A letter from Mr. Jamson is unavoidably held over until next week.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

A Fancier's Four Sons.

SIR,—Mr. T. G. Stubbs, one of our members, has three sons with the colours: Driver A. Stubbs, Deptford Gun Brigade; Private H. Stubbs, 22nd Queen's Regt.; and Private C. Stubbs, 20th Batt. Middlesex Regt. Besides these, our member has had one son, Private J. Stubbs, of the 3rd Worcester, killed in action in France.—W. Gilbert, Hon. Sec.

In the Seaforth Highlanders.

SIR,—Having seen by CAGE BIRDS, that you are making up a Roll of Honour for fanciers, I beg to inform you that I have been a member of the 4th Seaforths, but unfortunately was discharged from the service through illness five months after war broke out. I have undergone training at Bedford, and while there had the luck of paying a visit to last year's Bedford show. I got a very warm reception from the Bedfordshire fanciers, and I should have liked very much to have been able to visit same this year, as I should have been delighted to meet your world-famed artist, Mr. Norman, who was judging the show.

D. ROBERTSON.

BLAENAVON.

First annual show held Nov. 25. The White Horse Assembly Rooms are an ideal place for a show, being well lighted on all sides. Entries, although the show closed with Swansea, numbered over 300, and the committee were very pleased at this response to their first efforts. The birds were staged three tiers high, and here and there palms and plants were placed which gave the show a very pleasing appearance. The arrangements were in the capable hands of Mr. Geo. Broome, the secretary, and he carried everything out in a very satisfactory manner. On show day he was ably assisted by Mr. W. Lapworth. The show manager, Mr. Chas. Broome, had everything well in hand, and was ably assisted by a hardworking committee and stewards. Messrs. C. L. Latham, W. Goldrey, W. Jones, J. Thomas, J. Taylor, D. Morris, T. Percy, E. Gilbert, and T. Parry, and it is pleasing to note that everything went off without a hitch. Every possible attention was given to the exhibits, and the committee hope at their next venture to be rewarded with a larger entry than this year. Members' spl., most points, was won by Messrs. Broome Bros. Singing class was judged by Mr. H. H. Mortimer, Aberdilly, and Mr. Jas. Robinson judged all other.

DUBLIN.

The Yorkshire C.B.B. of Ireland held its seventh annual show in the Ancient Concert Room, Great Brunswick Street, Nov. 21 and 22. The room is large and lofty, but was somewhat cold, and this had a marked effect on some of the exhibits. The Yorkshire section was well catered for, and contained the cream of the Yorkshires in Ireland. All of the noted exhibitors benched their best representatives. Mr. Dalton won for best Yorks., diploma best Yorks., sp. best Yorks., hen, and sp. for best tacked buff, a wonderful performance of which Mr. Dalton should feel proud, and we wish him every success in the future. Mr. Mills won special for best cock with a bird of great length and full of quality. Best tdk. yellow went to Mr. Keating, and best clear buff hen to Mrs. O'Keefe. The diploma for best Brit., also special for best bird in show, went to Mr. Mulcahy's Chough, which was put down in the pink of condition. We feel sure Mr. Mulcahy will be proud of its success. Many more specials were awarded, too numerous to mention in full. A great number of fanciers from all over the country were present, and we feel sure the show will be a success. Mr. Sholedec, the hon. sec., had everything in perfect order, and his pleasing manner won the respect of all. Along with him were a nice set of stewards, who looked well after the comfort of the birds; the staging of the exhibits was all that could be required. Mr. W. Mundell, Bradford, judged.

YORKS. CINN. OR CINN. MKD. CK. (6): 1, Winkup, buff cap, eyes and wings mld., grand pos., well up on leg, boxy feather, nice wing carr., piped tail, good head; 2, Keating, varieg. yell., feathered like wax, nice type, good wings and tail, not so long; 3, Miss J. Fair, buff cap, eyes and wings, good head, flights and tail, bit rough on thighs; vhc. Keogh; he, Neville; c. Cloke. HEN (11): 1, Dalton, gem, winner of 4 specials as stated, mld. eye and tick on neck, lovely col. and feather, grand type, neat wings and piped tail; 2, Buckley, varieg. yell., well on leg, good head, boxy feather, very stylish, neat, compact wings and tail; 3, he, and c. Mrs. O'Keefe, 3 buff cheek and wings, nice type, very steady, level col., well traced wings; vhc. Hyland. CL. YELL. CK. (10): 1, Mills, buff, well up on leg, good head, nice wings and piped tail, full of qual., will make a good bird; 2, Byrne, very breedy, neat head, long flights and tail, full of qual.; 3, Keating, rich col., beautiful wing carr., a few feathers short in tail, or would have won; vhc. Hyland; he, Dalton; c. Mrs. O'Keefe. HEN (13): 1, 2, he, Mrs. O'Keefe, very slim and stylish, pale col., boxy feather, good head, well placed wings, piped tail, 2 nice type and pos., well up on leg, full of qual., stronger than winner; 3, Winkup, stout, full of qual., well up on leg, nice type; vhc. QUEEN'S PARK (Kensington).

Very attractive show held Nov. 6, in the Emmanuel Hall, a capital building for a display of birds. The entry was quite good and the quality all round considerably in advance of any previous effort. The Norwich as a collection were wonderfully typical, that old stager, Mr. C. Battison, sending in some good ones and winning the cup with a capital yell. unfledged, a bird that should do well later. In Yorkshires Mr. J. Haines had out a grand team, his unfledged yell., which won the cup, attracted a lot of attention; he is a bird of grand length and size, and when quite fit should add to his laurels. Messrs. Birch, Herring and Bonniwell put down some toppers in the Amateur Section, and Messrs. Hannaford and Perrett did well in the Novices. The British were a distinct advance on last year's collection. The show was ably managed by the enterprising Sec., Mr. W. J. Ratcliffe, and everything was quite in order, the exhibition generally proving quite a success. Mr. H. Norman judged.

SWANSEA.

Held Nov. 25 in the Market Hall. Unfortunately, owing to no doubt to clashing with Blaenavon, entries did not come up as in former years. Still, over 500 exhibits were staged, and made a very nice collection. There being plenty of room, the birds were staged in single tiers, and could easily be seen without inconvenience. Everything possible was done by the Committee for the welfare of the exhibits under their charge, and at the close of show all birds were promptly dispatched by mail train.

Swansea fanciers have long been known as an enthusiastic lot, and this year's Committee is no less so than their predecessors. The excellent show managers, Messrs. Phil Jenkins and J. Hocking, had everything well in hand, and judging started promptly. They were ably assisted by the hard-working Committee: Chair, Mr. T. J. Allen, Vice, Mr. Geo. Llewellyn; Messrs. J. W. Ford, J. H. Ford, E. M. Evans, E. R. Hoddinott, A. Richards, T. Holbrow, and M. Glover. The secretary, Mr. A. Hinchings, played his part well, and is the right man for the position. He was ably assisted by Mr. D. P. Rees, who got through a lot of work, and was very obliging and courteous.

Nor, and Yorks, did not come up well in numbers, but some really good exhibits were to be found in most of the classes. Borders were a very level lot, and gave the judges some trouble to separate, condition in many cases being the deciding factor. Males and Hybrids were good, most of the notable winners being staged. British, though not very numerous, were a really grand collection, some well-known winners heading their respective classes. The attendance was splendid, and from what we hear there will be a fair surplus to hand over to the local Red Cross Society. A sale of birds given by members and friends for the fund realized nearly £5, including a donation of 7s. 6d. by Messrs. Maggs Bros. Mr. Chas. Houlton judged odd numbers and Mr. H. W. Battye even numbers.

HUDDERSFIELD.

Annual show, Nov. 20, Assembly Rooms, St. Peter Street, Huddersfield, with 279 entries, which is somewhat poor for the classification provided. Quality was quite up to standard, most of the noted winners being staged at this show. The Norwich classes were void owing to the Halifax Show being on the same date. The unflighted classes were the strongest, as usual. The cinnamon marks came up better than at previous shows. The novice exhibitors were the mainstay of the show. A five-franc note, sent to Mr. Morrison by a soldier from the front as a special prize for vhc's in cinnamon marks was won by Messrs. Atkinson and Firth. The society has in Mr. Geo. Wood a real good working President, who did a full share of the work, and seemed to enjoy it. Mr. Lawford, the secretary, did his duty in a very business-like manner, and the show stewards were Messrs. Atkinson and Armistead. The gatemen and working committee consisted of the following: Messrs. Buttle, Atkinson, Thornton, Townsend, and Sykes, who got through the work in a way deserving of the highest praise. The gate was very good, and there were several claims which would help to make the show a success. Prize money was paid out at the show to all winners who attended. Mr. E. Clegg, the judge, got through his work in good time.

BELFAST.

The Ulster O.A. held its annual show Nov. 26 and 27, at the Clarence Hall, Belfast, a very comfortable room for the purpose, being lofty, with abundance of floor space and a good light, windows being on both sides of the room, and free from draughts. Nearly 400 birds were neatly staged on two tiers around the room. The management was carried out excellently by the committee Secretary, Mr. Smyth, and a good band of workers, and everything was ready for the judges to start work by 9. Mr. A. Livingstone, Paisley, judged Belgians, Scotch Fancys, Mules, British, and Foreign, and Mr. J. R. Houghton, Gloucester, Crests, Norwich and Yorks. They got through their duties in good time, and seemed to give full satisfaction.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

Annual autumn show, Nov. 6, Victoria Hotel, Charterhouse Street, E.C., one of the finest shows the society has had for some time, showing the society is doing better than ever. The showroom is one of the finest and most central in London, and the exhibits were well arranged all round by the show committee, Messrs. Harrison, Durham, Davey, and Cullers. There were 30 more entries than last year, which is especially gratifying in the present crisis. The Gilbert silver cup went to Mr. M. A. Bell with 50 points; silver medal for runner-up, Mr. Durham, 45; silver medal best bird, Mr. Cullers. The society gave the usual eight 2s. 6d. specials. Mr. W. Shakespears judged.

COVENTRY.

The Coventry Godiva C.B.S., held its ninth annual open show, Nov. 27, at the Sydenham Palace, Ford Street. The room is an excellent one and the show was undoubtedly the best yet held by the society, the entries numbering just over 300, while the quality of the exhibits was excellent throughout. In the Norwich section zone of the "Knits" were there; other varieties were not so large in number, but contained many well-known winners. The President, Councillor S. G. Poole, opened the show, and congratulated the society on the splendid lot of exhibits. Mr. A. Wright, show manager, afterwards presented Councillor Poole on behalf of the Society with a bird and cage, as a mark of appreciation of his services. The following officials had the whole of the arrangements well in hand:—Chairman, F. Buckley; vice-chair, F. Smith; and-tors, H. Mann, W. Fisher; committee, Messrs. H. Adams, W. A. Wills, W. Arundell, G. Radburn, F. Bache, J. Petch, A. Tansley, and K. Bickley; show manager, A. Wright; Treas., G. Cox; hon. sec., F. A. Green. Mr. H. W. Hattie, Huddersfield, judged.

SOUTH LONDON F.A.

Forty-first annual exhibition, Constitutional Club, Old Kent Road, Nov. 18. The entry was a fairly good one, considering the number of fanciers with the colours and engaged in war work. Norwich were an unusually fine lot, some of the birds having taken full honours in open competition; special for best bird in the section went to Mr. Hodder's mkd. buff, a massive full-headed bird of good quality; the same owner secured special for 2nd best with a grand yell. hen, and also exhibited a very promising unfigured yell., which stood first in its class. Mr. Diamond annexed the Lee trophy for best Novice with a very nice buff that should make up well. Yorks. made a nice show, quality being well to the fore. Mr. Clarke staged a capital unfigured yellow, winning the cup for best unfigured, also the special for best Yorks.; he sent also a very typical marked bird that stood first in its class. Borders were good, some of the winners being excellent examples of the variety. Messrs. Burton Bros. won challenge cup for best young bird with a charming buff staged to perfection; special for best bird was secured by Mr. J. Williams with a lovely yellow of grand type and quality. Mr. J. Blackham acted as show manager and sec., and carried out his duties in splendid style, his assistants being Messrs. Horton, Harris, Biss, Fairman, Fuller, Martin, and Diamond. Mr. H. Norman judged.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

BUCHANITE.—Replied to by post.
PULLS OUT FEATHERS. (E. M. H.). It would help considerably in bringing the bird into song earlier than otherwise if you could keep him where he could hear another free singer for a week or two. Short of this the following treatment should be successful, though not, perhaps, quite so speedy. Give a staple diet of plain canary seed only. In addition give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape and a morsel of banana every second day, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle and broken groats, and a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar. In the drinking water every second day for a fortnight add ten drops of lemon juice, six of glycerine, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence. Continue the above method of feeding for three or four weeks if necessary.

CONSTIPATION. (Yellow Norwich).—This is what troubles your bird. In addition to your present staple diet give half a teaspoonful of the seed mixture every third day, but omit the proportion of hemp for the present and substitute in its place the same proportion of linseed. On the intervening days between giving the pinch of mixed seed, give first a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar, and next a small spray of watercress, if you can get it quite free from frost, otherwise give instead a morsel of raw or boiled carrot. In the drinking water, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week afterwards, add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence. (2) There may be many causes for the trouble: the situation or environment of the bird; a predisposed habit of the individual, or the manner in which it is kept; but more often than anything else it arises from the dietary containing too small a proportion of laxative items in the food, or lack of some green salad or fruit of some kind.

A LISTLESS SPECIMEN. (Hopton).—Possibly the bird may be in an overfed condition, but you give no clue on this matter. Try the following treatment for three or four weeks, and then, if there is no improvement, write again, and repeat particulars, and say whether he is in a plump or emaciated condition of body. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape mixed together. In addition give separately half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with about half the same quantity of a mixture of equal parts maw and gold of pleasure mixed in it every third day, and on the intervening days give first a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle and linseed, and next a small spray of watercress, when you can get it quite free from frost, and at other times substitute a morsel of banana or raw or boiled carrot. In the drinking water every second day for a week add ten drops of lemon juice and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and after this give instead four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of columba, and dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight.

BARE NECK AND DAMAGED WING. (A. P. A. Novice).—(1) I am afraid the coldness appearing at this time does not augur well for its recovery. However, try what the following treatment will do for it in the course of a month or so. In addition to the usual seed diet give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake slightly dusted with flour of sulphur and then sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts niger, white millet, linseed and broken groats, and add to the drinking water ten drops of lemon juice and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence. At the end of a fortnight discontinue the treatment for one week, and then begin it again and give it for another fortnight. Give a morsel of sweet fruit or green salad three times a week, but be careful that you do not give the latter in a frosted condition. (2) For the damaged wing you should keep the bird in a moderate-sized cage, with a light cover thrown over the front, and the seed and water vessels, and also the perches, arranged in the most convenient way you can manage for the bird, so that it does not have any need to use the wing in the least degree. Keep it as quiet as possible for two or three weeks, by which time the enforced rest for the wing will doubtless have done all that is necessary to remedy the mischief.

DOES NOT SING. (Shm).—See that the bird does not hang in or very near a window, nor high up near the ceiling. I am not quite clear whether you give all the seeds you mention for the staple diet or only as extras. In any case give as staple a simple mixture composed only of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition to this give every second day half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle and broken groats, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. Give a morsel of banana or boiled carrot three times a week. Allow him to bathe twice a week, on mild days, and always offer the bath early in the day during these short days. In the drinking water add 20 drops of fluid magnesia every second day for a week, and afterwards give instead 20 drops of chemical food two days in every three for two or three weeks.

NOT CEASED MOULTING. (Norwich Canary).—First of all, see that the bird is quite free from direct cold draughts, and is not exposed to rapid extremes of heat and cold, or damp. Then you may treat it the same as advised to "Shm" in this issue for a month, except that in your case instead of the chemical food after the first week give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of columba, and tincture of steel every second day until the feathers cease dropping. If the bird does not soon begin to show signs of coming in song after the moulting is stopped write again, and refer to this reply.

RISING HOPES. (Puzzled).—It is quite possible for even the most experienced to make a mistake in the sex of the bird, but the error is not so likely to be repeated so often as to tell two cocks for kens—the reverse would be a more likely direction for such an error to take. On the other hand, it is not at all unusual for hens to utter a more or less sustained twitter, which occasionally assumes the character of a song. The vocal efforts of the hen, however, are very rarely such as to be really mistaken for those of even a moderately proficient cock, being decidedly more broken and scrappy than those of the cock, and there is not the same intonation and pronounced throbbing of the throat during the performance in the hen as is the case with the cock. It is not possible to say definitely whether any given bird is a cock or hen from a description, so the best thing you could do, if still in doubt, would be to get some experienced fancier to look at them and give you an opinion. By the bye, you should not hang them in a window, which is about the worst place you could choose. Read these replies for the past few weeks, and you will gather the reason why.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS

Answered by H. NORMAN.

BREEDING WITH FIELD-MOULTED LINNET. (E. M. H.). As a rule one has no difficulty in breeding from field-moulted Linnets. They not only prove attentive partners, but generally fertile eggs well. This being so, one might well ask why house-moulted birds are preferred, and the answer is that they are more tractable, and therefore less likely to upset the hen or young ones by dashing about the cage at the slightest disturbance. Your bird will be quite all right, as you will have plenty of time during the winter months to get him steady and in nice condition for breeding. You should let him fly in a fairly large cage with the hen Canary; occasionally running him into a smaller one to keep him steady.

SELECTING BIRDS FOR AVIARY. (T. Berry).—In making a selection of birds for breeding purposes in an aviary it is as well to have an excess of hens, but one wants to make sure that the birds selected will agree together, as there is no more terrible battle in the bird world than when two hens take a thorough dislike to each other, and commence to quarrel in the breeding season. Bullfinch hens, as a rule, do not agree well together, so I would not rely too much upon them. You might very well substitute a Greenfinch hen or a Siskin in place of one or two of them, of course removing the Greenfinch cock. As regards the Buntings, I do not think you are wise in keeping both; replace one with a Goldfinch hen. If you do this you will require another cock bird, say a Twite or Redpoll. Your next aviary should contain only three Canary hens, as the Linnet will in all probability only mate with one, leaving the Goldfinch to look after the others. Your suggestion for the third aviary should do very well.

JAY PLUCKING HIMSELF. (M. A. Burgess).—Either your bird is infected with insects or the food you are giving him is too heating. Unfortunately, you do not say how you are treating him; "ineat and Jay's food" may mean anything. You see, I am unable to guess at the kind of meat or what the Jay's food consists of. Although these birds are hardy, they require proper treatment, or they soon do badly. You had better examine him for insects, and, if you find any, dust him well with insect powder, repeating the process until you have cleared him. I would also advise you to send to this office for the Nutshell booklet on the larger insectivorous birds; this contains full directions upon feeding Jays, Magpies, and Jackdaws. Before making a change in your feeding, give the bird a good aperient, say as much Glauber salts as will cover a shilling, dissolved in 3 tablespoonsful of water. As you keep him indoors, you should let him have a daily bath.

TRAINING MULES. (T. Wilton).—Mules bred from a British bird and a Roller hen are, as a rule, quite so noisy in their song as the birds bred from the Norwich or Yorkshire hens. I regret that I am unable to tell what would be the result of carrying out your suggestion, and although it would certainly be very interesting, I am afraid the trial would be disappointing, as Nature will assert itself, no matter what the training.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

AILING BUDGERIGARS. (Mrs. Evans).—You must send me more information before I can give you a helpful reply. I must know how you are treating it generally, and where you keep it. For the present keep it as warm as possible and where the temperature is fairly equable. Continue to give the oil till the bowels have been properly moved. If you can induce it to eat a little biscuit, crust of bread, or a bit of sponge cake, then lightly spread a piece of either of these with cod liver oil emulsion, and give it a piece or two daily. Keep a millet TREATMENT OF GREY PARROT. (Grey Parrot).—As you have had no experience with Parrots you would do well to get our "Nutshell," "The Grey Parrot," 2d., post free, from our Manager, and treat your bird generally according to the directions given therein. In old birds the skin of the legs is hard, rough, and the sealings are coarser and hornier. There is no royal road to teach it to talk, once it is at home among you it will pick up many words and sounds for itself. When you give it some tit-bit greet it with such phrases as "Something nice for Polly," "Good morning," etc., also whenever it is quiet and restful and you are by it talk to it and repeat over and over again some short phrase you wish it to learn. The main thing is patience, often when you have almost given up hope of improvement the bird will surprise you by uttering some quite long phrase—many things are uttered or muttered unintelligibly before articulating them clearly. If you proceed on some such lines your bird should ultimately develop into quite a good talker.

majority only talk a little. They are handsome and brilliantly coloured birds, and make nice pets once they become tame. If in fair condition on arrival they are not unduly difficult to establish, but never lose an ailing, weakly looking, newly imported Senegal. Their value is from 25/- upwards, according to the number of arrivals and condition. At the present time a high price would prevail unless the arrivals were numerous. I have never heard of, nor met with, a talking Cactus Conure, the value of an ordinary bird of the species is 20/- to 30/-.

Other nice small Parakeets are Canary-wings, Tovi, Tul, Orange-banded, and Ring-necked.

CONVALESCENT PARROT. (J.W.M.).—I am pleased to receive so good a report, and there should now be no further difficulty with it. The best means to avoid chills and colds is to keep strictly out of draught and in as equable a temperature as circumstances permit. As regards the feathers, it is presumably only the ordinary moult, and at such periods birds assist Nature by helping out some of the feathers. A little observation will soon show you whether this is the case, or whether it is pulling out its feathers from sheer mischief; if you suspect the latter, then whenever we get a warm genial day spray it with a dilute quassia solution (tepid). Hope it will continue to do well.

POST MORTEM.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead caged birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

H. M. Bates.—Endocarditis, an inflammation with deposits upon the valves. A septic change. The symptom of purpura of one leg was owing to great accumulation of scales, causing contraction of the limb.

THE RIGHT WAY

Of purchasing anything is to have it on approval. The broadest guarantee goes with every article I send out. It must meet with your approval in every detail, otherwise you merely return it, and I at once refund the money, free from any deduction whatever. The whole of the men employed by me are thoroughly experienced craftsmen who know exactly what is required for successful bird-catching. Clap nets made from 60 9/3 cord, superfine netting (specially knitted for bird catching), 3 yards long, 5 1/2 feet deep, 4 feet 5in. 5/- pair; 4 yards long, 6/-; 5 yards 7/-, 6 yards 8/-, 7 yards 9/-, 8 yards 10/-, 9 yards 11/-, 10 yards 12/- per pair, or any size made to order. All clapnets consist of two nets to the pair; each net guaranteed full measurement, and are fitted complete with all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use. Single nets half above prices, plus 6d. Loose netting as used in above nets, 7ft. deep, 4d. yard; ditto 9ft. 5d. yard, ditto 12ft. 6d. yard, post free. Self-acting spring net traps, 24ins. long, 18ins. wide 1/6; ditto 18 inches by 14 inches, 1/3 each, post free. Kindly note these net traps are by far the largest and most simple net traps on the market. They are practically invisible when set, can be baited for hard and softbills at same time, will catch and hold uninjured any bird from wren to rook, and call bird can be used inside them if desired. Please notice I give measurement of my net traps, I do not claim that they are a new invention. I have supplied all the leading softbill catchers with these traps for years past. Original Japanese bird line, warranted strongest time made, does not freeze, and specially good in fog or drizzle, sample 4d., 1/6, 1/2, 1/3, 1/4, 1/5, 1/6, all post free. Full weight guaranteed without this, hence extra for postage. Italian hemp pull line, warranted not to snarl or stretch, and strong as boat lines, 63 yards long 2/- post free. EXHIBITION MULING AND HYBRIDISING

You must have the right birds; an old hand knows what kind of bird he wants; these few remarks are for the novice. To breed an exhibition Mule you must have a Goldfinch or Linnet, as the case may be, with plenty of size, good, big head, in a Goldfinch good deep blaze, bars, and buttons, a Scandinavian for preference, and the largest yellow Norwich hen procurable, with large skull also. Muling for song, any cock Goldie will do as long as he is fit, and any hen, but for smartness a Yorkshire hen; a Hybrid bred from British birds stands no chance in competition with those bred from Siberians or Scandinavians. I and my father before me have been Canary, Mule, and Hybrid breeders over 70 years, and to-day the oldest breeder and advertiser in Hull; in trying for the Bullfinch cross use the hen, the cock is useless in captivity. Don't be misled; the following are picked from hundreds that pass through my hands weekly, and are fit for the keenest competition: Cock Bullfinch, 10/6; cock Goldfinch, 10/6; yellow cock Redpoll, 5/6; cock Brambling, 4/6; cock Lesser Redpoll, 4/6; cock Linnet, giant, grand quality, 5/6; cock Hawfinch, cage moulted, 12/6; also a grand lot British cock Goldfinches to moult out winners and for muling, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6 to 10/6 each; cock Goldfinches with best picked out right for song or muling, for song, 2/6, three 5/-, six 9/-, dozen 16/-, two dozen 30/-; cock Linnets, 4/6 dozen; Scandinavian cock Goldfinches, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6 each; Scandinavian cock Bullfinches, grand specimens, 7/6, 10/6, hens 6/6 each; monster yellow cock Greenfinches, 3/6 each; cock Linnets, 4/6 each; the above are Scandinavians; another lot, also Siskins, expected Dec. 11; send your orders at once to save disappointment; largest and best collection in England; approval, cash or deposit: Day's Aviaries, Porter-st., Hull. (108)

Hopkins, Bird Specialist, 38, Fylde-st., Preston, Lancashire. Est. 1895. (10)

FRED ALLEN, BRITISH BIRD CHAMPION

DO MULING BRITISH DIFFER FROM OTHERS? If you intend going in for Hybrid breeding or muling you must have the right birds. Why won't your birds breed? Because you have not the right kind. There is a difference between mulers and others, and that difference I have solved. I have studied for years this problem, and I can now say with confidence that I can now supply real Hybrid breeders and mulers. I can give proof of my statement by mentioning a few successful customers. Sir Lark White, for instance, bred with a cock Bullfinch and 2 hen Goldfinches. Sir Lark gave me the photos of these Hybrids, and I intend to have postcards printed and sent out to all customers. Some say, give me a bird with a big head for muling, but my secret I intend to hold and let my customers have the benefit. I can honestly say there is not a man in the world can teach you more about British than your humble servant. Here, again, is proof of my superiority over others: Mr. Plows, secretary of Kippax Club, wrote me for some singing mixture. After using it he quickly won 1st and 3rd prizes. I could fill "Cage Birds" with thousands of successful customers. I have a grand lot of cock Bullfinches, specially picked for Hybrid breeding, finger tame, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, and one a gem, fit for keen competition, 7/6; other good ones but not mulers; can win members shows, 3/6, 4/6 each; giant hen Bullies, specially picked for breeding, real monsters, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6 each; other good hens, 1/6, 2/-, 3/-; monster cock Goldfinches, 2/6, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6 each; giant Norwich type cock Linnets, well pencilled, grand colour, steady as rocks, 2/6, and two extra gems 3/6 each; giant muling Linnet, 3/-. What a monster! Real giant yellow cock Greenfinch, a gem, 3/6; another good one, 2/-; gem of a Redpoll, 2/6; fine, large, well-coloured cock Lark, a beauty, and on song, 2/6; splendid large cock Reed Bunting, grand bill, 2/6; very good Yellow Bunting, good V-marked head, nice cheeks, 2/6; monster cock Hawfinches, splendid bills and steady, 15/6, 20/-, 25/- each; 200 Siskins expected any time now; orders booked. I thank the 38 customers who have already ordered. Now, you Linnet singers, call and see my champions. I have the finest strain of singing in England. I have won all before me. I have some of our champions for sale, including "Young 'Un," which won 1st at King's Head, Leeds, defeating 44 birds, open to all England. He will sing in your hand and at an empty cage, price 40/-; also other good house-moulded birds, equally as proud, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/- each. I have a grand lot of this year's birds, clean through moult and being taught under able champions, including my cup winner. £10 refused for him. These are on quality song and singing day and gaslight, 2/6, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6 each; good loud kitchen songsters, 1/6, 2/- each, and a few nice youngsters, coming on grand song, 1/- each; good call birds, Linnets, 2/-, 2/6 each; Linnet cages 9d., 1/-, 1/6 each; British show cages, very neat, 1/6, 1/9 each; best birdlime in England, 3d. and 6d. tins. Throw it away if you can find any as good. Linnet whistles, 6d. Make your birds sing at one another with 1/- bag of my secret mixture; Roller School-masters, no jars or clicks, every note lovely, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/-; hens 3/-, 4/-; cock Canaries, good loud songsters, over 300 in stock, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each; monster Goldfinch Mules, win anywhere and on Finch song, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, and one foreign Goldfinch Mule, a gem, 15/6; Linnet Mules, on full song, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6. I have a lovely Meadow Pipit, caged 4 months, a gem, only 2/6; travelling boxes 2d. each; large muling hen Canaries, 2/6, 3/6 each; house-moulded Linnets, well-known winners on the bench, 10/6, 15/6, 20/-. I claim to have the largest stock in the North. A visit will convince you without making any idle offers. Moreover, I send all out on seven days' approval for cash or deposit. Bankers: London City and Midland. Please cross all postal orders L.C. & M., payable to me. Write at once to Fred Allen, The Reliable Specialist, 156, Porter Street Aviaries, Hull. (94)

(2d. from agents; see list on another page.)

SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nutshell No. 26," by H. J. Fulljames. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with most varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealworms? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 2d. from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest and get it for 2d.

AN INVITATION TO See over 5,000 Birds.

If in doubt where to go during the Xmas and New Year Holidays, I invite you to come and inspect my stock. I have 16 large rooms, containing a magnificent collection of over 5,000 birds. These include some splendid specimens in Yorkshires, Norwiche, Crests, and Crestbreds, Border Fancies, Scotch Fancies, Rollers, Mules, and mulling hens. I have some splendid stock and exhibition birds bred from my own winners, and also a number of excellent birds from other well-known winning strains. My rooms are open every day but Sunday, and whether you wish to purchase or not I shall be glad to see you and show you round. If you are requiring birds for stock, for exhibition, or for song, come and make your own selection. Every bird for sale without reserve. If you cannot come, remember I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the Kingdom on 7 days' approval at my sole risk. I guarantee absolute satisfaction to every customer, or cash returned in full. Kindly note the following prices:—

Grand lengthy Yorkshire Cocks, in perfect condition and full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Smart, erect, racy hens, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- each. Matched breeding pairs, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair.

Smart, thick-set, cobby Norwich at same prices as Yorkshires.

Exhibition Norwich and Yorkshires. I have some grand birds bred from my own well-known winners, both Norwich and Yorkshires, at the following prices: Cocks or Hens, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, to 100/-. These are ready for benching, and capable of winning their cost in prize money.

Songsters, in bold free song, just the thing for Christmas Presents, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each; will suit anywhere.

Highly Trained British Rollers, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each.

Sib Hens for Muling, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/6 each.

AVADAVATS! Avadavats are very charming little birds, but they need care. The "Nutshell" booklet, "Avadavats," contains full information on the management of these birds. You cannot do better than have a copy by you, and we shall be pleased to forward same upon receipt of 2d. Write, The Publisher, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

THERE is no more lovely seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutshell No. 14," from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2d. From agents (see list frequently published).

WINNERS of prizes in keenest competition. Pair magnificent Blue-breasted Waxbills, excellent in size and colour, in perfect show form, acclimatised, 30/-; pair Zebra Finches, rare size and marking, winners each time shown, 20/-; pair African Silverbills, fine show form, 10/-, or accept 50/- the entire show team; great bargain; giving up: Tomlinson, 30, Treherne-rd., Mortlake.

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2d. post free from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

ONE pair Purple-headed Glossy Starlings, 12/-; 3 Red-collared Lorikeets, 44 each; 4 Brown-cheeked Conures, 42 each; 1 Nanday Parakeet, 42/-; 1 Grey Parrot, 42/-; 5 Piping Crows, 46 each; 1 pair Crassophtalan Pheasants, 116/-; 2 Bare-eyed Cockatoos, 42 each; 1 Slender-billed Cockatoo, 42/-; 2 pairs Himalayan Snow Pigeons, 44 pair; 1 cock Brush Turkey, 48/-; 1 tame, Blue-fronted Amazon, 42/-; 1 tame cock, in full colour, Alexandrine Parakeet, 42/-; 2 hen Senegal Ring-necked Parakeets, 30/- each; 6 Marmonets, 50/- each; 1 Jerboa, 41/-; Albert Edward Jamrach, 180, St. George-st., East.

Twitterings.

The winners of members' specials at Halifax Show were: Open Nor., Heap; Nov. Nor., Hudson; Brit., Macpherson.

We have decided on Nov. 25, 1916, as the date for our next open show, writes Mr. F. A. Green, hon. sec. Coventry Godiva C.B.S. Secretaries please note, to avoid clashing.

We have decided to cancel our open show fixed for Jan. 14 and 15, writes Mr. E. Hibbert, hon. sec. Walkden Roller Socy. Our members' show will be held Dec. 11, the judge being the well-known Bolton Roller sec., Mr. J. Kilshaw.

Owing to a printer's error, writes Mr. P. Greenall, sec. Wigan Roller C.C., the name of Class No. 3 is omitted; it should be champion old birds. We have the finest schedule ever put before Roller fanciers, and we appeal for their support towards our first effort.

The drawing of my young Crested Canary on the front page of CAGE BIRDS was so well executed, writes Mr. H. H. Classey, that I at once recognised the bird, while the paper was hanging above the newsagent's stall. The cock was only five months old at the time of the show.

We are informed that prize-money has been paid in respect of the following shows; if any winners have been overlooked, they should apply to the respective secretaries: Newcastle, East End, W. Bromwich, Dublin Y.C. and C.B.S. of Ireland, S. Shields, Coventry Godiva, Old Shildon.

Specials at Coventry Godiva C.B.S. show were won as follows: E. Godley, most points Canary section (39 points); H. N. Turner, best unfledged, and Ramsden's; T. Gilbert, best flighted Canary and best in classes 23, 24, 25; J. Gibbons, for best in class 3; Stubbs Bros., best unfledged buff; L. Dykes, best in class 13; A. Wright, best Green Canary; H. Checkfield, best in classes 26 to 30; C. Harvey, best colour-fed bird in novice. The birds from Messrs. Davies, Stainland, Bowyer, Hymas, and one hamper of Pathway's did not arrive at the show till 5.30 p.m., but everything was done for the birds by the stewards as soon as they arrived.

Inverness

Ornithological Association. Open Show of Canaries, British Birds, Mules, and Hybrids, in Music Hall, Inverness, Wednesday, DEC. 29, 1915. Open medal of Border Fancy Canary Club. Specials for first and best out of money in each class. Judge, Mr. Wm. Simpson. Entries close Dec. 22. Schedules from—John Connochie, Hon. Sec., Craigielea, Perceval Road, Inverness.

Send your Birds to WISHAW

The Popular One-day Show, on 1st January, 1916. Classes: Borders 14, Yorkshires 5, Plainheads 9, Crests 5, British 12, Mules 2, Foreign 1. Judges: Messrs. John Calderwood, Ed. Barron, Jas. Gentleman. Entries taken up to morning of show. Schedules from—Jas. Watson, Sec., 16, Young Street, Wishaw.

FORFAR Open Show Cage Birds, JAN. 1 & 3. 37 Classes (B.F.C.C. patronage). Judges, J. Sandison (Aberdeen), Norwich; P. Gentleman (Avonbridge), Border Fancy and British. Schedules from—A. Low, 63, West High Street, Forfar.

LONDONDERRY

City of Derry Pigeon and Cage Bird Society. 4th Annual Show of Canaries, Mules, and British Birds, to be held in the Union Hall, on JAN. 13, 1916. Entries close Thursday, 6th January, 1916. Judge, C. A. House, Esq., Briardene, Idle, Bradford. Schedules from—J. M. C. Knox, 2, East Wall, Londonderry.

The sec. of Bradford East O.S. wishes to appeal for support at the open show Dec. 18, at Park Chapel Schoolrooms. The splendid classification includes 8 unfledged classes, of which 2 are for the silver rose bowl. The show is under the patronage of the Y.C.C., N.Y.M.Y.C.C. and C.M.Y.C.C. Birds sent by rail will be despatched as early as possible after the show, the arrangements being in the hands of capable stewards. Exhibitors desirous of a schedule please see advt. and review of schedule.

The sec. of Mardy show writes:—"Owing to lack of entries in cage birds we are compelled to extend close of entries to second post Monday, Dec. 13. Entries bearing Sunday's postmark will be accepted. Mr. Harry Greaves, our show manager, who is a champion exhibitor, along with J. Eve and D. Brown, our Novice Welsh National winner, will look after the interest of the birds, and everything exhibited will have the best of attention under their care as stewards. Good prizes and specials will be given, see second page of schedule. Eighteen classes, and not more than a dozen entries to hand."

OBITUARY.

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. R. Charleson, sec. Leigh C.B.S., that I have to report the sad loss sustained by one of our members, Mr. T. Wilkinson, in the death of his mother, and along with every member of the Leigh C.B.S. I wish to tender our deep sympathy to Mr. Wilkinson and family in this their hour of trouble.

MR. W. R. WALL (Brighton).

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. Will H. Gibb, hon. sec. Brighton C.B.A., I have to announce the death of Mr. W. R. Wall at the early age of forty-seven. For some months he had been in ailing health and passed away on Nov. 4. Yorkshires were his particular fancy, although he also kept some Norwich and Crests. Ever ready to assist in the Fancy, he had been on the Committee of the Brighton and Hove C.B.A. almost from its commencement, and in the past had been connected with several of the London clubs. Our deep and sincere sympathy is extended to his widow and only son in their great bereavement. A wreath from his fellow-workers and members of the club was placed upon his grave in token of remembrance.

An Address Wanted.

I have an order in from Mr. T. J. Digby, writes Mr. E. E. Pass, Hucknall, Notts. If he will kindly send me his address I shall be pleased to send order off at once.

Cornish Fanciers' Good Work.

Camborne Fanciers' Society has sent to the Redruth Hospital £15, the profit on its Feast Monday show. At the Hayle C.B.A. show the profits went to the tobacco fund for soldiers and sailors.

Corrections in Show Reports.

At Swansea 1st in F.M. Linnets should be Bancroft, not Major, and in H.M. Redpolls 2nd no name should be 2 Bancroft. At Halthwhistle 1st in Nor. buff cocks should read Fleck, not Leck.

Edinburgh B.F.C.C. Open Show.

There seems to be some misunderstanding as to who is eligible to exhibit at our forthcoming show, writes Mr. Jas. Lumsden. Permit me to intimate that this show is open to all exhibitors of the "Wee Gems," and not only to members of the B.F.C.C., as some fanciers seem to think. (See advt.)

Illness of Plymouth's Secretary.

It is with very deep regret we learn of the serious illness which has befallen that highly popular South-country fancier, Mr. Thos. Pope, the secretary and treasurer of the Western Counties (Plymouth) O.S. All bird-lovers will join us in wishing him a speedy and complete restoration to health. We hear that last week-end there was a slight change for the better.

Eightpence—Not Threepence.

Mr. Jeffrey Walsh, Blackburn, writes that in consequence of a printer's error in his advt. of "Magnet" Asthma Cure in our issue of Dec. 4, he has received many orders containing threepence instead of eightpence, the proper price of the remedy. We regret the occurrence of the mistake, and we feel sure that the many applicants who have received the asthma cure, although the amount sent was insufficient, will at once remit to Mr. Walsh the fivepence short paid.

White Skylark at Chester-le-Street Show.

Will members and intending members kindly send their entries the week before our show of Dec. 18, writes Mr. R. Ward, sec. Chester-le-Street C.B.S., so as to give us some idea what staging we shall need, and get to the show as early as possible with their exhibits to enable us to get our judge (Mr. W. L. Smith) a good start. Everything points to a good show, specials and donations having come in well. Mr. Lindsay has promised to bring his noted White Skylark, all being well, so visitors will have the pleasure of seeing a very interesting exhibit.

Show Entries Without Name.

Please mention, writes Mr. W. S. Wilson, sec. Hamilton O.S., that I have received an entry for Classes 28 and 43 without a name. Postmark "Irvine"; postal order "Dreg-horn." Novice B.F.C.C. Exhibitor might send on the birds, and I will label them if he will drop a postcard.

The New Postal Regulations.

The attention of correspondents is directed to the fact that under the new postal regulations only one ounce can be sent for one penny. From one to two ounces the postage is twopence, and one halfpenny extra is charged for each additional two ounces. Reporters and correspondents who have to send long communications should please use very thin paper and be careful to prepay the postage in full, or we have to pay double the deficiency on delivery.

Cage Birds Annual 1916.

This encyclopædia of birdy knowledge is now in course of preparation, and no effort will be spared in the endeavour to make it, if possible, better than ever. It will form, as usual, a wonderful medium for the disposal of anything connected with the hobby of bird-keeping. Breeders of Canaries and Hybrids will find a steady demand for stock advertised in its pages, and cage and appliance makers, vendors of seeds and other foods, should certainly not neglect the opportunity of having their commodities before the eyes of customers from year's end to year's end. Full terms for advertising will be found on page 291.

THE BIRDKEEPERS' ROLL OF HONOUR.

City of Dundee C.B.S.

SIR,—The following members are serving with the colours:—James Coleman, A. and S. H.; John Miller, R.E.; Alex. Samson, R.A.M.C. Mr. Samson's son is also with the Royal Engineers.

ANDREW LAW, hon. sec.

Pontefract Linnets Club.

SIR,—It is with deep regret that I have to announce the death of Pte. W. Prector, K.O.Y.L.I., who fell in action fighting for his King and country. As a member of the Pontefract Linnets Club, he was ever ready to assist in anything that was good for the club. He leaves a widow, two daughters, and a son, to whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

SOUTHAMPTON.

The Southampton C.B.A. held a very successful show Dec. 1st, in the Assembly Rooms, Kingsland. Entries were just a few short of last year, but the collection was a good one, and many high class specimens were on view. Norwich and Yorks. made a fine show, and all were well arranged so that they could be easily seen. There was keen competition among the members for the handsome cups and trophies allotted to each section, and Miss Onslow carried off a couple with her Green Crested and wing-marked Dark Crest, the former securing the silver cup for best unlighted, and the latter that for the best champion Canary. Mr. Love won novice cup with a typical buff Norwich hen. The British Bird and Mule cup went to Mr. Hartnell's lightly-marked Mule, and Mr. Slade once more annexed the Foreign Bird cup. The silver medal for best Novice Yorks. went to Mr. Chandler's yellow unlighted, which also won the spl. for best Yorkshire shown by a Southampton member. The show was beautifully arranged by the sec., Mr. W. L. Page, who is quite up-to-date in show matters; he was assisted by Mr. Slade in the clerical work, and Messrs. Melhuish, Egerton, Winter and Washier, in erecting staging, acting as stewards, etc. The show was well attended by visitors, although the weather was most unkind. Mr. H. Norman judged.

KIDWELLY.

Held Nov. 24, at Town Hall. Our section was staged on the platform in good light and free from draught. Owing to clashing with Blaenavon and Swansea Shows entries did not come up as well as expected. The stewards, Messrs. Jno. Harris, W. Hughes, and D. Williams had things well in hand, and gave every attention to the exhibits. The Chairman, Councillor E. Cole, is a most obliging official, and worked very hard to make the show a success. Mr. C. Price, an old cage bird fancier, made a very courteous and painstaking secretary. Mr. S. J. Nicholas judged and his awards were well received.

GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND.

Twenty-sixth annual show, Nov. 27, Grand National Hall. Entries were barely so numerous as on previous occasions, but quality was well represented, especially in Norwich and Crests. Borders were quite good for quality and type. Yorks. were very level in quality, Mr. Heggie accounting for quite a goodly share of the spot. British were a level lot, the most outstanding for quality being the Goldfinch and Linnet classes, very little separating the winners. Pres., Mr. W. Wood; Vice-Pres., Messrs. J. Nimmo, W. Gunion; sec. and treas., the well-known W. Hutchinson, together with a willing committee, carried everything in a true-to-time fashion, and left nothing to be desired. Judges were: Nor. and Crests, Mr. F. Taylor; Borl. and Yorks., Mr. G. Hyllop; Brit. and For., Mr. A. Livingstone; and all acquitted themselves with credit.

YOUNG BIRDS, CREST COCK. 1, 2, Scott, leader wing mld., D.C., fine body subs., nice top, fine radiation, good back skull, staged in capital order, 2 even D.C. grand subs., plenty feather, not so well groomed, but must have pressed; 3, Barron, var., dark, nice qual., well groomed, well put down; 4, Smart. HEN. 1 and 2, Scott, winner varieg. dark, good size, feather, nicely radiated, well centred and drooped, steady, in the pink, 3 broken green, nice body subs., shapely top-piece, not so well groomed; 2, Smart, nice size, plenty feather, good qual., nice top, not quite the spread of leader. C.B. GLASGOW.

(West End C.B.C.)

Sixth annual show, Co-operative Hall, St. George's Cross, Glasgow. Numbers were about 20 up from last year, and quality, especially in the Norwich section, was high. The hall, which is comfortable and well lighted, was tested to its fullest for space. Judging was completed in good time, and seemingly to the satisfaction of the most fastidious. Messrs. A. Chalmers, Kirkintilloch, G. Hisslop, Stirling, and M. Craig, Tollerose, judged. One feature of which this society must feel proud is the true fancier spirit which exists amongst the officials. The Hon. Pres., Mr. W. Gibb McNab, the donor of one of the society's challenge cups, has just given his sixth gold medal for best young bird. President A. Hendry, and Vice P. Alton, A. Symington, are all well known, while Mr. W. Proudfoot, Sec. and Treas., is simply full of work, and the knowledge of how to perform it. An able committee, composed of Messrs. McGown, Lunn, C. Campbell, J. Campbell, Sellar, Gillespie, Robertson, with Messrs. G. G. Henderson, and P. Allan as auditors, embrace a management second to none. Competition for the cups was keen. The Pearson challenge rose bowl for best young Crest or Nor. was won by Mr. J. Young with his yellow plainhead cock. MacNab challenge cup best young Bord. or Yorks. Mr. W. Cochrane with his buff Yorkie. Mr. G. G. Henderson won the silver cup outright for the best young Mide or Hbh. Border Fancy medal, best members' bird, was carried off by Mr. H. Downie, a novice in his first year. Proudfoot rose bowl for best nov. Can., also Hyde's cup, Mr. A. Mitchell. Silver watch chain by D. Lunn for runner up to novice re-se-howl. John Colquhoun. Rose bowl by G. G. Henderson for most points over all table shows, including annual show, was won by Mr. D. Lunn, 161 points. Hon. President's gold medal for best young bird, W. Cochrane, with buff Yorkie, cock.

YOUNG CREST: 1, 3, 4, Hamilton, grand team, fine size, good subs., A1 cond., fine toppieces, well groomed, creditably staged; 2, Young, capital grizzle crest, nice radiation, well laid, shapely top-piece, fine veiny feather, massive body, in grand order. C. B.: 1, Hamilton, massive var., grand body, subs., plenty feather, nice skull, well lashed, will make up well. CL. OR TKD. YELL. CK.: 1, rose howl, Young, good size, rare qual. feather, rich even col., neat full head, neck, well developed, typical body, neat carr., style, grand bloom; 2, J. HAYLE.

Third annual show of the Hayle P.A., Nov. 23, in the Parochial Hall, a fine building, free from draughts and well lighted. Entries came up well, 222, only 16 less than last year. The profits were for the tobacco fund for soldiers and sailors serving in His Majesty's Forces. Quality was excellent, especially in Norwich, where most of the well-known breeders sent exhibits. Yorks did not fill so well as the chubby ones, although they were a nice level lot. One of the hens which took premier honours was sold at a good figure, and we congratulate the plucky buyer. British were a grand collection. About the management we have nothing but the highest praise. The staging was at a convenient height, where the birds could be viewed in comfort, and well looked after by a grand lot of stewards, all fanciers. Mr. A. S. Coombe, the hon. sec., worked well, and was always at his post, and was well assisted by a good partner, Mr. H. Ware, the hon. treasurer. The judges, Messrs. S. and T. Pickell Bodmin, got through their duties in time for the opening, and their awards were well received. All birds were packed and taken to the station by 6.30. Prize money and specials were paid to the successful exhibitors present at the show.

PAISLEY O.A.

Twenty-third annual show of Scotch fancy Canaries, Nov. 27, in the George A. Clark Town Hall, a very fine building for the event, being well lighted and free from draughts, and within easy distance of station and trams. A good classification, backed by substantial prize money and the adjudication left to four well-known judges, brought out the cream of the fancy. Of the management we have nothing but the highest praise, the staging being nicely arranged at a convenient height, where every bird could be reached in comfort. Mr. Neil O'Donnell, the head of the secretarial department, being indisposed, Mr. Lambie gallantly came to the rescue, and right well he did his duties. Although entries were received and accepted up to morning of show, he was able to pay prize money to the successful exhibitors in the afternoon. He was ably assisted by the President, Mr. A. Livingston, who is ever looking after the interests of one and all. Mr. T. Hamilton, as vice-President, also lent valuable assistance. The Committee are such well-known fanciers, and have had so much experience in show matters, that it is needless to say everything was carried out in A1 order. Entries were rather less than in previous years, but quality throughout was top notch. The handsome silver cup for the best young bird bred and exhibited by a member was won by Mr. J. A. Stewart, Muirhead, with a very sweet buff pied cock, not too large, but of beautiful proportions, the runner-up being Mr. J. Little, Paisley, with a very stylish yellow hen. Judges, Messrs. J. A. Stewart, Muirhead; J. Henry, Glasgow; A. Paterson, Edinburgh; and H. Caldwell, Baillestoun, who got through their work in good time, and gave general satisfaction. Unfortunately the attendance was not too good, although quite a number of interested visitors turned up during the day.

COCKERMOUTH.

Tenth exhibition held Nov. 27. Staged at one end of the large and exceedingly well lighted Drill Hall, the birds made an exceedingly good display, being all the time a source of much attraction to the large number of visitors constantly passing to and fro. The exhibits were also well and carefully looked after. In no better hands could the birds be than under the care of Messrs. John Ellwood and J. W. Deacon. Thorough fanciers themselves, they spare neither time nor trouble in looking after the birds entrusted to their care. The Sec., Mr. J. Jackson, had all the details well thought out, and all matters were well attended to. Borders were an interesting display. Unfortunately four of the open classes were cancelled, but the remaining classes filled fairly well, and had amongst them birds of fine type and quality, from many leading exhibitors. The winner of the medal for best bird belonging to a member of the Border Club was found in the winner of the 10s. 6d. selling class, belonging to Mr. John Ellwood. The winner of the Novice medal was Mr. Nichol's 3rd prize cl. yell. ck. Yorks. were also a nice collection, principally patronised by local exhibitors, but containing birds that could hold their own in much hotter competition. British were nice classes, the linnets especially so; other classes, though small numerically, had amongst them some very good birds. Mr. P. J. Davies, Milom, judged.

BORD. CL. OR TKD. YELL. (12): 1. Pearson, fine qual., neat head, good back, wings and tail, wee trifle nervous; 2. D. G. Wilson, neat and shapely, good pos.; 3. Nichol, clean made, typical; 4. Tenth Annual Show, Wesleyan Reform Schoolroom, Bodmin-st., Nov. 20. Considering that the majority of our members are munition workers, and are therefore unable to give their birds all the time they would like to, the number and staging of the exhibits were beyond reproach. The quality on the whole was excellent, Norwich predominating, whilst in British several recent winners in the open suffered defeat. The Society's cups were won as follows:—Yorks. W. Blunt; Nov. Yorks. J. W. Hutcheson; Nor. W. Grainger; Nov. Nor. H. Stokes; Brit. F. Bearder; specials for points were won by W. Blunt, W. Grainger, J. W. Hutcheson, H. Stokes, and F. Bearder. Mr. G. Browning, Rotherham, judged.—E. Johnson, Sec.

From the catalogue received, we gather that the principal winners were: Yorks: Blunt, Merrills, Exton, Hammond; Nor.: Grainger, Havenhand, Wasdin, Gifford, Brady, Hartley; Mules: Hartley, Holling, Bearder; Brit.: Hailstone, Holling, Garlick, Havenhand, Bearder, Stokes, Hammond, Darlow, Hammond; Nov.: Hatchby, Yorke, Stokes, Gifford, White, Wasdin, Hartley, Brady.—Editor.

HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD C.B.S.

Annual show, Nov. 19 and 20. Considering all the circumstances, the display of birds was excellent, particularly in point of quality, and the entry showed no marked decrease, such as might have been expected. Mr. J. Hyde, the indefatigable hon. sec., made light of his arduous task, and had the arrangements up to the minute. He was ably assisted by a willing set of stewards, and the judge was well served, while the catalogue was out in excellent time. The show was visited by a good number of fanciers. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged. The Touche silver challenge cup was won by Mr. A. Lovegrove with a grand buff Norwich, staged in faultless condition. We understand this is the same bird that won special best in show at the Young Bird Show. Other specials were also won by Messrs. A. Lovegrove, Bailey, P. Johnstone, and A. Knight, Bush, F. C. Knight, Carrington and Petty, Withers, Street, Kent, Shorter, Mrs. Wood, Wills, Stratton, Newcombe, etc. A noticeable feature of the show was the splendid manner in which most of the birds were staged.

COLINTON & CURRIE PARISHES.

Fourth annual show, Village Hall, Juniper Green, Nov. 6. The hall is very suitable for a show, being well lighted, and free from draughts. Entries were 59 down from last year, chiefly owing to so many members (12) having responded to their country's call. Cup winners: Scotch Fancy, W. Rodger; BORD., J. Michie; Nor., W. Smith; Brit. or Mule, J. Palmer; Nov., D. Leadbetter. W. McAdam, Lasswade, judged Scotch and Border Fanciers, and J. Holmes the remainder.

In the Palmy Days of the Scots Fancy Canary

The Scottish Cage Bird Fancy in the days of long ago

By "ST. GILES."

The most notorious Scots Fancy Canary ever before the Fancy was Mr. Jackson's, Glasgow, winner of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Ornithological Association's £25 Silver Cup, which was offered for the best bird in the show. The bird was bred by Mr. John Buchanan, Bo'ness, in 1885, and sold to Mr. Jackson for £25, a big price for a Canary in those days.

He was undoubtedly a great bird, and his like has seldom been seen since. He won the Cup outright, winning it in 1885, 1886, and 1888, truly a marvellous performance. He was beaten in 1887, and the scene was the most exciting one ever acted at the Glasgow Show, for the champion was never in better form and was hot favourite.

The show was held on December 24, that game little secretary, Mr. William Morton, Jun., was in power, and the following Scots fancy judges officiated:—Messrs. John Dalgleish, Leith, John Henderson, Paisley, William Innes, Kirkcaldy, William Reid, Beith, James Watson, Glasgow, John Brownlie, Glasgow, John Douglas and George Scott, Glasgow, whilst Mr. James Watt, Forfar, adjudicated upon the Belgians.

A Decision Riotously Received.

This was the fifth show of this Society, and 526 entries were forwarded. All the winners were brought out, but the decision lay between the champion and Mr. J. C. Frame's, Larkhall, buff hen, and, strange to say, the judges awarded the trophy to the hen.

The reception of the decision defies description, the award being most unpopular, as it was generally admitted that the hen was much inferior in top end to her adversary. Naturally Mr. Jackson was much disappointed, and protested against the decision on the ground that two of the judges were absent at the time the cup was awarded, but he was ultimately advised to abide by the decision and wait the result of another year. This he did, and he won the coveted honour in 1888, the cup thus becoming his own property.

At this show there was an entry of 616. The champion's son won the Glasgow Derby in this year, and ran second to his sire at the winter show, but, though an exceptionally good bird, he never reached the heights his father had done. Mr. Frame's hen, the cup winner of 1887, was a good hen, and was bred by Mr. Reid, of Beith. She was first at the Glasgow Club Show, where she was claimed for £10, and turned out a lucky purchase.

The Early Derbies.

The first Edinburgh Derby Show was held by the Edinburgh Ornithological Society in the middle of October, 1888. There were fifty-four members, and the turn-out was an interesting one. The following were the office bearers:—Mr. Henry Diok, President; Mr. John Nisbet, Vice-President; Mr. William Thornton, Treasurer; and Mr. John Robertson, Secretary. Mr. Thomas Dalton, Ayr, judged. In cocks Mr. John Brown won, Mr. J. H. Philp being second and Mr. John Nisbet third. In hens Mr. W. Beveridge won, Mr. Robt. Bryce second, and Mr. Jas. Soutter third. The hen was awarded the Derby prize, but the general opinion was that the quality was hardly up to par.

The Glasgow Derby had been in existence before this, and was held in the Ramshorn Hotel, Ingram Street, Glasgow. Mr. Alexander MacDonald, one of the most famous of our Glasgow secretaries, held the secretarial reins at this time.

It was in 1887 that the first show of the Scottish Metropolitan Ornithological Association was held in Edinburgh, when close upon 700 entries were brought together. The second show was held in the Waverley Hall, Waterloo Place, which is almost next door to the present General Post Office, but the entry dropped about 100 at this show; more than half the entries were in the Scots fancy classes.

Mr. Young was the first secretary of the famous early "Met." shows. It was in these days that the Scots fancy men could boast of heavy classes, thirty, forty, and even fifty birds being got together in one class, whilst the selling classes were always very heavy, as high as eighty being once registered in one class.

The Old Paisley Shows.

These notes would not be complete without a few words on the above shows, Paisley being at that time the only opponent to Glasgow, the seat of the cage bird fancy. Mr. J. R. McLean acted as secretary in those days, and Mr. Joseph Allison was President, both of whom were office bearers the Society was justly proud of. Under their able management the funds accumulated at an almost alarming rate, and it took some management to keep them in check.

This Society gave away about this time over £100 to various charities, not to speak of £20 which was spent in the distribution of coals amongst the poorer persons of the town. The Society also gave a large subscription out of the funds towards the cost of the statue erected in Paisley to the memory of Wilson, better known as the Paisley poet and American ornithologist.

Philanthropy seemed to be a ruling passion with the executive in those days, which no doubt accounted for much of the success achieved by this famous Society. It was the yearly custom to invite and admit free on the second day of the show the inmates of the local Asylum, the Ragged School, and the Reformatory, and each was presented with oranges or other suitable gifts on leaving the hall. Such pleasing functions are no longer a feature of our shows, which is to be regretted.

The special prizes given at this show were a feature in themselves, and I am confident many of the handsome clocks and barometers that were won at those earlier shows are in existence to this very day if they could only be traced. Kilmarnock Show, which was vying for notoriety at this time, was also famous for its special prizes, and it was only the other day I saw a timepiece which was won there over twenty years ago.

The Late Mr. James Hine.

I have written much about the Scots fancy breeders, but I will conclude my remarks with a few notes on Mr. James Hine, who was the pioneer of the British bird fancy. He was a big-hearted, true lover of nature, and although it was in the pigeon exhibiting world he made the greatest name, it was our British birds he loved best. He wrote charmingly of their habits and mannerisms, and was a close observer of all bird life. His researches were carried out with the late Mr. George Ure, Dundee, who was also a keen pigeon enthusiast.

Mr. Hine was born in Edinburgh in 1816, and died there at his residence at Buccleuch Place on 30th May, 1888. He was for many years with W. A. Lizars, the most eminent engravers in Edinburgh, who published several excellent books on ornithology, but he ultimately settled in Glasgow on his own account as a dealer and preparer of hair and wool for upholstery purposes. He had a most accurate and comprehensive knowledge of our British birds, and was beloved and respected by all who were favoured by his acquaintance. The names of such men stand out on the pages of the history of the fancy, and the least we can do now is to keep their memory green.

My Idea of an Ideal Yorkshire.

By J. A. Greenslade, Cage Bird Supt., Bristol, F.A.

I SHALL perhaps find some justification and recompense in penning these notes if I am able either to interest or amuse the seasoned fancier for a few moments, at a time when some diversion from the daily papers and the horrors of the world's conflict is very desirable and beneficial. If at the same time I can be of some little help to beginners, I shall then feel doubly rewarded.

To my mind, the great attraction of the Yorkshire Canary is eminently its symmetry of shape, and as a typical Yorkshire is the very embodiment of symmetry, we will first deal with the essential points for type. I put chest first and paramount, because on the position of the chest lies the whole foundation of type to my view, as unless it is placed high up, well in line with the tops of wing butts, and is the widest part of the body when looked at in profile, we lose that wedge shape and length of side so much desired.

The Setting of the Legs.

The next essential factor toward type or symmetry is thighs, and their position. Their right position should be well up the sides, toward the wing butts as much as possible, to give the necessary balance of carriage and jaunty style, and they should be long and well clothed with short feather down to the legs; the legs should also be long, showing a good elbow at the top to avoid a stilted appearance, and carried well under the body, more like cricket stumps than goal posts, ter-

HOW BRITISH BIRDS CHANGE THEIR PLUMAGE.

By the kind permission of Mr. H. F. Witherby, Editor of the monthly magazine "British Birds," we are able to extract from an exhaustive article by Mr. Witherby, entitled: "THE MOULTS OF THE BRITISH PASSERES, WITH NOTES ON THE SEQUENCE OF THEIR PLUMAGES," the portions which refer to such British birds as are generally kept in cages or aviaries. Readers of "CAGE BIRDS" are referred to the article mentioned for information as to birds which do not come within the category of cage birds. The article commenced in the November issue of "British Birds," and is being continued from month to month.

FAMILY FRINGILLIDÆ.

THIS family includes all the Finches and Buntings. The adults all have a complete autumn moult. Among the Finches only one—the Snow-Finch—has a spring moult and this is confined to the throat. A number of the Buntings, however, moult certain parts of the head, throat and breast in the spring. The effect of abrasion in the adults is very marked in most of the members of this family and in some cases greatly alters the appearance of the bird, the effect being that when the plumage is in the most worn, and therefore imperfect condition, it has, nevertheless, the most brilliant appearance.

The difference in the sexes of the adults is usually clearly defined and in some cases very marked, and only in a few species is there little or no difference (Goldfinch, Tree-Sparrow, Corn-Bunting, Little Bunting).

The juveniles are in some species very distinct from the adults (e.g. Hawfinch, Goldfinch, Crossbill, Lapland Bunting); in most cases they can easily be distinguished, and where they are much like the adult they resemble the female. The sexes of the juveniles are usually alike, but in some cases have well-defined differences.

The moult from the juvenile to the first winter is usually confined to the body-plumage, some wing-coverts, and often some of the inner secondaries. A complete moult, including all the wing and tail-feathers, occurs only in the House-Sparrow, Tree-Sparrow, Snow-Finch, Corn-Bunting, and East Siberian Meadow-Bunting.

The first winter and summer plumages are in some species like those of the adult and in others somewhat different. In the latter the male usually either resembles the adult female or is intermediate between it and the adult male, while the female is usually duller than the adult female or intermediate between it and the juvenile.

HAWEFINCH (Coccothraustes c. coccothraustes).

ADULTS.—Complete moult in August or September. No moult in spring and scarcely any effect by abrasion.

The body-plumage of the female is paler than in the male, but the two sexes are more clearly distinguished by the outer webs of the secondaries and distal half of the primaries, which are fringed in the female with grey, and in the male with glossy purple and black.

JUVENILE.—The juvenile is very distinct from the adult, having a pale yellow chin and throat instead of black, and the rest of the under-parts whitish-buff, barred with brown on the flanks and sides, besides other less prominent distinctions. The outer webs of the wing-feathers distinguish the sexes as in the adult.

FIRST WINTER.—Except for the tail-feathers, wing-feathers and primary coverts, the juvenile plumage is moulted in the first autumn and the birds then resemble the adults.

GREENFINCH (Chloris ch. chloris).

ADULTS.—Complete moult in early autumn, sometimes commencing as early as May or June. No moult in spring, but abrasion makes the plumage in both sexes brighter and greener. The female is considerably browner and less green than the male, and the yellow in the tail and wing-feathers is less extensive.

JUVENILE.—Somewhat like the adult female, but distinctly streaked on the upper and under-parts with dark brown and the wing-coverts reddish-brown. The sexes can be distinguished by the amount of yellow in the tail- and wing-feathers.

FIRST WINTER.—The juvenile plumage is moulted as in the Hawfinch, with the addition of two or three of the innermost secondaries. The birds then become like the adults.

BRITISH GOLDFINCH (Carduelis c. britannica).

ADULTS.—Complete moult in August or September. No moult in spring, but abrasion makes the nuchal spot and under-parts whiter, and the white tips to the wing- and tail-feathers gradually become worn off. The male and female are alike.

JUVENILE.—The juvenile differs strikingly from the adult, as the head is greyish-buff streaked and spotted with brown and without any crimson and black. The rest of the upper-parts are like the head, and the under-parts are spotted and streaked. The inner secondaries have broad buff, instead of white tips, and the distal halves of the greater coverts are buff instead of yellow. Sexes alike.

FIRST WINTER.—The juvenile plumage is moulted as in the Greenfinch, but the birds can be distinguished from the adults by the small tips of the tail- and wing-feathers being buffish instead of pure white. These distinctive tips, however, become mostly worn off by the summer.

minating in a neat pair of feet with rather long and fine toes, to enable the bird to get a good grip on the perch. When the thighs and legs are so placed, they appear to give that length of waist which, when it is well feathered and reaches well in under the tail, completes the long tapering line of body from the chest.

The next in order, I think, is the back, which should be straight from the top of the shoulder, well rounded at the sides, with the highest part in the centre all down, very much like the side of a man's hand, starting from the wrist and tapering down to the little finger into a pencil thickness by the tail, which should be long and in direct line with and in continuation of the back, and should appear as if its purpose was to support the tips of the wings.

The Wings and Tail Well Packed.

The wings should have well concealed butts, be carried close into the side, and should be long enough to reach well down the tail, and terminate in two fine points resting close together on the tail, the points more like the pointed blade of a pair of scissors than the blunt side.

On top of such a well shaped and balanced body we want a good head and neck; I have noticed that most writers experience some difficulty in describing it, and they always will, I think.

To my mind, it is largely a matter of proportion. The neck should certainly be long enough to give a bird a nervy and graceful poise of head, and should gradually recede inwards from the base (making a good round finish to the previously-mentioned high-placed chest), in a gentle curve, not sufficient to give a drawn-in or pinched appearance. It should gradually curve out again, and finish in a sharp turn-out, that ends in the lower mandible, without showing any break or chuck at the throat, and making the symmetry of the front of the bird complete.

The back of the neck should hardly curve in at all, only sufficiently to break the severe straight line from the shoulder, and should round up at the back of the head in a sharp curve, with perhaps a more elongated curve across the top of the head, coming down gently on to the beak, with the merest suspicion of a cushion at the base of the top mandible, to well cover the nostrils.

The skull should be narrow (from eye to eye) at the top, swelling outward at the sides, with the eye well fixed in the centre and fairly large to give a bold and fearless expression. The ear apertures to be well covered by feather, making a full cheek, which also assists toward a bold expression.

The beak should be small at the base, curving down slightly in the top mandible to a neat dull point, and of a smooth pink-pearl appearance in a clear or ticked bird.

Right on the Mark.

If we are the fortunate possessors of a bird of the shape and style I have tried to describe we are very near the mark so far as regards type and symmetry, but it certainly is a long way from the "ideal" exhibition Yorkie unless it is well covered with smooth, short body feather of silky texture and good colour and bloom, which latter is the best evidence of good health and condition.

When space permits, with our Editor's indulgence, I shall be pleased to give further notes on personal views and methods of management, mating, etc.

[We are sure that an account of Mr. Greenslade's methods of mating, etc., would be of great value to our readers, and we shall anticipate with interest his fulfilment of his kind promise.—Editor CAGE BIRDS.]

The Birds Missing from an Edinburgh Show.

SIR,—Many thanks for inserting last week my letter re missing birds. I am sorry to say that up till writing I have no word of them, neither have the police. So I have come to the conclusion they have been stolen.

A. W. WATSON.

Four Specials at Y.C.C. Show Held at Dublin.

SIR,—I wish to state that I bred the Cinnamon Ticked hen which won four specials at the above show. I sold her three weeks before the show for a very modest sum. She is an over year-old bird. I showed her twice last season. Cork and Kingstown; she was 3rd at Cork and only commended at Kingstown.

D. BECKLEY.

The Keeping of Fresh-caught Goldfinches.

SIR,—May I appeal, through your valuable columns, for information on how to keep fresh-caught Goldfinches. I give an aperient once weekly, and attend to them well, but still I cannot keep them. If some of your readers who have had experience with these birds will kindly give me a few hints on how to treat them after I receive them from the dealers, I should be much obliged.

GOLDIE.

The Hybrids from Cock Bullfinch and Hen Goldfinch.

SIR,—At Bridlington show I had the pleasure of seeing Sir Luke White's Bullfinch-Goldfinch Hybrids which he had sent for exhibition, not for competition. One of them is a good specimen of the cross, displaying the parentage of both birds, but taking more after the Goldfinch, showing wing bars, moons, buttons and blaze well; also the bars of the Bullfinch. It has the Goldfinch beak (a dark horn colour) and the feathers at the back of the skull and round the neck are dark brown to black, but taken on the whole a bad colour throughout—not the colour of the cross when bred the reverse way. The other bird, which appeared to be a hen, shows the Goldfinch well, but nothing of the Bullfinch whatever. I understand they came out of two different nests. I trust the above will be of interest.

F. F. POTTER.

Should Present-day Exhibition Lancashires be Abolished?

SIR,—Allow me a few lines in your valuable paper in answer to Mr. Fuller's remarks re Lancashires at the last Manchester show. He makes a statement that he was present during judging and did not see any Lancashire Coppies—in his opinion they were Crests. I beg to state that I bought my strain of Lancashires, which I had no occasion to doubt, from a successful breeder and exhibitor some eight or nine years ago, and whatever Crest is in them was in them then, as there has been none put in since. I bred from them, and all the birds I possess at the present time have been bred by me. As my business prevents me showing as much as I should like, I am compelled to stage a few when and where I can. I may say that the ticked buff Mr. Fuller saw at Manchester, out of about a dozen times showing has been placed first on each occasion, with one exception, when he was put second, under very successful exhibitors of this variety as judges—the late J. Garner, J. Swallow, B. Clegg, R. Barrass, and C. A. House. This includes 13 years in succession at Manchester show. I am convinced he is the best buff Coppy living. If such men as I have mentioned do not know a Coppy when they see one I don't know who does. I may say that the report that followed after he was placed second, convinced me still more, and I shall remain convinced, until he is beaten, that he is an ideal Lancashire, and I repeat, the best buff Coppy living. My other bird, 3rd in the hen class, is a daughter of the above, bred last June, so now about five months old, and she is also as pure-bred as him.

H. JAMESON.

SIR,—It was no surprise to find Mr. Fitton endeavouring to convey the impression that the influence of "Teddy" Fuller's presence at Manchester show during judging was detrimental to his probable success. I must object to his remarks; that is, if he intended them for me. Barker Clegg judged the Lancashires at Manchester, and awarded the honours in accordance with the schedule for purity of breed, etc. The remark I made in the presence of Mr. Fuller and another or two officials when judging a certain class was perfectly correct, and very applicable with such a class before me. Don't run away with the idea that it applied to the whole section. Now a few remarks on the heading of this controversy. I should be sorry to see any further decay in the variety. Still, show committees cannot give an extended classification without they get supported with more entries than was the case at Manchester. Therefore I would suggest two classes only, one for Coppies and one for Plainheads, until these classes fill well. You will remember George (if not, your father will) the controversy on the deterioration of the Lancashire almost a quarter of a century ago. Well, it demands more than a controversy now. It needs the fanciers who hold the blood to be more combined in their object, to concentrate their endeavours solely on the promulgation of the variety. A dozen good, earnest fanciers, combined in their object, could advance the Lancashire again in a few years, similarly to what the Manchester, Oldham, Rochdale and Ashton districts advanced the variety in the middle of the last century, and brought the birds to the highest standard of perfection possible. How many will enrol for the object? We are certainly much indebted to the Fitton family for the tenacity with which they have endeavoured to keep the variety going. I should like to hear your idea, George, on the future of the Lancashire and the best course to adopt to ensure its success. Never mind having a go at "Teddy." He won't do you any harm; he is one of the old school. I know him, and I knew him over thirty years ago, when he lived in Manchester. He then had a good room and a good stock of Lancashires, and he knows a good bird when he sees it. What he has now, I cannot say. I have not seen his birds at Glossop, but I intend to pay him a visit at an early date, as I have been invited.

BARKER CLEGG.

The Recent Liverpool and District Show.

SIR,—Please allow us to thank all exhibitors for their kind support. Our aim was to secure about 400 entries, as we considered this the maximum we could stage and handle with comfort, and as the entries totalled about 350, as a first venture, we have every reason to be satisfied. We received no complaints, so take it for granted that satisfaction was general, and should like to intimate that we shall hold a similar show next season, on a larger and more elaborate scale, with fixed prize money. Our best thanks are also due to the local fanciers who so kindly lent their aid as stewards.

Some Novel Views on Breeding Procedure.

SIR,—No doubt many, with me, have seen in a flight a dozen hens, and have noticed a certain lot out of that quantity with clogged feet. You can't tell why it is so, for the feet of the remainder of the hens are perfectly clean and always are clean. Do what you will the feet of the others are always clogged up. Well, take notice of those hens during the breeding season. One does not know how to manage with them. Dirty feet make dirty nests; if the hen is too lazy to clean her feet, she is too lazy to clean her nest, so her young ones go down, as a rule. Scrap those hens. Use the clean-footed hens, and see the difference in the nest, also the young.

As for feeding, breeders will find that they are told they must give a hen some egg food on her 13th day of incubation, yolk only, with Osborne biscuits, for the first week, or they will not rear the young. Bosh! Away with it. Your hen during incubation has been in a state of fever and because she has hatched out a clutch of, say, five, you are adding to her fever with high feeding. Do you want to get her temperature any higher? I say no; reduce her temperature. Seed is a more natural food than egg and Osborne biscuit. I give hemp seed, the best on the market, for the first three days, then a little egg food to help her on, and as much fresh chickweed as she likes. During the winter months let your hens have the use of a good flight cage, and a bath often. If they won't bathe, dip them into water once a week; there is nothing like water for condition. That is how I treat my birds, and I have good, consistent stock-getters, and no so-called "sweating" hens.

Another Aspect of the Novice Question.

SIR,—I have read the reply from the secretary of Chester C.B.S. He tells us that the father of the winner in novice class has no interest in the birds. I was at the show, and heard him distinctly throw out a challenge to Mr. R. to show him for £10 with his "ould yellow" against anything Mr. R. has in his room. I have heard that Mr. R. has been sport enough to take him on, and proffered the winnings to the Red Cross Society; but I have since heard that when they met to deposit their stakes the father says he never made a challenge. Mr. Cavanagh, I wish you and the society better luck next time.

A. N. OTHER.

SIR,—I was rather surprised at "Novice" asking for a fair and plain answer when he knows very well he did not give a fair and plain view of the case. Exhibitor No. 1 lives with his father, but the father gave up exhibiting eight years ago. Over two years ago the father was taken with a serious illness, and at that time gave stock and appliances over to the son (present exhibitor). The father is quite often unable to leave his bed for a week at a time, let alone look after birds. The sale and management of the birds are entirely in their owner's hands (the son). When he joined the society the novice question was gone into, and every member present voted him a novice. The points, I may say, were not equal, as four points divided the winner from the runner-up.

ANXIOUS.

Breeding the Bearded Reedling in Captivity.

SIR,—May I venture to suggest that Mr. Weston's definition of breeding in confinement and captivity in your issue of Nov. 20 leaves something to be desired in the event of such terms becoming accepted as typical of certain methods. Now, for instance, would hybrids bred in cages or indoor aviaries be distinguished? It seems to me that the case of the Bearded Reedlings at Tring cannot even be properly termed breeding in confinement, seeing that the birds for all practical purposes were in a state of nature, whilst in the case of Dr. Lovell-Keays, if my memory is correct, the birds were bred in an open-air aviary of such size that large shrubs grew in it and left sufficient space for several persons to wander about within its limits. The latter might very well be termed restricted liberty, but is scarcely what one has in mind when speaking of writing of captivity as applied to small birds or any other small creatures. May not the case at Tring be much more correctly termed a case of the birds having been bred "under observation," leaving the term "confinement" to apply to such cases as that of Dr. Lovell-Keays, and reserving the term "bred in captivity" for birds bred in small indoor aviaries and cages—in short, just what the term implies, in captivity? It seems to me that this would be a far more satisfactory and correct terminology.

CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

What's the Matter with City of Glasgow Show?

SIR,—About the beginning of September the joint secretaries of the above Society called a meeting in Mr. Thompson's (the President) rooms to give their report on available halls in Glasgow suitable for this Society's requirements. The only hall near suitable was the Sheppard's Halls in Bath Street, three in number (where the great Red Cross show is to be held at the New Year). After much consideration the large majority of the members present were of the opinion that owing to the state of the country, and that no hall capable of staging about 1,500 birds, with ample room for visitors (similar to the Stirling Road Hall), could be obtained, we should not hold a show this year. This was moved and carried. There was no other way out, owing to the unique position the City of Glasgow Society holds, it being the only one in Britain, to my knowledge, that pays 36s. per class should only five birds compete, and 15s. first prize should only one bird come forward. We have a tidy nest egg to fall back on, but it was risking too much without a suitable hall. There was a motion that we restrict the prize money, but almost from its inception the City Society has paid full prize money, and nearly all present were loth to depart from this. Further, the Committee could hardly do so without a general meeting of the members. I hope this explanation will satisfy "Briar Bush," and I can assure him that immediately the management see their way to hold a show that will uphold the glorious traditions of the City of Glasgow O.A. it will be done.

JOHN McLAY, Vice-Pres.

Identity of Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid Challenged.

SIR,—As the judge who wrongly classed the supposed Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid at Carlisle Show, I am sure you will grant me space to reply to the decision of your experts, published in the last issue of CAGE BIRDS. While they have been most careful to somewhat justify my wrong classing this bird, they go on to describe various little shadings of colour and actions of the bird in the endeavour to justify its being called a Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid. I deeply sympathise with them in their task, and at the same time would point out that the supposed little differences they describe can be found in scores of genuine Song Thrushes, particularly hen birds. As experts I should have expected them to be aware of this fact, which is indisputable by any one versant with the Thrush family. It has also been cited that Mr. Anderson sent me the actual Blackbird's egg-shell which the said bird was supposed to have been hatched from. It is quite true Mr. Anderson did send me the shell of a Blackbird's egg; but what evidence is that that the bird in dispute was hatched from it? None whatever. I can supply a score of Blackbird's egg-shells if necessary. I will go even further, and say that the bird in dispute was never hatched from a Blackbird's egg, and I will trust in the bird for my defence. In making this statement I do not imply any dishonest intentions to Mr. Anderson, but would suggest that by some means or other Thrush eggs have got mixed up with his Blackbird's eggs, and that the disputed bird is the result.

Mr. Anderson also offered to supply me with a list of witnesses in this drama of bird life. I, however, told him I did not require such evidence; the bird I examined was my best evidence, which bird is nothing more or less than an ordinary Song Thrush. Had I had any doubt in my mind upon the matter the bird would have had the benefit of that doubt. As it is, if the bird were to come under my judgment again I should repeat my decision at Carlisle Show. I do not say that this bird was not reared in an aviary, and possibly by a Blackbird, but I do most emphatically say the bird is not a Hybrid. I shall be one of the first to acknowledge a genuine Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid, but not such as was exhibited at Carlisle, which has no characteristics whatever of a Blackbird. I had nothing to gain in taking the course I did with this bird; but I had a public duty to perform, which was to see that only genuine hybrids were allowed to compete in a class for hybrids. Not wishing to be egotistical, I would suggest that this bird be sent to a number of our largest shows, any that may take place before the close of this season and again next season, so that it may come under a number of our recognised Hybrid and British bird judges; that it may also be seen by the leading exhibitors at the said shows. I have no fear as to what the verdict would be—simply a Song Thrush.

JOHN ROBSON.

[We value Mr. Robson's opinion (none more so), and to this, of course, he is fully entitled to adhere. The experts who examined the bird here simply gave their own views without, as it hardly seems needful to say, regard to personal considerations. The only comment we have to make on Mr. Robson's letter is that if Mr. Anderson's bird is a Song Thrush, it is begging the question to suggest that he has made a "mistake." The only hen in the aviary was a Blackbird, therefore if the young were hatched from her eggs they must be one of two things, viz., either Hybrids or pure Blackbirds. The latter possibility is eliminated by reason of the fact that no male Blackbird was present. If the birds are pure Song Thrushes, then they could be hatched only from eggs introduced into the nest by Mr. Anderson, or some other person having access to the aviary, in which case the shells would at once establish their identity. Mr. Anderson has stated that two nests of young were hatched, and birds reared from each; he has sent us signed statements of witnesses to this effect; he has written an account of the operations (published in our issue of June 12); he has produced shells of the eggs of a Blackbird as being those out of which the young came. Therefore, if Mr. Robson is correct, Mr. Anderson stands convicted of something for which the term "mistake" is much too kind a word.—Ed. CAGE BIRDS.]

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all mites and keeps them off everything else.

BIRMINGHAM.

Birmingham City C.B.S. held its open show Dec. 1 and 2, in splendid room at the Crown Hotel, an excellent room, well lighted by electricity, so making it easy to see every exhibit. Birds were staged on three tiers round the room and down the centre, leaving plenty of room for spectators. The enterprising efforts of the management were crowned with success, for they had an entry close on 700. The officials who deal so effectively with the unpacking and staging were Messrs. H. T. Collier and W. C. Wells, show managers; A. Broadhurst, chair; J. H. de Maillet, vice-chair; W. Raby, J. Childs, J. Ward, H. Sheldon, J. Tossy. The worthy president, Mr. J. A. Ekersley, was ever on the go, and of the management in general we have nothing but the very highest praise. The society is very lucky to find such a grand sec. as Mr. A. C. Shirley, who did wonderfully well; he possesses fine tact and ability, and was ever at his post. He was ably assisted by the vice-chairman, J. H. de Maillet, who proves a very valuable asset to the society. Clampton Nor. brought together 112, an average of 14 per class, and a finer lot one could not have wished to see. Four classes were put on for novices, and rightwell did they patronise them, the number being 69, a little more than 17 per class. The hen and unlighted staged by A. Bridgewater were grand specimens for any novice to possess. Norwich Greens, although under the patronage of Green Canary Association, only numbered 10 in four classes, but there were some grand exhibits among them. Clampton, Yorks, commanded the next seven classes, with 100 entries. Mr. W. C. Wells capturing three 1sts with grand birds, and Novice Yorks, responded splendidly in their four classes, for they mustered 60, and the hen staged by Colin Brown was simply a treat. Mules and Hybrids proved a grand collection. Mr. R. D. Parlett's well-known champion White Rose leading its class, looking better than ever. British were a very nice lot, 113 in seven classes. Many well-known faces were among the visitors. Mr. J. Robinson judged Norwich, Greens and Crests, and Mr. J. H. Roe the remainder.

DARLINGTON.

The Darlington C.B.S. held its annual show in the Co-operative Hall on November 27—an ideal place, free from draughts and heated with hot water pipes. The above society is an amalgamation of the two previous societies, and has lately been remodelled. It has not held an open show since 1912, and is to be congratulated on its luck in running one at the present time. Had the Canary classes filled better it would have been very encouraging. The total entry was about 450. If the Canary section failed in numbers it certainly made up for it in quality. The Mule, British and Foreign classes were the feature, both in numbers and quality, well-known exhibitors having their best teams on view. "White Rose" appeared in Darlington for the first time and was very much commented upon. It was often compared with the winning dark Canary Bullfinch, the opinion of the majority being that it was a Greenfinch-Bullfinch Hybrid. However, this has been debated in your valuable paper before, but there is certainly a great difference in the build of "White Rose" and the dark Canary Bullfinch generally seen at shows. The British classes were splendid. The members are very enthusiastic, and 21 classes brought in an entry of 160 birds. Several staged large teams, such as 52, 22, 20, 19. One, residing 14 miles from Darlington, was plucky enough to make 32 entries in the open and members' classes, and had to engage a motor car to bring his birds, at considerable cost. He also worked well all day, and must be congratulated on winning the members' cup (most points) put up for the first time. The secretary, Mr. F. Stothard, and his assistant, Mr. Cooper, both worked hard and were ably assisted by Mr. Cartwright (chairman), Messrs. Jellies, Harrow, Wilcock, Hearfield, Stainsby, Gray, Carter, Forster, and others. Mr. Bertram, of Newcastle, also attended the show and rendered valuable assistance. Exhibitors requesting their birds returned by certain trains were given every attention. The judges were W. A. Cowgill (Canaries), and P. Marwood (Hyb., Brit. and For.).

MULES, CL. OR VARIEG. (14): 1, Parlett, "White Rose," in the pink of condition; 2, 4, spl. Maddison, cl. buff Gold-Can. leading, good size and cond., and light var. Greenf., grand cond., worth an extra prize; 3, vhc, Martin and Archer, noted Greenie-Chaff, Hyb., much admired, splendid condition; vhc, another cl. Gold-Can.; he, Dr. Wilson, Redpoll Bullfinch, worth its place; c, Anson. The society decided to give an extra prize in this class. DARK MULE (13): 1, spl. Dr. Wilson, noted Canary-Bullfinch, splendid col. and cond., looking well; 2, Parlett, Gold-Can., good size, rich col.; 3, Hooper, nice Greenie-Can., grand col. and cond.; 4, Maddison, Gold-Can., runs 2nd very close; vhc, Mays and Allison; he, Shorney; c, Hogg; No. 7, Parlett, noted Greenie Mule, cardless, hard lines. BRIT. GOLDF. (20), magnificent class: 1, Parlett, grand Finch, good size and blaze, splendid cond.; 2, Chick, another nice Finch, pressed winner hard; 3, 4, spl. Almond, both noted winners, well worth their place, need no comment; vhc, Brade; he, Medley; c, Tucker. BULF. (7): 1, spl. In respect of the Canary classes, Mr. W. A. Cowgill writes as follows, and we are therefore only able to publish the names of the winners as in the catalogue:—

"I have sent you catalogue of awards for my section at Darlington. I fully intended sending you a full report as requested, but owing to the amount of work I had not had time to go through them all. By the time I had got through the Yorkshire section my time was up. I may say the show room was all that could be desired, and that Darlington is very fortunate in having such a secretary as Mr. F. Stothard, who was assisted by a good staff of fanciers, who had everything in apple-pie order. The quality throughout was A1."

Club Reports.

CITY OF DUNDEE C.B.S.

A meeting was summoned for Dec. 1 to make arrangements for holding a club show, but owing to the small turn-out it was agreed to abandon the idea of holding a show this year.—Andrew Law, Hon. Sec.

NORTHERN BORDER FANCY C.C.

Meeting Dec. 1, Pillar's Cafe, Pink Lane, Newcastle, Mr. A. Allcock chair. The chief item on the agenda was the question of continuing these meetings under the restricted facilities for attendance to a large number of the members. After various suggestions had been discussed it was decided to cancel the January meeting, and also to wind up the table shows for this season, the prizes to be awarded on the points gained up to the present.—C. Farrer, Hon. Sec.

READING C.B.S.

Meeting Dec. 1, Palmer Hall, before a good attendance. Sec. gave a rough balance sheet of show, which was considered satisfactory. Arranged to hold pair show in Feb., and sec. was desired to write to a well-known judge for same. Was also decided to make a charge of 7d. per cage entrance fee, the Society taking 1d. of each entry for expenses, the other to be paid in prize money on sliding scale. Mr. Foster and Mr. Pyke were elected to audit the balance sheet. To all members the secretary extends the compliments of the season, this being the last report for the current year.—J. C. Smith.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Meeting Dec. 4, Mr. Farrer presiding over fair attendance. Show business was gone into. Mr. Swan reported that the Sunderland Tipplers' Association would hold their show in Miner's Hall, in conjunction with our Members' Show, Dec. 27. At next meeting, Dec. 18 (the last one before our show) will members report the specials obtained, so allow them being allotted at same meeting. Entries will close Dec. 21, but schedules, with particulars, will be sent or given out later. A guessing competition will be held at the show, a bird and cage being given to the person who can tell its correct weight.—John Peacock, Hon. Sec.

AYR C.B.S.

Meeting Wallace Tower Hall, High Street, Nov. 29, Mr. J. A. Murray presiding. Present: Messrs. Lyon, Davidson, Wason, T. Erskine, W. Erskine, McGlo, Kelly, Gribben, Tait, Ferguson. Three new members: Ex-Bailie Robertson, Mr. J. Malcolm, and Mr. G. Martin. Classification for Border Fancy approved by B.F.C.C., and medal granted for competition on Dec. 25. Classes as revised at meeting are 6 Scotch Fancy, 11 Nor., 5 Yorks., 13 Bord., 3 Mule and Hyn., 13 Brit., and 1 For. Special prizes were arranged, 45 specials in all. Arranged to have tickets printed and sold at 6d. each, the proceeds, after clearing show expenses, to go to Red Cross Funds.—H. M. Ferguson, Sec.

GLASGOW AND W. COUNTIES.

Meeting, Good Templars' Hall, 122, Ingram-st., Dec. 4, and Mr. Peter Pettigrew presided over a grand turn out. Many important items in connection with annual show, Jan. 22, were settled. Decided to advertise in CAGE BIRDS as usual. Mr. James Pentland was admitted a member. Mr. Jas. Findlay entertained the members to a bird-watching exhibition, and thereafter a competition took place. Result: 1, Cochran; 2, McJury; 3, Bannerman. The prizes were presented by Messrs. Pettigrew, Cassels, and Adam. Mr. Jas. McGowan was judge. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Findlay, and the Chairman. Over 40 specials were handed in for annual show, and now, members, let's have a record. Next meeting, Dec. 25, 7, at headquarters.—J. H. Adam, Hon. Sec.

LONDON AND PROVINCIAL O.S.

Annual general meeting held at Raglan Hotel, December 2, the President in the chair. Balance sheet read and adopted. Result of voting papers: Mr. Geo. Crabb, Pres., 40 votes; Mr. G. Crabb, treas., 38; Messrs. F. S. Matthews, 40; and G. Mortlock, 44, auditors. Committee: Mr. J. W. Ramsden 56, Mrs. Huggins 51, Mr. H. L. Huggins 51, Mr. G. A. Harris 42, Mr. G. H. Couzens 41, Mr. R. J. Pretty 41, Mr. W. J. Salter 41, Mme. Madewell 40, Mr. J. Hodder 40, Mr. G. Thuring 40, Mr. R. Bamber 39, Mr. F. J. Day 36, Mr. T. G. Tapper 35, Mr. J. S. Fairman 28, Mr. R. J. Burt 23, Mr. J. P. Ayers 22, Mr. J. B. Kerr 18, Mr. A. J. Clarke 18. The two new rules proposed by Mr. Huggins were carried. Mr. G. A. Harris was elected chairman of Committee, Mrs. Huggins vice-chair, Mr. H. L. Huggins was re-elected hon. sec. Decided not to hold an annual dinner, as the Committee feel that at the present time functions of this description are out of place. Jan. 20: Mr. Robson, lecture on Pairing (all varieties). Feb. 17: Pair show; Mr. J. Robson, Mr. G. Mortlock, judges. Vote of thanks to chair closed the evening.—H. L. Huggins, Hon. Sec.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

SILENT AND SLACK (Priory).—You must first of all see that the bird is kept under bright and healthy conditions, and not exposed to cold direct draughts, and do not allow it to hang near or over burning lights in the evenings, nor high up near the ceiling. Give a staple diet for the next few weeks of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition to this give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed; and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle and broken groats, and a morsel of banana or carrot, the latter either raw or boiled. To the drinking water every second day for a week add ten drops of lemon juice and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, and after this give instead four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba and aromatic Singing Contests.

Announcements of forthcoming contests in the nature of advertisements must be paid for at advertisement rates, three words a penny.

Judges, Biss, Gomersal, T. Hirst. Nov. 28, Canary match; 15 entries. 1 and 2, Wharam; 3, T. Hirst. Judges, Biss, Gomersal, Richardson. Neutral judges will be welcomed.—E. STANSFIELD, Sec.

sulphuric acid, every second day for a fortnight. Offer the bath three times a week, choosing as far as possible the mildest days, and always giving it early in the day.

VARIED (V. Bowes).—(1) See reply to "Priory" in this issue, and make yourself sure that the bird does not hang in the way of a direct draught. Also give the same staple diet and the extra items of food recommended in that reply, except that you should omit the hemp from the seed mixture and substitute in its place an equal proportion of linseed. To the water add every second day for a week ten drops of lemon juice and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence. After that add 20 drops of chemical food to the water two days in every three for a fortnight. If the irritable condition is removed the bird should come out in full song in the next three or four weeks. (2) I am not sure what the liquid blue you mention consists of, but the powder sold by most chemists as "line blue," for adding to whitewash, could be quite safely used to tint your cages. Doubtless the liquid would be equally harmless (the chemist would tell you definitely if asked), as would also be a sufficiency of ultramarine blue sold at any oil and colour shop for making blue paint etc. But why not save the should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Baitley's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Northwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3/4); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets for Cage Birds" (No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Care Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Canary," No. 24 "Green Canaries." messy trouble of mixing by using one of the tinted distempers which may be had in quite a variety of shades suitable for the purpose? (3) A clear yellow cock would be the best mate for a buff hen to breed the greatest proportion of clear young, but a slightly ticked yellow, bred from clear parents, would, on the whole, be the most advisable, as, although the proportion of clears may—I do not say would—be rather lower, the tone of the yellow or buff colour would be better. (4) It is not advisable to mate mother and son unless there is some very definite object in view in doing so. The risk of material loss of stamina and size is too great to do it without a real cause.

THE UGLY DUCKLING (Mrs. Cole).—Glad to hear that the one bird has made such a good recovery. As regards the other, you should have repeated details or referred to the previous reply, as I cannot determine which was your former reply, and do not remember the details. Better continue the treatment advised before for another fortnight or so, and then if you wish for any further advice as to it write again and repeat the full particulars of symptoms, etc.

BREEDING MARKED BIRDS (Bandsman).—You omit to say what type the parents were, either in colour or marking. Consequently, I can only advise you in a general way as to the mates you require for the young birds to breed for marked birds. To have a fair chance of breeding any material proportion of even-marked the parents should have come of an even-marked strain, and if they were green-marked you should only try for green-marked breeding from the youngsters. On the other hand, if the parents were of the cinnamon-marked variety you should adhere to this variety in procuring mates for the young birds next season. With these qualifications, the best mates you can get for the birds with the object of breeding marked birds in the progeny is a buff hen marked on eyes and wings, or both eyes and one wing, and a yellow cock with rather light wing marks, both wings, and good and moderate-sized eye marks. Both these birds should be bred from an even-marked strain. From the progeny of these two pairs select those nearest approaching even-marks and pair together—cocks from one pair to hens of the other pair, and vice-versa. And mate the marked parents each with the best clear or very lightly marked, eyes preferably, bird of the opposite sex from the other pair in the following season, and you should have made a distinct step towards even-marks of good quality. In the third season you will need some fresh blood, and should introduce it from the same even-marked strain, but as distantly related to your birds as you can get it.

TWO YORKSHIRES (G. A. S.).—See that the birds are kept in a bright and healthful place, and treat as follows for a month. In addition to the present staple of canary and rape give each a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar every third day, and on the intervening days give first a morsel of banana or a small spray of water-cress when you can get it quite free from frost, and next half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle and broken groats. In the drinking water every second day for a week add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and in the second week give instead four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. In the third and fourth weeks repeat the dosage of the first two weeks in the same order.

AILING LIZARDS (Downhearted, N. Wales).—If you are really a "five-year-old reader," as your second non-de-plume infers, no wonder you are a wee bit downhearted. But, cheer up, laddie, or lassie, as the case may be, you certainly have the honour of being one of CAGE BIRDS' youngest students, and there'll come a time some day when you will get over these little troubles and enjoy seeing your pets in the fullest vigour and health. You must see that the birds are not exposed to direct draughts, which are very apt to be very mischievous, and often unsuspected, when a stove is used, especially if the room is a small one. Then, again, one must be very careful to see that such a room is sufficiently supplied with fresh, pure air, by proper ventilation, though this must not be allowed to cause cold draughts into the cages, otherwise the stove will very soon consume that portion of the atmosphere which is most necessary for the health of the birds. As you mention keeping the room at a temperature of 45 degrees, I take it you are provided with a thermometer. Therefore, get some "grown-up" to see that the above-mentioned conditions as to ventilation are complied with, then raise the temperature to 55 degrees, and see that it is kept as nearly as can be at this point regularly, day and night, until the birds are quite well. Otherwise treat the birds the same as advised to "Learner" in this issue, with these little differences: add two drops of cod liver oil emulsion for each bird to the bread and milk before sprinkling with sugar; give the salts and rhubarb for three consecutive days, and follow this with five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine and sweet spirit of nitre for four days, then go on with the spirit mixture as in that reply.

EFFECTS OF COLOUR-FEEDING (S. K. R.).—Emphatically, no. Colour feeding has not the slightest detrimental effect on the breeding powers of a hen, nor cock either, for that matter, neither whilst the bird is in its colour-fed plumage, nor afterwards. As a matter of fact, when a plebiscite on the question of colour-feeding was taken a number of years ago the consensus of opinion trended to show that better results on the whole were obtained in breeding from colour-fed birds than with those which had never been colour-fed. But however that may be, you may rest assured that the fact of your bird having been fed last season had nothing whatever to do with her not rearing any young beyond a week old. The fault probably lay in the management of the birds for some months prior to the breeding season, and not in the colour-feeding nor the bird, except in so far as the latter would be affected by faulty management. There are hundreds of hens to be met with each season which have never so much as seen colour-food, nor their parents or grandparents before them, which, nevertheless act just as badly as your hen did this season. You might have seen many cases similar to yours dealt with in this column during the past summer, and the advice given in most of these, if applied to your own case in time, would probably have set matters right for you. Now, I cannot advise you better than to get a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which our Manager will send you, post free, for 7d., and study its pages between now and next breeding season. Give particular attention to the advice on keeping the birds through the winter.

LOST ALL HENS (A. J. S.).—Your query does not give me the slightest clue as to what may have been the cause of your losing all your adult hens, unless I take the fact of the cock being now suffering from a cold as indicative that the birds have been victims of some bronchial trouble due to unfavourable environments. Had you described the symptoms shown by the hens, and also the cock that is now ill, as fully as you could, I might have formed a much more definite opinion as to what was wrong. See that the birds are kept free from cold direct draughts, rapid extremes of heat and cold and damp, and do not allow them to hang near or over burning lights in the evenings, nor very near windows. For the present keep the cock in a comfortable temperature, but do not overdo it, and see that it is fairly equable. In addition to the usual seed diet give every second day a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with soft sugar, and on the alternate days give a morsel of banana in lieu of green food and add to the drinking water five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, and sweet spirit of nitre. Continue this treatment for a fortnight, which should suffice to set matters right. You would be well advised to get a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which our Manager would send you for 7d., post free, and compare the advice given therein with your management. (2) The Nutshell booklet, No. 6, on "Ailing Cage Birds," 2/4, post free, from our Manager, is at present the only book dealing exclusively with ailments. The subject is also treated at length in Part VI. of "Our Canaries."

STARTING TO SING (J. W. M.).—If I read your letter correctly to mean that the bird is still moulting, you cannot expect him to sing for at least some little time—not, in short, until he has quite got over the effect of the moult, which will be a few weeks after he ceases dropping feathers. As he seems to have developed a "cough" almost simultaneously with the onset of this cold snap, it looks very much like his condition being due to unfavourable surroundings. Look into this, and see that he does not hang in a draughty position, where the temperature is liable to sudden extremes of heat and cold, nor near or over burning lights in the evenings. Above all, do not hang it in or very near a window. Having attended to these points, treat as follows, and if it is not quite well in a month write again, repeating particulars, and I will advise you further. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and well sprinkled with maw seed, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle, and husked, and also a morsel of banana instead of other green food. You may also keep a morsel of the paste advised to "W. H." in last issue stuck in the wires for the bird to peck at for a week or two. Every second day for a week add to the drinking water ten drops of lemon juice and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and after this give instead 20 drops of chemical food two days in every three for a month.

A VARIED TRIO (Cuttlefish Bone).—(1) No, it is not likely to throw your birds into another moult if you remove them from a bedroom where no fire is kept to another room with fires, provided that the heat is not subject to sudden and extreme fluctuations. On the other hand, if you put a fire in the cold bedroom for two hours daily, unless it were done with great discretion, it would be much more likely to have this effect. For instance, if there came over a sudden wave of severe cold a small fire started and kept going until the normal temperature became milder, and only just enough to prevent the full severity of the cold spell being felt in the room would do no harm, but to start a fire for an hour or two every day would probably result in the birds soon dropping into moult from the effect of the constant fluctuations. If you wish to start these occasional fires solely on account of the birds, I should advise you, if they have been bred and reared under normal conditions of temperature, and the room is free from draughts and damp, to leave well alone; the birds would thrive much better in the cold room altogether than they would do with occasional fires. (2) I do not approve at all of such a method of rearing young Canaries as you suggest—feeding wholly on crushed arrow-root biscuit moistened with extract of malt and cod liver oil. The latter items are very good things in their proper place, but this would be very decidedly giving "too much of a good thing." It is, of course, quite possible that you might succeed with the method, but a more practical and rational system of feeding is infinitely better than these purely fantastic and experimental methods, unless you wish to try them purely as experiments. (3) Your third question should have been written on a separate sheet, as it relates to a different department. See Mr. Norman's column for reply.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS

Answered by H. NORMAN.

LINNET UNABLE TO USE FOOT (G. R. D.).—Try the following remedy, which has been successful in a similar case. Bathe the leg and foot in fairly warm water; dry with a soft cloth, and rub with "Jacob's Oil," which can be purchased at the chemist. Give the bird an aperient; feed on a little extra hemp and maw seed, and two or three times a week give a spoonful of soaked seeds. If he will take soft food, give a little biscuit, making it crumbly with warm milk. Keep him indoors, but not too warm.

HYBRIDS THAT HAVE NOT BEEN PRODUCED (Cuttlefish Bone).—The lincs that have not yet mated successfully with the Canary are the Hawfinch, the Chaffinch, and the Brambling. Of these, it is very doubtful if the former will ever breed with a Canary. In the first place, there is a great difference in the actual size of the two species. I use the words "actual size," because although some Canaries in appearance are almost as big as some Hawfinches, they have such an abundance of feather that they look considerably larger than they actually are. Then, again, the Hawfinch is not a free breeder when in captivity, and I think it would have to be a specially selected pair, kept under ideal conditions to make any attempt to reproduce with any likelihood of success. As regards the Chaffinch and Brambling, successful matings with Canaries have occasionally been reported, and I am convinced that these hybrids will some day make their appearance. Please note that queries referring to different subjects should be written on separate sheets of paper. (Ed.)

GOLDFINCH WITH RED MITE (Trilate).—The red mite is an insect that lives in the cracks and crevices of the cages, and during the night finds its way to the birds, but they do not live on the birds during the daytime. If you have only the one bird, stand him in a bright light place for an hour or so, and then run him into a thoroughly clean cage—one that has been recently scrubbed in hot soda water with a good dash of Jeyes' Disinfectant.

added—then bang the cage in an entirely different position, as these pests frequently form a colony round the nail in the wall, or on the wall itself. The old cage can then be scrubbed and treated in the same manner, and used again later on. If you have a birdroom with several birds and cages in it, these cages should be treated in the same manner in rotation and the crevices and perch ends painted with paraffin, with a few drops of strong oil of lavender added.

BIRDS FOR AN AVIARY (E. L.).—If you intend running your outside aviary for pleasure, you cannot do better than place in it several pairs of Finches and Buntings. You do not quite give me any dimensions, so I am unable to advise you as to the number. The following species would be suitable: Goldfinches, Bullfinches, Greenfinches, Linnets, Redpolls, Siskins, Yellow Buntings, Reed Buntings. Do not put in single birds, nor have an excess of males. Keep to pairs of each if you can manage it. Do not overcrowd; you had better have a pair or two less than a pair or so too many.

SEED SAMPLE (H. Freeman).—Your sample of seeds appears to me to be very much like wild mustard, but, unfortunately, I have not a genuine sample by me to compare it with. It is a good clean sample you have, and I would advise you not to use it by itself, but let it be one of the seeds in a mixture. When used by itself it is rather too stimulating. It may be given to the Finches.

HYBRID BREEDING IN A ROOM (J. B. Clifton).—There is no reason why you should not be successful with your birds in the room you propose using; many have been bred in the same manner. I would advise you not to be too ambitious at first, but confine your efforts to the production of Canary crosses principally. Turn in about 8 or 9 Canary hens, and with them a couple of Goldfinch cocks, a Linnet, a Greenfinch, and a Siskin. If you liked you could also add just one Bullfinch hen as a sporting chance for the production of Hybrids. For perches there is nothing to equal natural branches, which should be of various sizes, and one resembling a tree placed in the centre. This should be in a tub or large flower pot. Do not have too many branches on it; many of the smaller ones are useless and should be removed. Nest boxes, pans, small wicker cages, and even small flower pots, should be fastened in various positions for the birds to use for building in. See that you have plenty—quite double the number of birds—or the hens will quarrel for favourite sites.

SEX OF THE MULE (No Name).—It is a difficult matter to sex a Mule by a written description. Cocks are generally brighter-coloured than hens, and more sprightly, but as you have only the one, this is no help to you. Your best guide is the song, and I would advise you to feed him fairly liberally, giving a little choice mixed seed, with hemp, maw, and niger in it, three times a week; also a little soft food about twice a week. This should assist in bringing him into song. Most birds have to recover from the strain of the moult before coming into song again. (2) Your freshly-caught Goldfinch will be quite all right for pairing with a Canary hen next season. Get him as tame as you can, and let him have a fly occasionally in with his intended partner. Kindly send your name and address in accordance with our rules. In the absence of these you were not really entitled to an answer. (Ed.)

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

BIRDS FOR GARDEN AVIARY (Tony).—Unless your country is a very northern one, all the birds you name should do well in your aviary, and "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1s. 2d. post free from our publisher, would help you as to treatment. Put a couple of good sized privet bushes (evergreen variety) in the open flight, and then fill in with coarse grasses and such herbage as cow parsley, dock, mallow, plantain, shepherd's purse, dead nettle, etc. The arrangements seem about right providing the shelter is light enough; it must be as light as an ordinary living room if the birds are to use it freely, also the walls must be thickly lined with twigg branches, leaving only the centre portion of shelter open for movement. This is as necessary as light, for it is not only to provide perching accommodation but also cover to retreat to if one of the inmates should prove tyrannical and aggressive. Unless you can bring your birds straight from some other outdoor aviary, you must not stock it till spring.

SEPARATING THE SEXES (E. Wilson).—Several replies on this topic have appeared recently, but I repeat the information for your benefit. While many successful breeders of Budgerigars keep their birds together all the year round, it is undoubtedly best to separate them—that is, of course, if you have proper separate quarters for them. Separating them gives the adult birds the rest they need to recuperate their system after some months spent in reproducing their kind. If left together all the year round they will mostly go on trying to breed all the year, except during the moult, till nature is exhausted. The sexes of most wild species separate once the breeding season is at an end, and this alone should teach us a lesson. If you retain any of your young birds for breeding, you must be careful not to mate brother and sister together, for this would soon result in deterioration of your stock.

GREY PARROT WITH FITS (E.E.C.).—After you have given the powders, etc., for a month report progress, stating the bird's condition as clearly as possible. I certainly see no reason why a cure should not be effected, but, of course, there may be several relapses before the trouble ceases. Add two parts of oats to your seed mixture and it will be about right then. I should let it satisfy its thirst thoroughly night and morning, then offer it the water more often, finally leaving it in the cage altogether. You need not give castor oil if there is any difficulty about it; as often as may be required to keep the bowels moving quite freely, give it equal parts of Dinnford's magnesia and water to drink. The bowels must move quite freely, but the excreta must not be liquid or allowed to remain so. During the moult, which is a strain upon a bird's system, the bowels must be maintained in good order, and a little bino-phosphates in the drinking water during the period of the moult is a good tonic.

ROSY-BREASTED COCKATOO (C. W. R.).—Once they are acclimatised, these birds are absolutely hardy, but must not be subjected to draught. Spray the nostrils with a dilute solution of glyco-thymoline—it will do no harm if a little is swallowed. Give a laxative (one teaspoonful of fluid magnesia) in the drinking water every fourth day for a month, and on the intervening days lightly colour the drinking water with chemical food. Literally "chattering" implies that happy state of meaningless jabber (to us) which Parrots utter when contented and docile, as distinguished from the wild raucous cries of excitement, rage and fear. I presume by "chattering," advertisers mean to imply that, if not actually talking, the birds are all-but doing so—a sort of pleasant chatter, not yet amounting to articulate words. However, there are advertisers and advertisers, and the meaning would vary with each one.

YOUNG GREY PARROT (Zoe).—Your best course will be to send to our manager for the Nutshell "Grey Parrot," 2d., post free, study its contents, and as soon as may be wean the bird from its present dietary to the one given in the Nutshell. Its internal economy is evidently in bad order from improper feeding, but at present it must have soft food till you find it eating heartily of dry seed, fruit, etc. Keep a tin of seed mixture in its cage, and when you see it beginning to eat heartily thereof, gradually discontinue the soft food, finally ceasing the supply altogether. Boiled maize only keeps fresh one day—boil till soft (grains should be whole), drain off all water, lightly dust with flower of sulphur, and when cool supply to the bird. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. You can give while it must have soft food the following: put several pieces of bread in a small dish, spot over it about 15 drops of cod liver oil emulsion, very lightly sprinkle with sugar, then pour over the bread as much boiling water as it will absorb, and when cool supply to the bird. It can also have dry biscuit to eat, ripe fruit, shelled pea, Spanish or walnuts, a piece of raw carrot. Keep a piece of cuttlebone hanging in the cage and supply Parrot grit regularly, but if you have not been giving the latter supply it very sparingly at first; once it has become accustomed to it, it will take no more than is good for it. Also keep a fair-sized chunk of wood in the cage for it to exercise its mandibles upon.

BUDGERIGAR ILL (Mrs. Evans).—I regret to note that you have lost the Budgerigar, but I feared that such would be the case. It is quite possible egg binding may have caused its death, as it is quite natural for birds to feed each other when in breeding condition. I gather you want the birds as pets and not necessarily to breed them; in such case, unless the cock mopes badly I should not trouble to get it a mate. The more often you can let it have a fly round the better it will be for it, as Budgerigars, though not unhappy in a cage, get into poor health through lack of wing exercise quicker than any other species I am acquainted with. A millet spray suspended from the top of the cage so that they cannot get at it save by clinging to it, causes them to take a good deal of enforced exercise (they are fond of spray millet), which is to their general well-being. The kitchen quarters should suit it fairly well, the only objection being that in a room in which cooking goes on to any extent, the temperature rises and falls considerably at different periods of the day and night; nevertheless, a pet bird is best where it can have plenty of company and see much to keep it amused. It should do well if you keep it in that part of the kitchen where the temperature is most regular, but not away from light and air. The cage must be kept below the level of gaslights. If you let it out of the cage pretty freely, the bird should do well and be quite happy as a bachelor.

AILING PARROT (G. Smith).—If it will take it, give it ripe fruit daily. Banana is very wholesome, so is sweet apple; most kinds of Parrots are fond of the core. Get a box of honey and horax from your chemist and put a little (not much at a time) in its mouth once or twice daily so long as the box lasts. You can supply it spread lightly on the biscuit, or give it from the end of a stick, or by any means you can contrive without unduly disturbing it. Put one teaspoonful of fluid magnesia in the drinking water every fourth day for a month, and on the intervening days lightly colour the water with chemical food. Try it with a seed mixture as follows: one quart each oats, canary, hemp, and white millet seeds, one pint each sunflower, wheat and shelled peanuts—the whole to be well mixed. Keep cuttlebone and Parrot grit continually in the cage, also a chunk of wood for it to exercise its mandibles upon. If it can be trusted out of its cage a little such exercise would be of great benefit to it. I do not think there is anything more than a slight indisposition, which the above treatment should correct. Report progress about a month hence, but if any adverse symptoms should arise write again at once with full details.

RED AVADAVATS IN A CAGE (M. E. K.).—Apparently there would be no direct draught into the cage, as, of course, during the winter months the window and door would not be open simultaneously. Ventilating from either the one or the other separately should not occasion a draught, but if there is any direct wind blowing into the cage, a glass screen, a little larger all ways than the front of the cage, might be fitted, so that it can be adjusted four to six inches in front of the cage. Near the top of the cage fix a row of small rush nests, twelve inches apart, placing a small twigg branch between each couple of nests. Do not have any straight perches. The conditions of temperature you name should suffice, as once they get over the hardships of importation they are really enduring little birds. You could turn a dozen of them into your cage, and when in colour during the breeding season they would make a charming picture. Our Nutshell, "Avadavats," 2d., post free, from our Manager, would help you as to general management. As regards time of purchase, it is a case of opportunity in these troubled times, but it is always well to nurse newly imported birds up a little in a small cage, and in warm quarters till established. It is not only possible to buy the birds now, but the birds should do well, if you counteract what draught there may be, by some such means as those indicated above.

SUGARBIRDS AND BUNTINGS (T. W. M.).—(1) If the Sugarbird is still living when you see this, drop two drops of tasteless castor oil to its caco crumbs, and also put half a teaspoonful of fluid magnesia into the drinking water, repeating the latter after an interval of three days. In addition to the food you are now supplying give the following syrup: Half a teaspoonful each of condensed milk, honey, and Mellin's food; beat this into a paste, then add two tablespoonfuls of boiling water, well stir up, and supply to the bird when cool. If the fits do not abate, get half a dozen 2-grain powders of bromide of potassium, thoroughly incorporate one of the powders with the syrup every other day so long as they last, and then report progress. (2) The Rainbow Bunting is fairly hardy once it is acclimatised, but, unless the aviary be a very sheltered one, I advise it being brought indoors at the end of October and not put out again till the spring. At any rate I advise this course for the first winter. It hails from Mexico.

INDIAN GREEN PARROT (Engineer Commander).—(1) It is an Alexandrine Parakeet, and a hen if it has no ring round its neck. The term "Rock Parrot" is rather indiscriminately used for several species of Indian King-necks. (2) A better seed mixture would be: One quart each white millet, canary and oats, one pint each white millet, safflower seeds, and a pint each hemp, sunflower and well mix, store in dust-tight tins, and keep in a dry place. Also supply ripe fruit liberally, any kind it cares for, pieces of biscuit, stale crust, and raw carrot. Keep cuttlebone, grit, and a chunk of wood in the cage continually. Water must be regularly supplied. It can also be given walnuts, and Spanish nuts to crack for itself at intervals. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. (3) Sand is the best for cage tray, sprinkle a pinch of parrot grit over this daily. (4) This may be quite natural; most Parrots are just completing the moult now, but some are still dropping a few feathers. To make sure, spray it once a week with a tepid quassia solution, choose a bright, genial day for the operation, and keep it out of the way of cold winds and draught till dry.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A. E. Lloyd.—Your show report has been unavoidably crowded out in company with many others. We would have written you, but you gave us no address, and your name does not appear in our books as hon. sec. of your society.

J. James.—We could supply you with any or all of the coloured plates you mention. The price is twopence each, post free. You did not send your address, or we should have sent you a list of plates.

POST MORTEM.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 2s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

WAXBILLS (Golden-breasted, Orange-cheeked, Grey, and St. Helena). These interesting quaternaries, which can be purchased at from 2/6 to 7/6 a pair, there are few more charming foreigners. They can be successfully kept, too, with little difficulty if you will follow the hints given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutshell No. 20." 24d. post free from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Call at any of our agents and get it for 2d. (list frequently published).

For a Complete Knowledge of British Birds You Can't Beat

THE BRITISH BIRD MANUAL.

By H. NORMAN.

The Most Thorough and Practical Work on British Birds ever Produced. Published in two parts and complete bound in cloth. Part I. Hardbills. Deals in the fullest manner with Linnets, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and all other varieties of Finches. Part II. Softbills. With Blackbirds, Thrushes, Jackdaws, Larks, and most of the more commonly kept species of insectivorous birds.

This work, lucidly written by a noted specialist, contains fullest directions for Hand-rearing, Keeping, and Exhibiting the most popular of our British Birds. Each bird is dealt with separately, its nesting habits, etc., are fully explained, and these, together with a description of its general characteristics, will enable the novice to easily identify the various species. Each part contains a coloured plate and numerous black and white illustrations by the author.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL.

Real practical information on every variety of Canary illustrated with an art plate of a standard bird is contained in

The author, that well-known expert and judge, gives much useful instruction on AVIARIES and CAGES, BREEDING, MOULTING, DISEASES & EXHIBITING, SEEDS, Etc., and devotes a separate chapter to each individual variety. Get a copy now, it will help you this coming breeding season.

Price 1/2 post free, cloth bound, 2/2.

Wisely fed birds are healthy birds, and healthy birds do you service. Avoid all errors of diet in feeding them, therefore will help you to feed them properly. It is especially valuable at this season when wild foods are to be had in such abundance, merely for the gathering. There are many sketches and illustrations of all the best known wild plants. 1/2 post free.

A HANDY BOOK.

MULE and HYBRID BREEDERS make your 1916 breeding season a record in every way by purchasing a copy of

CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS.

This great work is written by CHARLES HOULTON, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading Exhibitor, and a leading Expert and Judge. Edited by G. E. Weston and C. A. House.

Complete Bound in Cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. Magnificently Illustrated by that great bird artist, MR. H. NORMAN.

MARVELLOUSLY COMPREHENSIVE.

First of all are considered at great length the question of cages and aviaries for hybrids. All the various methods of housing are thoroughly and carefully described. The perches are minutely detailed; nests and nesting material have a chapter to themselves. Mr. Houlton's special cage for hybrid breeding is clearly described and illustrated. All the foods, natural and artificial, are enumerated. Egg and other soft foods, and their feeding values dealt with. The selection of the stock is debated at length. The hens which breed light and dark exhibition mules described. The proper breeding procedure for Dark Goldfinch Mules gene into. Egg binding and its treatment. The food supply. Care of the young hybrids. All these topics are treated with that experience and skill only an expert of Mr. Houlton's standing could bring to such a task.

There are no less than Sixteen Coloured and Sixteen Art Plates in this work. EACH PLATE IS A PERFECT STUDY OF AN INDIVIDUAL HYBRID. Every plate shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present day type and general characteristics of a prize-winning Hybrid.

ALWAYS USE "CAGE BIRDS" DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

THE RIGHT WAY

Of purchasing anything is to have it on approval. The broadest guarantee goes with every article I send out. It must meet with your approval in every detail, otherwise you merely return it, and I at once refund the money, free from any deduction whatever. The whole of the men employed by me are thoroughly experienced craftsmen who know exactly what is required for successful bird-catching. Clap nets made from 60 s/3 cord, superfine netting (specially knitted for bird catching), 3 yards long, 5 1/2 feet deep, 4 feet fly, 5/- pair; 4 yards long, 6/-; 5 yards 7/-, 6 yards 8/-, 7 yards 9/-, 8 yards 10/-, 9 yards 11/-, 10 yards 12/- per pair, or any size made to order. All clapnets consist of two nets to the pair; each net guaranteed full measurement, and are fitted complete with all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use. Single nets half above prices, plus 6d. Loose netting as used in above nets, 7ft. deep, 4d. yard; ditto 9ft. 5d. yard, ditto 12ft. 6d. yard, post free. Self-acting spring net traps, 24ins. long, 18ins. wide 1/6; ditto 18 inches by 14 inches, 1/3 each, post free. Kindly note these net traps are by far the largest and most simple net traps on the market. They are practically invisible when set, can be baited for hard and softbills at same time, will catch and hold uninjured any bird from wren to rook, and call bird can be used inside them if desired. Please notice I give measurement of my net traps, but do not claim that they are a new invention. I have supplied all the leading softbill catchers with these traps for years past. Original Japanese bird lime, warranted strongest lime made, does not freeze, and specially good in fog or drizzle, sample 4d., 1lb. 9d., 1lb. 1/2, 1lb. 1/10, all post free. Full weight guaranteed without tins, hence extra for postage. Italian hemp pull lines, warranted not to snarl or stretch, and strong as boat lines, 68 yards long 2/- post free. FRED ALLEN, BRITISH BIRD CHAMPION

MORE PROOFS OF MY SUPERIORITY
over others as a British bird specialist. "Grimsby, Sir.—The Greenfinch and hen Siskin bred me three youngsters.—Mr. Wade." "Hessle, Sir.—Send another Goldie. I bred seven Mules with last one.—Mr. Harrison." "Ballymena, Sir.—I had five Mules off Linnet. Send, etc.—Mr. Yale." "Dowlaish, Sir.—Send me hen Bullfinch. I had two nests of young from last one.—Mr. James." "Hessle.—I bred six Mules from Goldfinch; two of them are in Pickering Park.—Mr. Wilkinson." I could fill a page with successful customers. If you are ever in Hull, call and see the thousands of testimonials I have. I claim to have the largest and best stock in the North of England. A visit will convince you without making any idle offers. I have a fine collection of giant English peartree cock Goldfinches, all on full song, 2/6, 3/6, 4/6; specially picked for muling, 5/6, 4/6, 5/6 each; gems, with extra deep square-cut blaze, broad heads, well buttoned, can win anywhere, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6; monster cock Bullfinches, with double rich colour, ready to win, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6; a few grand ones, specially picked for hybridising, and can win small shows, 3/6 each; one similar to Sir Luke White, which bred two Hybrids, this bird is a monster, only 5/6. I have over 50 real giant hen Bullfinches, the real bulldog breed, 2/-, 2/6, 3/6 each; one like a Thrush for size, 7/6; hens, specially picked for breeding, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 each, not rubbish, but real giants, clean and sure breeders; monster yellow cock Greenfinch, a gem, 3/6; Lesser Redpoll, 2/6; h.m. Brambling, finger-tame, 4/6; cock Chaffinch, a beauty, 2/6; beautiful Meadow Pipit, caged four months, can win, 2/6; cock Hawfinches, best in England, 15/6, 20/-, 25/- each; giant cock Linnets, steady as rocks, well pencilled, grand colour, ready to win, 2/6, 3/6 each; one, a stunner, 3/6; Yellow Bunting, good one, 2/6; Greenfinch and hen Bullfinch, well matched and paired, 5/6; cock Goldfinch and hen Bullfinch, real gems, 7/6 pair; cock Bullfinch and hen Goldfinch, 7/6 pair; cock Linnet and hen Canary, paired, 5/6 pair. Now, you Linnet singers, if you want a good bird, send to the man who knows the Linnet language. I have been called the human Linnet in this paper. Those who would like to see me master a Linnet may have a ride with me by motor, and I will make the wild Linnets fly around us. My secret mixture is doing wonders. Mr. Weir, Upper Grove-place, Edinburgh, writes:—"Send 1/- bag of mixture; am having great results." Mr. Wilson, of Huddersfield, writes:—"I tried it on a Goldfinch, and he is a masterpiece now." My mixture will save your bird's life if it is ill, only 1/- bag; half-teaspoonful does the trick. I am selling some of my champion house-moulted Linnets at 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/-; these birds have won all before them, and will sing anywhere—they are mad proud. I have a grand lot of this year's youngsters all on full song day and gaslight, and being taught under above champions, including my cup winner and champion of England; prices, 2/6, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6 each; Linnet cages, 9d., 1/-, 1/6; cock Lark, finger-tame, 2/-; h.m. Linnets, all winners on bench, 10/6, 15/6, 20/- each. Call birds: Linnet 2/-, Chaffinch 1/-, Redpoll 1/-, Goldfinch 2/-, Greenfinch 1/-, I have two grand Linnet Mules, on Linnet song, 15/6 each; Goldfinch Mule, pure Linnet song, 15/6; Goldfinch Mules, Finch song, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6. AN INVITATION TO See over 5,000 Birds.

If in doubt where to go during the Xmas and New Year Holidays, I invite you to come and inspect my stock. I have 16 large rooms, containing a magnificent collection of over 5,000 birds. These include some splendid specimens in Yorkshires, Norwich, Crests, and Crestbreds, Border Fancies, Scotch Fancies, Rollers, Mules, and muling hens. I have some splendid stock and exhibition birds bred from my own winners, and also a number of excellent birds from other well-known winning strains. My rooms are open every day but Sunday, and whether you wish to purchase or not I shall be glad to see you and show you round. If you are requiring birds for stock, for exhibition, or for song, come and make your own selection. Every bird for sale without reserve. If you cannot come, remember I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the Kingdom on 7 days' approval at my sole risk. I guarantee absolute satisfaction to every customer, or cash returned in full. Kindly note the following prices:—

Sensational Quality for the Prices named here

Norwich

Winners for show and high-class stock birds. But sold for far less than they really are worth on the perch. Here is a chance of securing high-class stuff to improve stock, or start breeding your own winners, at a very reasonable price. Have on approval; a marvellous collection to select from; inspection invited; not a shop-keeper. Few prices: Cocks or Hens, colour-fed, nothing ever sold like them before at price, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Pairs, correctly matched to produce best results by me personally, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. Other Norwich at following prices: Cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; hens, 3/-, 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6; pairs, matched to produce best results, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6. Cages to hold one bird 3d., to hold two or three birds 4d. Details of all others free.

ACTUAL WINNERS from Sheffield, Gorton, 1st and special for best in show. Not being a professional exhibitor, I can afford to sell my best, and at a very moderate price, too.

NORWICH CRESTS, 15/- to 25/- per pair. Scotch Fancies, 25/- to £3 per pair; pure Border Fancies, from 6/6 to 21/- per pair.

W. RUDD, The Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

Yorkshires

I want you to make a comparison with any others offered at similar and higher prices, by having on approval. These are bold statements, I know, but they can be backed by the birds sent. That is the way to prove all claims made about them. This collection contains the strain of the £15

and this is a fact I can prove up to the hilt.

Cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Pairs, matched for breeding, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. Hens, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6. Travelling cages 3d. extra one bird, two birds 4d. Detailed List Free.

THERE is no more lovely seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutsell No. 14," from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2d. from agents (see list frequently published).

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutsell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2d. post free from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

WAXBILLS (Golden-breasted, Orange-cheeked, Grey, and St. Helena). Than this interesting quartette, which can be purchased at from 2/6 to 7/6 a pair, there are few more charming foreigners. They can be successfully kept, too, with little difficulty if you will follow the hints given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutsell No. 20," 2d. post free from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Call at any of our agents and get it for 2d. (list frequently published).

ROUND THE SHOWS.

WATFORD.

Eleventh Annual Show of the Watford C.B.S., held in the Halsey Hall, Dec. 8 and 9. Although the Society was most anxious to assist in keeping the Fancy going by holding an open show they had some difficulty in securing a hall, and at one time had actually cancelled the event, and it says much for the pluck of the Watford men that they eventually succeeded in carrying out the scheme. Although the entry was a good one, it scarcely came up to last year's total, and the Watford fanciers deserved better support than they had. In this matter Londoners were very remiss. Watford is on a main line and not difficult to get at, so that railway troubles did not apply. The hall is very suitable for a big show, being roomy, cosy and well lighted, and the birds were nicely arranged by Mr. Goodall and his assistants. All the birds sent came in well up to time, and several made quite long journeys. Fanciers in such distant towns as Eastleigh, Leicester, Southampton, Swansea, Brighton, Manchester, Coventry, etc., showed their appreciation by sending entries.

Norwich made a brave show and included some very high class specimens. In yellow cocks Mr. Sears staged two beauties that have done some winning, including Birmingham and Bedford. The hen class was a topper, and so were the two unlighted classes; the latter including some very promising youngsters. All the novice classes filled well, the unlighted numbering eighteen birds, the winner changing hands at catalogue price. Mr. Shirley, from Birmingham, sent in a grand bull cock, and it won easily, although there were some good ones in the money. One of the most interesting classes was the A.O.V., which included Dutch Frills, Lizards, Cinnamon and a Crest-bird. It is seldom one sees a better class of light Mules than the one on view. The British birds were a splendid lot, both numerically and in point of quality, many noted exhibitors having grand teams out. Mr. C. Prior had a regular field day, and the condition and col. of his birds supplied the best possible testimony of the value of wild seeds. Another "old hand," Mr. W. Francis, also did well. The foreign birds were very attractive, although few in number, and we noticed that a pair of Gold-breasted Waxbills found a new owner at the rather remarkable price of 4s.

The management of the show was entrusted to that veteran fancier, Mr. J. Goodall, who is particularly keen upon the welfare of the exhibits under his care. He got through his duties splendidly and everything went smoothly and well. His able assistants were Mr. R. J. Pretty, the popular chairman, and Messrs. Brown, Sears, Corley, Little, Hild, Buckingham, Dumbleton and Ball. Unfortunately the weather was most unkind, and this no doubt affected the gate. Mr. Clark won the Sear's Cup, and Partridge Cup went to Mr. Swain. The judges were: Canaries, Mr. H. Norman; Hyb. and Brit., Mr. A. Silver; and For. Mr. R. J. Watts.

Green. BRIT. HYB. (7): 1, Martin and Archer, grand Chaffinch-Greenie, fine big bold bird, very shapely, sound col., fine qual.; 2, 3, Lamb, Goldf-Sisk. and another Chaff. Greenie, leader a beautiful specimen, shown in grand cond.; 3, fine bird, not the size of winner; 4, Wilmot, lovely example of the Goldf-Linnet cross, grand size, shapely, good qual.; vhc. Meek; he, Gilbert. HEN (10): 1, Welsh, massive Greenie-Bullie, bold, shapely, full head and neck, sound col., grand cond.; 2, Edward, lovely Goldie-Bullie, big and bold, grand flush of col., nice dense wings and tail; 4, Martin and Archer, cl. Linnet-Can., lovely bird, scarcely looking its best just now; vhc. Wilmot; he, Carter.

BRIT. GOLDF. (13): 1, Chick, fine size, beautiful cobby shape, good wide well-cut blaze, failing somewhat, however, in col., excellent body col. and markings; 2, Bowler, splendid size, good col. and markings, rare bold head and expansive blaze, not well cut underneath, unfortunately, or this bird would want beating; 3, Alderslade and Clark, stylish, rich col., good moons and buttons, nice face, trifle small; 4, Oliver, nice all-round Finch, needs more under-blaze; vhc. Mitchell; he, c. Prior, good ones, the former far better than many above it, but net at all steady, which maybe kept it back. GOLDF. F.M. (8): 1, Wren, remarkably steady, lovely cond. and col., nice sq. face most promising; 2, Leech, big one, plenty of blaze, but rounded under, fine col. and markings; 3, Edwards, bonny Finch for size and shape, very steady and showy, splendid clear col. blaze, well cut, we liked for 2nd; 4, Carter, loses a little in blaze, though good all-round bird; vhc. Andrews; he, Lloyd-James; c. Guller. BULLE. CK. (14): 1, Wilmot, big fine H.M. bird, thick-set and well rounded, very good breast, splendid head and wings; 2, Brown, also H.M., very fine cond., nice col. and markings, not too slim for our taste; 3, Hopwood, rare size, very chubby and stylish, excellent col., not as tight in cond.; 4, Edwards, a nice Bullie for size and shape, excellent col. and markings, less in cap; vhc. Lloyd-James; he, c. Prior. HEN (10): 1, Chick, a topper, ideal shape and not too big, lovely sound col., grand head and wings, well put down; 2, Hopwood, bigger, fine cobby type, splendid col.; 3, Goodall, grand stamp of bird, lovely head, if in tighter feather might have gone up one; 4, Gough, very nice at all points; vhc. Pretty; he, Corley; c. Francis; this was "some" class, far in front of that for cocks. LINNET (11): 1, 2, Prior, two beauties, big cone-shaped birds, full of pencilling, rich and sound in col., wonderful cond., shilling like plate glass; 3, he, Francis, 3rd large, well-built, good whites, deep nutty col., very heavy pencilling, too dull in coat; 4, Fairhurst, bonny big hot-col. bird, very shapely, good wings and tail, lovely cond., short of breast markings; he, Reynolds; c. Goodall. DITTO F.M. (6): 1, vhc. Naylor, very promising, good size, Norwich type, rare head and neck, rich sound col., plenty of work on breast, etc., exceptionally steady; 2, 4, Cullen, both excellent Linnets, the cone-shaped type, fine size, nutty col., well pencilled, wonderful cond.; 3, Lloyd-James, big, rich col., more we could not see, as the bird refused to face the wires; he, Corley. SISKIN. &c. (13): 1, 2, Francis, splendid H.M. non-fed Siskin, cobby shape, real good bib, finely laced flanks, and very big Mealy Redpoll, grandly mld., both in excellent cond.; 3, Prior, clinking good Twite, extra big, very bold head and chest, extremely well mld., and rich in col., a bit restless yet, will take some beating; 4, Oliver, beautiful colored Siskin, gem for shape and polish; he, Martin and Archer; c. Beard. LESSER REDPOLL (7): 1, Chick, H.M., fine sound col., very distinctly mld., splendid bib, Al cond., trifle slim in build; 2, Corley, F.M., fine size, very chubby, good bib and mks., nice tone of col.; 3, Francis, H.M., very close on winner's heels, grand all-round bird; 4, Knight, F.M., good stamp; vhc. Guller; he, Green. CHAFF. (12): 1, 3, 4, Prior, very hot trio, all in the pink of cond., winner gem for col. and mks., rare size and shape, carrying bloom like a plum; 2, Francis, noted winner, lovely bird at all points; vhc. Wilmot; he, Chick; c. Knight. BRAMBLE. (13): 1, 2, Prior (quite a field-day, Mr. P.), two gems, leader rare size, shape and style, mantle well cut, deep in col. and beautifully spangled, rich breast col., fine flank markings, 2nd almost equal, losing a trifle on breast; 3, Chandler, bonny bird, lovely col., mks., and polish, very steady and stylish; 4, Green, another beauty for col. and mks.; vhc. Beard; he, no name; c. Francis. GREENF. (6): 1, 3, Francis, 1st huge size, Nor. type, wonderful head and chest, good wings and tail, real good grassy col., 3rd very good, though not quite so massive; 2, Fairhurst, beauty for col. and polish, grand wings and tail, very large and shapely, close up, just beaten in build; 4, Hopwood, nicely col.-fed, good bold bird, lovely cond.; vhc. Pretty; he, Bowler. YELLOW B. (4): 1, Lloyd-James, nat. col., grand size and shape, tight as wax in feather, very steady, splendidly mld.; 2, Chick, nicely fed, big, fine bird, well put down, remarkably clear in mks.; 3, Oford; 4, Goodall. A.O.S. (9): 1, 2, 4, Francis, leader extra big Hawfinch, large bib, fine col. and cond., 2nd champion Corn Bunting, very large, grand mks., 4th another Hawfinch, falls to head col.; 3, Oliver, very rich col. Hawfinch, grand bib and wings, lovely polish, trifle smaller than winner; vhc. c. Chick, latter splendid Hawfinch, one too defective; he, Fairhurst, another clinking good Hawfinch, we liked much better than 4th for depth and soundness of col. A.O.S. HEN (8): 1, 2, Chick, 1st lovely Yellow B., exceptionally rich in col. (we overheard an argument going on about its sex!), latter a very fine hen Hawfinch, both again well staged; 3, Francis, exceptionally good Bramblefinch, hot col. for a hen; 4, Wren, really fine Chaffinch, good cond.; vhc. Pretty; he, Reynolds; c. Knight. INSECT. (5): 1, Burrows, champion Redstart, gem for col. and perfection of cond., steady as a rock; 2, Swain, rare good Nightingale, exceptional size and col.; 3, Usher, lovely pair Bearded Reedings; 4, Goodall, real good Robin. FOR. WAXBILLS &c. (9): 1, The Hon. Mrs. Morrison, charming pair Lavender Finches, in perfect cond.; 2, vhc. c. Howe, St. Helena Waxbill, gem, fine size, commended, grand pair Cordon Bleus, we preferred for higher place; 3, 4, he, Buckingham, pair Goldbreasts (claimed at 4s!), pair Green Avadavats and pair Orange-cheeks, all lovely birds, in nice trim. JAVAS &c. (9): 1, 2, vhc. Howe, grand lot, staged in perfect cond., Combusons leading, White-headed Mannikins 2nd, Red-billed Weavers vhc; 3, c. Buckingham, extra good pair Silverbills; 4, The Hon. Mrs. Morrison, fine White Java, lovely col.; he, Hubbard. A.O.S. SEED-EATER (7): 1, 4, Hubbard, leader Jackson's Whydah, perfect tail, nice cond., 4th good Blue-breasted Waxbill; 2, Howe, Melba Finch, splendid cow, not quite fit yet; 3, The Hon. Mrs. Morrison, Rainbow Bunting, charming col., a little down in cond. when we saw it; vhc. Buckingham; he, Goodall. INSECTIV. (4): 1, 3, 4, The Hon. Mrs. Morrison, leader beautiful Scarlet Tanager, 3rd Gold-fronted Fruit-eaters, very attractive; 2, Mrs. Newall, lovely Black-headed Sibia, perfect cond.

Open show, Dec. 9. Unfortunately the cage bird section did not fill as well as was expected, owing, no doubt, to several other shows clashing; still, some very good exhibits were staged, and in more normal times the committee hope to be better patronised. Several classes in the Canary section had to be cancelled—which is very regrettable, seeing the extensive classification that was provided by this society—as also had one of the British classes. Our section was in the capable hands of Messrs. Bancroft and Jeffreys, who took every care of the exhibits. Judging started promptly, and award cards were soon on the cages. We were pleased to hear that although the weather was very unpromising, the gate amounted to over £13, and the society hope to be able to hand over a substantial amount to charity. The secretary, Mr. E. Dendie, carried out his duties in a very able manner. Mr. J. Hocking judged Canaries, and Mr. F. Heal the rest, the awards being well received.

SALE.

Open Show on Dec. 10 and 11, in the Social Club. We were not struck with above, but it was the best that could be obtained, as the Military had commandeered their usual hall. There would have been no show at all if it had not been for a quorum of members headed by that border enthusiast, Mr. W. Middleton, guaranteeing the Society against any loss. The wheel has run very evenly at Sale for a good many years, and it would have been a great blow if one cog had been missing this year. Exhibitors follow certain shows every season, and when they miss one, another society gets their patronage next year. 505 exhibits turned up in response to a well organised schedule, and the promoters were to be congratulated on the method they adopted in staging them in so small a space. The entry in Green Yorkshires was a disgrace—10 birds in four classes: they are making a whip for their own backs; clear Yorks were a marvellous lot, and quite the sensation of the show. The cinnamon mark of Messrs. Benson and Young was an eye opener, they refused a bid of £10 for him. Norwich Green were only fair, but good quality was in evidence. Clear Norwich in numbers were much down, but the noted cracks of the year were staged. Sales were up to previous years. Visitors turned up well including many ladies and clergymen from Manchester. Mr. Middleton carried out his work as Show Manager to effect: it takes a lot to upset him. Being a keen exhibitor, he knows what is required for the birds in his charge. He has an admirable assistant in that noted British bird specialist, Mr. H. Whitney. The pen and ink department is superintended by Mr. Hardcastle, who has forgotten more than a good many Scs. know: he soon had the cards up, and made everybody comfortable. Mr. Oldham and Mr. Fields looked after the seed and water for the birds, and none missed their keen eyes. The judges were Messrs. Houlton and Metcalfe who got through their work in good time; satisfaction was written on all exhibitors' faces.

MR. J. W. METCALFE'S CLASSES.

YORKS. GREENS, SELF OR FOUL YELL. (5): 1. W. Jones, excellent col. and pencilling, straight as a rush, wins; 2. Withheld; 3. Gaul; he, Lane; c, Haslam.

MR. HOULTON'S CLASSES.

Borders were a splendid lot, without a doubt equal to anything seen before in this hotbed for the wee gems. Cracks were present from all parts, and competition was consequently of the keenest possible description. A fifth prize of 1s. was announced to be given in these and British classes to the vhc. birds. British were excellent, and competition here again very close and keen. Hybrids were a capital lot, and many of the best birds of the day were winning. "White Rose" had dropped some feathers, and so was put out of court for the time being. A few very promising young Canary Hybrids were shown very creditably. Four of the Canary-Bullfinch cross were in one class. Mr. Middleton won the £5 5s. challenge cup for most points. Mr. Parlett was runner-up. Mr. Middleton also won the Pearson Cup, and a gold-centre medal for best members' bird, with a lovely young buff green Border, a perfect gem. Mr. Oldham won special best British with his fine type for members. Messrs. Hardcastle, Middleton, and Whitney managed the show in a masterly manner, and were well and ably assisted by Mr. Raynes, Mr. Tom Harrison, Mr. A. Royle, Mr. Drinkwater, and others, all doing their best for the birds' and visitors' comfort.

BORD., CINN. MARKS (12): A splendid class, and quite the cream of the Fancy here: 1, 2. Nicholson, exquisite, flowing with qual., shape, style, carr., and cond.; 3. Middleton, very smart and compact, teaming with qual.; 4. Nelson; all these four almost equal, and a marvellous quartette; vhc, Hampson, very stylish, tight cond.; he, Espie; c, Royle. CL. OR YELL. CK. (9): 1. bc, Royle, most typical, tick left cheek, grand carr., qual., jaunty; 2. Bennett, cl., lovely standard qualities, shape, carr., qual., and cond. fine; 3. Tallantyre, good level bird, pos. and carr. A1; 4. Cavanagh, tick wing, lovely shape; vhc, Nelson; c, Drinkwater. BUFF. CK. (15): A splendid class of real gems: 1. NEWARK.

The Newark and Dist. C.B. Society 6th annual show, Nov. 20. The Friendly Societies' Room, which is of good size and of capital light, was utilised for the purpose. W. Lidgett, the worthy secretary, kept everything well in hand, controlling thoroughly capably. Two solid silver challenge cups were competed for: One, for best bird in show, went to Mr. F. Lidgett; the other, for best young bird, bred by exhibitor, to Mr. Staniland.
Runner-up in both cases, Mr. Lidgett. Staging of exhibits was neatly arranged, and the benches were nicely decorated with foliage. Judging was over in good time, show opened by 1 o'clock, prize cards were displayed promptly, and everything went well. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) judged, and the following are his awards.

NOR., Y. OR B. (6): 1. 3. vhc, Lidgett, grand shaped cl. yell. leading, and a nice typed unfligh-ted buff, full of promise; 2. Ashton, bouncing cl. buff,

A Guaranteed Circulation amongst
50,000 readers weekly

Offices: 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.
Telegrams—"Aviculture, London." Tel. No. 5229
Holborn.

The Editor is always glad to receive and consider suitable contributions, whether articles, sketches, or photographs. Provided an addressed envelope, sufficiently stamped, accompanies same, every effort will be made to return unaccepted contributions promptly, but he does not in any case hold himself responsible for their safety.

All matter intended for publication must be written or typed on one side of paper only, and must reach us not later than the first post on Tuesday if insertion in the next issue is desired.

Twitterings.

We hear from Mr. F. Hayward, hon. sec., that the Manchester and N.C.O.S. has fixed Oct. 27 and 28, 1916, for the annual open show.

We hear that the London C.B.A. intends holding a members' show on Feb. 4 and 5, in conjunction with the National British Bird and M.C., and the Foreign Bird E.C.

We are having an Open Linnet Class at our Members' Show on Jan. 15, with Mr. R. S. Bewicke, of Newfield, as judge, writes Mr. Matt. Archer, Sec. Craghead Social Club F.F. and C.B.S.

Owing to the great number of orders already on hand, writes Mr. E. M. Stanton, Manchester, we are forced to state that we cannot guarantee any orders being dispatched before Christmas. The success accorded us is due to your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS.

Kindly advise Novice exhibitors, writes Mr. W. Crowther, Hon. Sec. Bishop Auckland C.B.S., that the following Novice Classes were omitted from our schedule by error: Class 20, Yorks Cock; 21, Yorks. Hen; 22, Norwich Cock; 23, Norwich Hen.

The prize-money of our first annual show, writes Mr. J. H. Bevan, sec. Porth and Rhondda Valley C.B.S., has been sent out to winners. If there is any exhibitor overlooked, a postcard will bring about a settlement. I also wish to thank all exhibitors who patronised our first show and trust we will receive their future consideration.

In the schedule of Halifax C.B.S. Show, Jan. 8, writes Mr. A. Sutcliffe (Sec.), Class 13 should read Foul Mkd. Yorks., not Foul Mkd. Green Yorks. We have the patronage of the Yorks. Union; Y.C.C., all competitions; N.G.M.Y.C.C., open and novice; and the C.M.Y.C.C. We are also having four classes for open novices. Schedules are ready (see review).

"British Birds" for December, Messrs. Witherby and Co., High Holborn, W.C., one shilling monthly, opens with notes on the Grey Plover on the Yenesei, by Miss Mand Haviland. Mr. H. F. Witherby continues his article on the Moults of the British Passeress, an extract from which appeared in our Dec. 11 issue, and among the usual interesting "Notes" is a record of the appearances of the Lapland Bunting in Suffolk. The writer, Mr. J. K. Stanford, reports that on Oct. 10 last he saw a party of no less than ten Lapland Buntings near Aldeburgh, and four on Nov. 4 and Nov. 5.

Corrections in Show Reports.

In the report of Birmingham Show, 1st in Mkd. Nor. should be Broome Bros., not Brown Bros. In the Clydebank report Brit. Hen, 1 Kane should be 1, Mallon; Open Yell. Nor. Hen should be 1, McLean, 2 Johnstone; and in open Linnets, 3rd should be Robb, not McLean. In Buff Piebald Hens at Paisley 5 and spl. should be Wilson, not Brown.

SPECIAL XMAS OFFER

To Senders of
SMALL PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS.

FOR THE PRICE OF ONE-AND-A-HALF.

In order to save our advertisers trouble during the Christmas Holidays, we will insert advertisements in our next issue and the one following (Dec. 25 and Jan. 1) for the price of one insertion and a half.

This offer is open to all small prepaid advertisers, so that our readers who want to make money for Christmas should take advantage of it. Rates: 18 words for 6d., 2 words id. after, prepaid. Enclose the fee for the two insertions at the price of one and a half; also write on your order, "Two Weeks' Special Offer."

Offer closes Monday next, or first post Tuesday, Dec. 21, at latest.

Address: The Advertisement Manager, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

An Address Wanted.

Will Mr. W. P. Foster (Loughborough) send his correct address to Mr. A. Freestone, 79, Clarendon Street, Leicester.

Prize Money Paid.

We are informed that prize-money has been paid in respect of the following shows; if any winners have been overlooked, they should apply to the respective secretaries: Watford, City and Suburban A.C.B., City of Birmingham C.B.S.

Affairs of the Crested C.C.

A committee meeting of the above club, writes Mr. T. Heath, hon. sec. and treas., will be held on Jan. 6 at 8, at 2, York Street, Piccadilly. I trust all members will make an effort to attend this meeting, as I have not yet been able to obtain from the late sec. any further reply to my letters.

Jollity at Windhill.

There will be a smoking concert and presentation to one of our members, writes Mr. J. Taylor, the sec. of Windhill C.B.S., on Jan. 15 at the Blue Bell Hotel, at 6.30 p.m. All fanciers are invited, and can rest assured that it will be a "real good do," with plenty of talent.

Happenings at Watford.

Mr. J. Goodall, hon. sec. Watford C.B.S., writes:—"The railway people refused to despatch exhibits on Thursday, so we held them over till Friday morning, when they had an hour to feed and drink before being packed. I have had several complaints of catalogues not being received up to yesterday (Monday). I have been to the Post Office, and all I can get is, they will make enquiries. Lord Clarendon and family visited the show, and were interested in the British section; he seemed to know nearly all our Britishers."

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Owing to Christmas day falling this year on a Saturday, the Boxing Day Bank Holiday will be Monday Dec. 27th. The offices of CAGE BIRDS will be closed from Friday night Dec. 24th to Tuesday morning Dec. 27th. Queries which are for answer in the following week's issue (Jan. 1st, 1916) must be received not later than Friday, Dec. 24th.

OBITUARY.

It is with deep regret that I have to announce the sad loss our member, Mr. E. Roycroft, has sustained in the death of his wife, writes Mr. F. A. Green, hon. sec. Coventry Godiva C.B.S. I am sure members and all fanciers in Coventry will join with me in extending deepest sympathy to Mr. and Miss Roycroft in their sad bereavement.

Our deepest sympathy, writes Mr. W. H. Gibb, hon. sec. Brighton C.B.A., is extended to Mr. W. Swaysland, the well-known judge on the great loss he has sustained in the death of his daughter, Mrs. Mumford, on Dec. 13, at the early age of thirty-nine. She was his right hand in his business, and her cheery presence will be sadly missed at her father's old-established premises in Queen's Road. Mr. Swaysland is to be further consoled with in that his son is now in hospital badly wounded, after many months in the firing line in France. We all hope for a speedy recovery for him, and in the meantime his father can be sure of the sympathies of all his fellow fanciers, both in this town and elsewhere.

MR. JOHN PARK (Covan).

It is with the deepest regret, writes Mr. W. Connelly, that I have to announce the death of Mr. John Park on Saturday, Nov. 27, at Shieldhall Hospital, after a very short illness of a week. Erysipelas in the face which went to his throat was the cause of death. Mr. Park was well-known throughout Scotland and Ireland as a breeder, exhibitor and judge, Scotch Fancies being his favourites, and was one of the old school. He was sixty-two years of age, has been a keen and genuine fancier all his life, and was very highly respected by all who knew him. He is survived by a widow, two sons, and a daughter; one of his sons is serving with the colours. I am sure that all who knew him will extend their heartfelt sympathy towards the widow and family.

The original drawings of our front page illustrations, and of most other pictures appearing on our pages, may be purchased by readers for framing. Terms for any picture will be sent on application.

"Last week's 'tanner' advt. enabled me to sell 14 birds. How's that for a 'nimble sixpence'?"—D. J. JAMES (Shepherd's Bush).

"Kindly thank those who wrote for Norwich, which I advertised in CAGE BIRDS Double Number, November 20th, as I have not time to write to them all. It is well worth the money to advertise."—E. PETTET (Leyton.)

A 44-Year-Old Goose.

At a recent meeting of the Council of the Royal Zoological Society of Ireland the secretary reported that during the week the Gardens had lost from the collection an interesting specimen of the Goose family—interesting from the point of view of long-lived birds—this ancient Goose being, as near as can be ascertained, 44 years old.

Ravens for Yorkshire Cliffs.

An interesting experiment had been tried by Mr. St. Quentin in liberating three young Ravens on the Bempton Cliffs, Yorks. It is about 50 years since such birds bred there, and the last breeding place disappeared long since into the sea. On July 2 they were penned on the cliff to get accustomed to their surroundings, and on July 23 to August 1 were liberated one by one. During the first week in September two of them were seen feeding on the land.

ANOTHER WAR TIME ECONOMY.

Dick: "Good gracious! What's the meaning of such a long holder?"
Philip: "I've promised my wife to keep away from cigarettes."

Pudsey Stanningley C.B.S.

Sir,—Mr. Andrew Bracewell has joined the Royal Navy, and is now in training at Portsmouth.—ROY KELL, Sec.

Burnley and District, O.S.

Sir,—Will you kindly have the following members placed on your Roll of Honour:—J. Whittaker, R.A.M.C., drowned on the Royal Edward; J. Tapper, R.F.A.

R. HINES, Sec.

Port Glasgow O.S.

Sir,—Three of our members who are serving our King and Country, all in the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders. One has been wounded, and is now in Hospital. Sergt. Wm. Boyle, Lance-Corpl. John Forrester, Lance-Corpl. James Montgomerie. As we have just started our meetings for the winter, and the festive season is so near, we have decided to send each a Christmas-box, hoping it will help to cheer them and let them see they are not forgotten.

THOS. ADAIR, Sec.

New Cross C.B.S.

The following additional members of the New Cross C.B.S. have now to be added to the Roll of Honour:—Pte. H. C. Humphries, H.A.C., in training at Richmond; Pte. W. H. Gardner, A.V.C., in training at St. Alban's; Pte. J. Whitting, Navvies' Battalion, serving in France. Pte. Gardner would like to meet some of the St. Alban's fanciers. His address is Pte. W. H. Gardner, 219, No. 1 Base, Divisional Veterinary Hospital, St. Stephen's Hill, St. Alban's.

A Happy Xmas
Brighter New Year
To Bird Lovers the world over.

Here's to your Health,
Here's to your wealth;
A Jolly Good Christmas to you!
A Happy New Year,
With loads of Good Cheer,
And friends that are many and true!

I am glad to say Pte. Preece, 20th London, who was wounded at Loos, is now well again, and has returned to his regiment. Rifleman Burton, Queen's Westminster, who has just returned to the Front for the third time, after seven days' leave, wishes to be remembered to all old friends. We have now 9 members with the colours, and 6 on war work; not a bad record for a small society. GEO. BURTON, Sec.

MY PEKIN ROBINS (Liothrix Lutea).

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

P E K I N Robins have always been prime favourites with me, and though they have many faults as well as many good qualities—I am pleased to say the former are a very small minority—I always have, and shall put them down as “ripping” birds.

It is not easy to describe a Pekin Robin, for he has so wide a range that individuals vary considerably as to depth of colour, etc., making it not only difficult to form a reasonable idea of a typical specimen, but also complicating the sexing problem; for in some pairs at any rate the colour differences are almost infinitesimal, and there certainly are singing hen Pekins as well as singing hen Canaries. Nevertheless, the cases are not parallel, for singing hens of the latter are fairly numerous; of the former, I think, quite rare.

The question of sex distinction is not difficult to the owner of a given pair, nor yet among adult normal specimens from the same district, but at the same time it is not easy to give the sex of an odd bird offhand, but after having it under observation for a few days, even as an odd bird one can usually do so. As already indicated, the owner of a given pair can at once say which is which.

The Sex Problem.

In a pair I have at present, though two richly coloured specimens, the hen is certainly less brilliant than the male, and her head is much flatter too, though it would take a very keen eye to detect any difference in size as they disport in the aviary. The variation between normal and extreme forms is so great, however, that few would care to dogmatise as to the sex of a given bird unless they had heard it sing, and even in an aviary bachelors often never sing, never get beyond the call note. One bachelor which I had for many years never got beyond the call note until, during his last year with me, I gave a home to an odd bird for a friend. This proved to be a hen, and the same day the erstwhile bachelor burst into full song. Thus one cannot always say a non-singing bird is a hen. What then are the differences which may be termed fairly reliable? These I would tabulate as follows:—

The rich mossy-green (rich colour in both sexes) of the top of the head of the male is more golden in hue, as if suffused or shot with old-gold.

The difference in the form of the bill is not great, and unless one possesses very keen eyesight will pass unnoticed; but the bill of the male is a little longer and more slender than that of the female, and also, as a rule, a deeper red.

The top of the head of the male is broader and more arched.

As a rule, the pale elliptical eye patch of the male is distinctly yellow.

As a rule, the yellow of the throat is more intense in the male, as also is the rich orange-factors in coming to a decision is somewhat spoiled by the extreme variability of the species. I will not, therefore, commit myself so far as to state that all are constant, but all of them are to be seen in my present pair, which have reared young in my aviary this season.

It is not always easy to ascertain the source of the various arrivals, in some of which, omitting the bright coloured areas, the hue is brownish, others are distinctly slatey, and with the tails more distinctly forked; the latter, I think, represent the Chinese and Japanese forms.

The Pekin Robin is well off for trivial names—Red-billed Hill-Tit, Pekin Nightingale, Japanese Robin, Red-billed or Yellow-billed Liothrix, and Japanese and Chinese Hill-Robins. Considering its range, Pekin Robin is a most inappropriate name for it, but it has become so well-known under that cognomen, that it would be unwise and idle to attempt to suggest a more appropriate one. As “Pekin Robin” he has established himself in our aviaries and hearts, and as Pekin Robin he must and will remain to the end of the chapter. The attractive qualities of the Pekin Robin are legion, in fact I know of only one failing, viz., a fondness for the eggs of other birds for breakfast, but even in this respect I do not think he is quite so black as he is painted, and he has never seriously interfered with breeding results in my aviaries; in this respect I have had more trouble with the Virginian Cardinal. Most certainly in epitomising their good qualities, one must class them as a handsome couple; few foreign birds surpass them for beauty, and however one may “thuse over a rare species, the Pekin, cheap as he is to be obtained, is in the very front rank of glowing Eastern beauty, and, more than that, possesses all those characteristics that make an ideal cage or aviary bird. His praises have been sung again and again, and most thoroughly he deserves his popularity, for he has fine song, bold, fearless and vivacious demeanour, attractive and interesting deportment, is amiable even to the smallest inhabitant of the aviary; and is absolutely hardy, being quite unaffected by the worst weather an English winter can inflict upon him. What more can one desire?

My First Pekin.

But this is all general; what about my Pekin Robins? This may be true, but however general it may be, it is also true of my Pekin Robins, for I regret I cannot take you, like some, round to the shop, and describe the purchase of my first Pekin. It was away back in the misty past, longer than I care to think about, or the price I paid for it—I was never without them for long together for very many years, but with all their chumminess and other charms they never did anything in the breeding line. In fact to this day the recorded instances of their breeding in captivity in this country are few indeed. I have always attributed my non-success in this respect to having my aviaries so crowded that natural cover was impossible; for in the end not even herbage was allowed to grow. Nevertheless, the Pekins thrive, looked handsome, and greeted me always with perfect familiarity to a sort of “What have you got for me?” expression. Thus would I sum up the past, and bring the period down to about five years ago when my London aviaries were dismantled, since when till this spring Pekins had no place in my present aviary.

Now my little yarn can become more of a personal narrative, for they only came into my possession this spring—it was thuswise. I was with Capt. J. S. Reeve, of Leadenham, at the Zoo, looking at some of his birds which were there on deposit owing to his aviaries being closed for the period of the war. Among them were two fine pairs of Pekins which I much admired; it ended in some of the birds coming to me “on deposit,” and a pair of Pekins as a gift, and it is of the doings of this pair that I propose telling. They behaved handsomely, so much so, that the luck of years of no breeding successes was broken, and for the first time in my avicultural experience young Pekins were fully reared in my aviary. When my yarn is finished I think readers will agree with me that for perseverance in the midst of repeated failure, my birds deserve a medal.

Soon Made Themselves at Home.

They were turned into the aviary in late April, and made themselves at home at once. Early in May I discovered a charming cradle nest in the middle of a thick privet bush, and it was some days before I could discover its builders; some days passed and no eggs were deposited therein, and that bush was a contentious spot in the aviary, and I fear I credited the Pekins with upsetting some bird's domestic “apple cart.” Instead of that, it was a bachelor Virginian Cardinal and a pair of Black Tanagers which were doing their best to frustrate the Pekins' efforts. However, they stuck to their task, and about the middle of the month the nest

A typical attitude of the happily-wedded couple.

In due course two chicks hatched out, and though the weather was very unsettled, heavy thunderstorms being prevalent, all went well, and the young were all but fledged on the ninth day, in spite of gales of wind and rain which still prevailed. Going down to the aviary on the tenth day I was prepared for disaster, for the distressful cries of the Pekins were to be heard all over the garden, and I was prepared to find my hopes of breeding Pekins for the season 1915 effectually quenched. The weather had proved too much for the nest, two of the grass ropes had given way, one young bird was dead beneath it, and the other had disappeared. I was, of course, very disappointed but I was more sorry for the Pekins than myself, their distress was so very real. I considered failure No. 4 was final so far as 1915 was concerned.

However, they were of a different opinion, for they belonged to the “try again” brigade. After much searching they settled on another part of Hazel Glen for attempt No. 5. They wasted no time in useless grief after the first shock was over, for in three days a nest was completed and the first egg laid. I am afraid I did not take a great deal of interest in the matter, for they had commenced the moult, and I did not expect anything to come of this attempt. Incubation steadily went on, and on the thirteenth day, when I ventured to look into the nest, the gaping mouths of three vigorous chicks greeted me, and hope once more reigned supreme.

Success at Last!

On September 10th Capt. Reeve called to see them, they were then seven days old, and we both agreed that success seemed very probable, though the parents were very ragged from the moult, and liable to “throw up the sponge” at any moment. On Sept. 15 there was a perfect clamour in the aviary, and I hastily went down thereto, fearing some pirate bird was appropriating the young Pekins, but parent Pekins were only shouting “Hurrah! Brought it off at last”; for there, hopping amid the branches were two strong young Pekins, not able to fly, but very active amid the twiggy branches of the privet hedgerow.

Our Painting Competition.

A Prize for Artistic Bird-Keepers.

(See frontispiece this week.)

Following our usual custom at Christmas-tide, our Frontispiece this week is designed to be coloured. We offer a cash prize of one guinea for the best attempt at colouring the same which reaches us from one of our readers on or before Friday, January 7th.

The medium to be employed (oil, water-colour, or crayon) is left to the discretion of the competitor. The finished attempt should be packed flat, or rolled in a tube, and have the sender's name and address written on the back.

The whole of the front page, heading and all, must be coloured, not merely the outline picture of birds, etc., alone.

In this competition entries are received only on the understanding that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as final.

My Parson Finches: By the Rev. C. D. FARRAR

This article is No. 47 of the new series of personal birdy experiences entitled "Through a Birdroom Window."

MORE years ago than I care to remember sometimes, my friend George Carrick used to come home from Australia, bringing a huge cargo of birds of all sorts and sizes, some exceedingly rare, and some comparatively common. On one voyage he landed with a huge cageful of Parson Finches, and as they did not for some reason seem to go off, he offered me some very cheaply. I was never very struck on Parson Finches, why, I shall tell by and by; but the apparent bargain tempted me, and I fell.

One thing I could never understand is why these birds should be known as Parson Finches, as anything more unclerical looking I never saw. There might be some excuse for giving this title to Pöe birds; as they have some feathers under the beak, something like the white bands clergymen used to affect 50 years ago; but Parsons are absolutely innocent of anything clerical about them.

Sober as Their Name.

They are sober little birds, about the size of our English Goldfinch, with a grey head, the feathers of which they are capable of raising at will, a black bib under the chin, and sober brown plumage. They are exceedingly active birds and dreadfully inquisitive; poking and peering into every corner, and, alas, I am compelled to say it, into every neighbour's nest. This renders them most undesirable birds in a mixed collection, if your heart is set on breeding. This is why I do not like Parson Finches. People talk about Crimson Finches being quarrelsome, but I will defy anything to come up to an irascible old Parson Finch with a nest in building.

It is not very easy to distinguish the sex of these birds as the plumage is so exactly alike; the surest way to distinguish the cocks and the hens is to put a lot into a cage with one long perch, where they can all sit in a line, and then take note of the size of the "bibs." The birds with big ones are the cocks; the others the hens.

It is easy to spot them out then, but the difficulty comes in when you put in your hand to catch them. Then, in a moment, all the birds depress their bibs, and all look exactly alike. The only way to overcome this difficulty is to spot a bird and carry him in your eye, until you have him safely in your hand.

When my birds arrived from Mr. Carrick it was evening, so I left them in the travelling cage till morning, as it is always a foolish thing to enlarge new arrivals at night in a strange aviary, as they are sure to dash about and not only injure themselves, but will frighten all the old inmates into fits.

Up in the Morning Early.

When morning dawned I was up betimes, and after replenishing the seed and water pots I opened the door of the travelling cage and let the Parson Finches out. I wished I hadn't a few minutes later, for they started in and had a regular free fight. I suppose it is not really good for you to be without troubles, or worries, because then you begin to regard content as a right rather than as a blessing. At any rate, I know my content was one for the time being.

Some people know things by instinct; others have to be told. I am one of the latter sort. Any well informed person would have known that Parson Finches are quarrelsome little beggars. I had to find it out by experience. It gave me a bitter conceit of myself, so to speak, and I think that conceit is the most delicious possession in the world. The conceited person is always perfectly happy; he knows for a fact that the world revolves round him.

I knew that my only course was to get the net and catch the whole lot; but it is easier said than done. It takes a keen eye and the patience of Job himself to go dodging about a bird room trying to keep one particular bird in your eye, and at the same time to avoid losing that eye on some projecting twig.

After catching them all up, and allowing myself time to cool, I selected the finest cock and a couple of hens, and put them into a small cage to examine them at leisure. I quite believe the cock hoped he was going to have both the ladies, like the lad who, being asked by H.M. Inspector how many wives it was permitted a man to have, replied blandly: "two only as generally necessary to salvation." I, however, know better, for I felt that if the two ladies were left together it would mean the survival of the fittest.

The next day I put the pair into the aviary and waited events. I had not long to do so. These two wretched birds began a systematic examination of every nest and cigar box in the place, ruthlessly ejecting the lawful inmates and taking forcible possession—for about ten minutes. Then they would fly down to the end twig, feed and drink as if nothing had happened.

As I did not wish to lose the whole breeding season I had once more to catch the little murderous wretches and put them in a small compartment by themselves. The cock, though a great bully out of doors, was remarkably quiet at home, and I noticed that whenever his wife was about, like Agag of old, he walked delicately, but then that is often the way with husbands, birdy and otherwise.

A SHOW
GOLDFINCH.

Park for Mr. A. R.
Cullen.

Not many days after, when I entered the bird room, my trained eye caught the hen slipping into a German travelling cage with a lot of hay in her bill, so I knew she was bent on nest building. Of course I pretended to see nothing. It never does to let birds think you have noticed their domestic arrangements. I felt very pleased with myself. Till you have nearly all that the gods can give, it is not difficult to be virtuous, as Becky Sharp once said.

I only wanted one thing more, a nest of little Parsons. All went well for some days, and then one morning I saw both the old birds at the seed tray. For some days the hen had been hidden. Horrible doubts arose in my mind about deserted nests, but some doubts are like dirty water, let them alone and they will evaporate. Mine did in this case. The nest was all right, and the hen was only taking needful refreshment. I saw her return to her duties with the joy of an Arctic explorer welcoming a relief party.

Counting the Chickens.

I now began to count confidently on a good hatch. I seldom see things as they are, but as they are going to be. It was so in this case. I was counting my chickens before they were hatched. At the end of 13 days I saw the hen off; she remained off, and then I knew that the eggs were clear. I went in and told the family and they only said "Oh, are they," but some people haven't got the feelings of a broomstick! When a week later I saw the Parsons busy at nest building again, the world was fixed in its orbit, and Time itself stood still, but then, was I not greatly blessed, as the pious Evangelists say.

I think Browning's man, who never turned his back, but marched breast forward, believing in the triumph of right, must have had my square shoulders. At the end of the 13 days I could hear faint sounds from the nest box, and if even those sounds ceased for any length of time I felt as wretched as Adam and Eve on the fatal evening when they had eaten the apple. To merely remember that time even now makes my mouth like a brick kiln and my flesh as that of a goose.

One morning, when I entered the bird room I saw the Parson Finches surrounded by a little crowd, and then I knew that success had once more crowned my endeavours, and I felt inclined to quote the old Italian proverb, open your mouth and the Larks fall ready roasted into it.

You may be sure that I was not long in making my success public. You can never be too quick in these things, as every Jerusalem, it has been said, has its Samaria close at hand and somebody else may have got before you. Of course Parson Finches have often been bred before and since; in fact, Mr. Gedney speaks in the most airy way of the ease with which the thing may be done.

I can't say that the Parson Finch cock seemed happy—though married; he always seemed to me to share Jane Welch Carlyle's feelings about her husband, that Carlyle "was gay hard to live with." And now I think I will end lest you should say of me what one girl said of another: her tongue was like a dock root, so long there was no end of it.

as generally affecting the whole of the Fancy, I shall only speak of the shows it has been my privilege to visit, or those which have appealed to me because of their position on the map.

One does not take quite the same interest in shows which are hundreds of miles away, especially as there is a continuity of shows in one's own district, and a cursory glance through the reports of those shows which are far away is the most that can be expected of even an enthusiastic fancier at a time when many items in the newspaper press call for his attention, and reduces the time at his disposal for a closer study of affairs in the Cage Bird Fancy. Parenthetically, I may mention that I have known the time when I could tell the average entry per class at almost any show in the Kingdom on referring to a pocket book.

Better in the Old Days.

Recent shows in the district that has Manchester for its centre have proved to me that British and Foreign birds have not been exhibited in such numbers as they were 15, 10, or even seven years ago. Looking over the names and the number of entries in the catalogues of present-day shows, one recalls the names of Oldaldiston, H. B. Smith, Ball, the two Walsh's, Jones, Williams, and many others who used to keep the classes going by their support.

Certainly there are a few exhibitors to-day who contribute to the attractiveness of our shows by sending a few entries, but they do not send quite so varied a collection nor so large an entry as did those whom I have mentioned, consequently societies have suffered monetarily, and have reduced classification to the minimum, while some have even crossed them out altogether.

Are societies wise in doing this? Are the shows quite as attractive without British or Foreign? Do they get the same number of visitors at the shows as they did formerly? In my opinion, we fanciers think too much of the present instead of looking to the future. We overlook the fact that every individual non-fancier who visits a bird show is a potential bird-keeper, and it is the attractiveness of birds that he only reads about that brings most of such people to a bird show.

The many varieties of Canaries, considered as different varieties, have no more interest to a non-fancier than his last week's but one wages. To him they are simply Canaries, all of them. But he can see a difference between a Goldfinch and a Bullfinch, a Linnet and a Hawfinch, a Thrush and a Chough, or a Pekin Robin and a Macaw. Their colouring appeals to him, their vivacity attracts him. He likes to see things in the flesh that heretofore he has only read about or seen in a museum. Once get him really interested, and before long he is a fancier, and "once a fancier always a fancier."

Too Many without Hobbies.

There are far too many working men without hobbies. We want to attract these men to our shows, so that they will adopt our hobby. If we once get a man interested in such a hobby as the keeping of birds, his attention will be diverted from baser pursuits, and he will ultimately be led to try his hand at exhibiting birds, and we can do with more exhibitors at the present.

If we are to keep up our shows we must do something towards replacing the older fanciers who are continually being taken from us, and those who decline the fancy from lack of interest, or who get "fed up" from other causes; and I can see no better way of making recruits than through the attractiveness of our shows.

The majority of purely Canary fanciers, I think, have started in the Fancy with British Birds. I may be wrong, so I won't labour the point; but I know of plenty of fanciers whose initial entry into the fold has been through the agency of British Birds. Myself for instance. Many years ago I did some small service for a friend who resided in the country, for which I would not receive any remuneration, and a few weeks later I was the recipient of a Goldfinch (the first I ever saw). I bought a hen Canary, and attempted to breed, and I didn't know till the following year that I had been trying to breed from two hens!

But I had the "fever"; and in less than two years I had won a first prize with British at an open show, and from British I drifted to the breeding of Norwich—or, as a British fancier friend of mine told me, from the sublime to the ridiculous. I merely mention this personal experience as an instance, and because I know there are hundreds of potential bird-keepers in the country whose interest could be awakened by some similar experience, or through the agency of shows.

By "SUB ROSA."

ON looking over the schedules and catalogues of most of the shows for the past few years, I am reluctantly forced to the opinion that British and Foreign birds are to a certain extent declining in favour by fanciers. A few evenings ago, when the weather was in one of its worst moods, I found myself staring into the embers of a bright fire and ruminating on the factors which are contributing to the steady decline in the numbers of our beautiful resident and migratory birds upon the show bench, and of the gorgeous coloured foreigners.

It is not easy to arrive at a cause at a time like this. We must not overlook the fact that the times are not normal. We have to acknowledge that our domestic and commercial system is in an uproar which has in some cases completely, and in others partially, knocked the stuffing out of the fancy. Some fanciers and some societies have struggled and are struggling to keep things going, at what personal or pecuniary inconvenience we may only conjecture; but either the schedules have not been sufficiently attractive, or the railway facilities have left something to be desired, or—and I am reluctant to offer this as a solution—fanciers of our attractive British and Foreign are becoming scarcer and scarcer.

Suppose we examine the different factors I have named as causing the decline. It would perhaps be better to explain to the reader that although this contribution may be read

"CAGE BIRDS," 154, FLEET ST., LONDON, E.C.

The Woodlark in Captivity.

Teschemaker B.A.

THE Woodlark is one of those interesting species which are extremely particular in their choice of a residential district; among these species will be found the most difficult subjects with which the aviculturist has to deal. Though few general statements with regard to birds are worth making, this one at least has but very few exceptions, namely that the more local a species is, the more difficult will it be found to meet its requirements in captivity.
